As Otakuthon 2015 came and went, I tried to take lots of pictures.

This is my third time going but I didn't go the past two years.

This is however my first time with my nice camera.

I hope you enjoy some of the pictures.

The wedding album was a joke event where cosplayers could pretend marry each other.

The masquerade is the judged costume event. Unfortunately there was a lot of smoke on stage and that caused a lot of the pictures to be meh at best.

I was there as well!

You've got some pretty neat pictures. Too bad my friends and I aren't in any of the pictures.

What camera did you use?

GL1TCH3D - August 10, 2015, 10:05 pm

Did you Cosplay? I didn't bring any spare batteries so I tended to aim for the people with unique cosplays though i still missed a lot.

Using the Panasonic G5 with either my 14-140mm Panasonic lens or my 45mm leica lens.

I went to quite a few panels too and also didn't actually bring my camera Friday.

Lots of nice cosplays. Especially that Inori.

There was Esdeath from Akame ga kill that was amazing too but I didn't have my camera at the time.

Lots of other good ones that I didn't have the battery to do or I was on my way to a panel.

lol It looks like you were drooling over the Inori. xD I really like the Gurren Lagann group cosplay though. It's not top tier but it takes me back to my con days. Is Otakuthon a local con (In Canada)?

Local con, yea.

I've been meaning to travel to other cons but they're always at bad times.

Inori is one of my favorite girls. She was being posed by a professional photographer so I jumped in and took some pictures at the same time xD

The cosplay was very well done though

Sort of. This is what we looked like (the awesome-o is a random guy):

Warning, very large image.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

We were roaming around on Friday and Saturday.
