My laptop always gets this message:

When I take the plug out and plug it back in it says "Plugged in, charging" But for only like 10 seconds then it says "Plugged in, not charging."

wrong section, and try to replace the cable, if that does not work then take it to a repair shop for fixing the connector.

Have you tried replacing the battery? They go dead after a few years.

In my experience, the battery or power cord need to be changed. If neither of those issues are your problem, it could be your motherboard. it could be fried.....

Don't know if this is right section but who cares. Have you tried any other adapters?

I'm in a caravan. It charges at people's house but not in the caravan.

People are dumber than I thought on HackForums.
