Thread: What fonts to you use to put writing on paper w/ photoshop?

marowana - August 5, 2015, 6:07 am

I'm trying to get some good fonts to make it look legit. Which ones do you guys use? I hear of people that use tablets to write things themselves but I dont have that or a touchscreen for my PC unfortunately.

Font never will look legit. Hand write is better, I use my own mouse.

match the lighting, write it on a physical piece of paper yourself in real life.
take a picture of the paper with matched lighting or even close.
photoshop does the rest.

when it comes to writing on paper, it's stupid easy to fake it.. writing on skin takes more time and skill to make it look real.

but the same concept can be used.

I use Jenna Sue. It looks pretty legit, no-ones called it out as fake to this day!

I just write by hand with a brush, easy and fast

Lot of feminine handwriting in the web for free. Just use "warp" & "distort" to make it look more believable.

I use permanent marker, it has worked before plenty of times :D
