Thread: New Signature Style Needs Feedback

mrHYDE - August 6, 2015, 5:25 am

So I've started adding dropped opacity duplicate images under and over the original clipping masks and text.

Just wanted to get your guys feedback on the effect and the overall signatures.

Criticism is always welcomed.

I actually quite like that some of the image inside the lettering goes outside the lines :)

I think you should leave the animation and remain the quality, which can be seen on the second one, which looks a lot better because of that.

The stroke however looks odd, and that's really why I do not use it very oftenly, as it tend to get pixilated.

Too much going on for my liking, especially the stuff outside the text, but if you polish it up and make it a bit cleaner I think it would look really good and be a unique style of text. You could try putting highlights onto the edges to break up the generic feel a bit. If you don't understand what I mean by that send me a PM and I'll show you what I mean. Keep up the good work mate. Also in regards to the shine moving over the first text. Would it look better if it was set to overlay?
