Thread: [\[3 YEARS\] >Silent DOC Exploit< Change EXE to DOC | No Spoofing | No Macro | FUD&Priv8](#)

Raymond Reddington - August 11, 2015, 4:54 am

Important Update

PLACEHOLDER

Code I acknowledge the fact that I have been gone for approximately a month.

To all those 10+ fresh sales I turned down, li knew the fact that I was busy and there were some intricate issues with the CVEs, which is why I did not accept any of those, knowing that I could not deliver till the issues have been dealt with.

I've been working hard round the clock for finding a fix for them. Till then, the thread will be closed and we will not accept any further sales. Another valid reason is that as of February I am a bit busy in my IRL life, so I will have less time to spare as compared to last year.

During my inactivity, questions about our legitimacy have been raised. It is only valid that this point should be noted against my inactivity. There has been a rogue customer, whom I assume used the very builder for mass spamming against my advice, (hence he got a detected binary) - but at the same time, it also ruined the CVE for other clients as the obfuscation methods used do overlap (after all, there are over a 100 customers with diff builders). I will be processing reFUDs for all the sales, although I cannot give an ETA on it, because we're at a standoff.

As for those who have contracted me while the CVE was actively being developed on, I will be processing partial refunds for them (only 2 instances of those).

Any future sales will only be processed via HF contracts to save us both the hassle. Deliveries will be done live, via Remote Desktop on the VMs/RDPs provided. But all of that will happen after I recode the exploit entirely. The sales thread is closed until further notice. I am active on ICQ/XMPP and all support will be handled there.

Thank you.The Most Awaited Exploit of the Year

Vouches

Spoiler (Click to View) Vouches are not necessary. $1500 is not a small amount, do your research and you will find out I'm legit.

I only include real customer/user vouches:

[* Layout/Design]

The layout and design of the software was easy and simple, although it could have been better. It gets the job done, and you can easily and efficiently tell where everything is.

[ Simplicity]

For something that was once so complicated, this tool made everything 100 times simpler! I can easily find everything in once nice orderly style, without having to use advanced root commands, that aren't noob friendly.

[ Overall]

Overall this tool was easy, efficient, simple, fast, and noob friendly. I wouldn't hesitate to purchase it at all, it was very usefull, and I plan to use it for a very long time!

(Aug 17, 2015 09:52 AM)Brother Mouzone Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Finally, someone selling an exploit at a price that is not so low as to raise suspicion ... with exploits, you get what you pay for.

I applaud Raymond Reddington for selling at a price that is realistic, rather than a price that gets the most possible sales. Prices like this sort the men from the boys ... so to speak.

I'd love to buy this and, if a few things fall into place, I will buy this!

(Aug 19, 2015 08:05 AM)Xsal_Ice Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Vouch for Raymond!
We are not friends or anything else and i dont dealt with him before but i know his products and we sometimes write about life.

I asked him some details and know exactly what exploit this is and how it is working.
My statement:

Its an old exploit but its re-fudded! So it has only 1-35 detection rate!
This exploit has an nice execution rate on all NON-updated Office 2007 and 2010 Versions
One of the only real silent exploits here! This is not crapshit like the silent bullshit builder from Money. Moneys bullshit builder makes a vbs file of your silent doc LOL.
It should be named EXE to VBS :D

Dont hesitate to buy this exploit! Its not crapshit macro with fake silent addon like money's and so on! This is real silent!

Vouch for this product and for Ray!

I agree i do not expect a 0day for 900$..

When i read your thread it seems i can exploit any windows who use MS 2003-2010 it is false for me.. Almost anyone have updated their system and these exploits are old and successful rate is not awesome.

You must mention in your thread that it will not work with patched systems.

Thanks for Translation Business.

My Answer, There are two types of exploits running in the market as of now.

1. Macro Exploit as sold by my fellow friend RagZorro And Money. They cost like $70-100ish. They use Macro Codes to run the payload. However this was fixed by all versions of Microsoft and as of now it displays a macro warning/popup before running the exe. Its not that effective for obvious reasons as no user will click yes to a "Malicious Warning box". Although some tricks are available to remove that warning like VBS scripts, but in my course of experince, I don't find them that effective.

My Silent Doc Exploit is fully Silent. No popups no shit, user runs the .doc file and he gets infected. Compatible with 32 and 64 bit Windows too.

This costs a bit high because its world's one of the most dangerous malicious exploits.

Thanks.

Finally, someone selling an exploit at a price that is not so low as to raise suspicion ... with exploits, you get what you pay for.

I applaud Raymond Reddington for selling at a price that is realistic, rather than a price that gets the most possible sales. Prices like this sort the men from the boys ... so to speak.

I'd love to buy this and, if a few things fall into place, I will buy this!

Vouch for Raymond!

We are not friends or anything else and i dont dealt with him before but i know his products and we sometimes write about life.

I asked him some details and know exactly what exploit this is and how it is working.
My statement:

Its an old exploit but its re-fudded! So it has only 1-35 detection rate!
This exploit has an nice execution rate on all NON-updated Office 2007 and 2010 Versions
One of the only real silent exploits here! This is not crapshit like the silent bullshit builder from Money. Moneys bullshit builder makes a vbs file of your silent doc LOL.
It should be named EXE to VBS :'D

Dont hesitate to buy this exploit! Its not crapshit macro with fake silent addon like money's and so on! This is real silent!

Just a heads up, I have found a cracked (free and available source code) version of a similar if not same software by using non-complicated Google Fu. Don't PM me about it but I found it within 5~10 minutes and supports up to 2013. I just wanted to let potential users know about this and that this user ~might~ just be reselling the same product under his own name.

I'm not looking to tarnish the OPs reputation or anything, his product might be unique and great, I haven't tested it, but I just wanted to make sure other users were aware.

Enough BS, I am done with posts like these Just fucking post the Public Version here and if it is FUD and the same as mine, I will give you a $1000 Bounty and take a ban from HF forever. I am not selling the product under my name, its is re coded from scratch in Python.

Bro do you even know what shit you are saying there?

Stop thrashing Rays product. Seems like you dont know how exploits work.

This is NOT a 0day. So SURE you find other exploits available which are using the same method (CVE). But all the free available on the internet are fuckin high detected and useless.

Here you pay for a FUD (yes, re-fudding costs time and money) exploit with a known CVE number. Not a 0day.

Still this is cheap and it works nice. The costs of the 0days are just other dimensions. You will never get a fresh and never used 0day exploit for 1k or less ?

Stop trashing sales when u even dont know what you speak about.

Stop thrashing Rays product. Seems like you dont know how exploits work.

This is NOT a 0day. So SURE you find other exploits available which are using the same method (CVE). But all the free available on the internet are fuckin high detected and useless.

Okay guys, If you dont understand the price Ill explain it to you. This is the ONLY almost FUD .doc exploit there on HF. Heres why:

- When you see some other exe to doc threads etc etc, they are selling macro generators, which are popping warning when the .docm is opened.
- This is not a MACRO, but real EXPLOIT. Its pretty old one, but this one was rewritten and refuted. Only few people are skilled enough to do this.
- If you ever wanted to make your .exe to look exactly and behave like .doc, this is it. FUD and completly silent.

Even tho I did not buy it, I can tell you, If you want to make your target open your virus, this will make it 99% success. Worth all the money!

Keep in mind, this is the only one out there on HF.

Step 3:- Make a community alert

Step 4 :- Get me closed.

Refuting the exploit is a tiring and effort taking job. People charge for effort. A software developer or a coder codes 8 lines of codes and charged a good amount. A business adviser says few lines of advice and charges few k;s $. I hope you understand what I mean.

Putting efforts, making it FUD and selling it which can do potential damage worth the money spent, wtf is wrong then?

And "To start, both of those exploits are patched" - Thank you for explaining us. People didn;t know when a CVE is released, cures comes for sure. I never mentioned its 0 day on the thread.

Good day. ?

What you guys think, let me explain in short.

It's about both. The exploit is PATCHED and doesn't work on anyone who has updated MS Word. The price for a PATCHED exploit is ridiculous.

POLY MATH - October 12, 2015, 11:32 am

I like Raymond and this isn't sales trashing but I must agree that this shit is overpriced. But, Raymond has the right to set the price to anything even $10k if he wanted. He never claimed it to be a 0-day or even FUD. He is completely frank about what he is selling and you can buy it or not. That's up to you.

Can you find better deals? Yes. But, if you don't know where to look welcome to the "front-end" of blackhat hacking. Where everything is either overpriced, old, or a scam.

Hypnotist - October 12, 2015, 11:34 am

I have to agree the pricing is a little odd for this exploit. Although I can see what Raymond is saying about it being FUD, got to respect him for trying. If he has had any sales Amen to that. I think the people that would buy this are the Bitcoin arabs you sometimes find, playing around with DarkComet. I'm not sales trashing btw, I support it entirely. I think it's the only one of it's kind being sold here, so if people can sell it FUD cheaper, then we will have some competition! Good luck ?

Please find us a better deal. I am the seller and I decide what the price will be. Who the fuck are you to appraise my product? Did I even ask for it?

The only thing that's ridiculous is you and the only this that is public is your mum to produce a non fud kid like you.

Fuck off!

I am currently using this exploit. Many of u will say I am in 'Legends' so I am just supporting the owner.

But you believe or not it is a good exploit for professional use. It is FUD which I haven't ever got one for free and neither will it be ever. It is completely on Raymond what prices he choose to sell. Its not like he is selling a cheap stuff at overpriced rate but this is just my opinion. You have all rights to verify his products before buying. I am fully satisfied thats all I wanna say.

Asorock - November 4, 2015, 7:31 am

Raymond, i'm waiting for you at skype. Please would you be kind enough to come online and attend to me.

Raymond, I waited you online at skype after I told you i have to uninstall the 2007 word in my system which you told me is patch and that the doc exploit won't work there, I went ahead to install the 2010 office which you recommended. I built the doc exploit , that's after the testing both my netwire and darkcomet raw files and confirmed they working perfectly well , and i got my direct download link modified with directexe.

I created the doc file and tried to run on sandboxie and even directly on my other system which have 2010 office word in it also. The doc exploit failed to execute my file and didn't report.

I also tested the doc file again in my friends system that have 2013 microsoft word install , and this again failed to report

Bro the only thing that shows up when ever the doc file is opened is putty page (sort of pong.exe) and not the crypted file. Please check this and come online at TV and fix this issue once and for all.

If you want to prove me wrong or to prove that this stuff works , then you can make a video showing how the .doc file execute a server file and reporting to a panel , maybe with darkcomet or netwire or any other RAT here, cos the video you posted here only shows the putty opening which got a sort of pong.exe of what i don't understand , and this is exactly what is when i created the doc file with my server " That's the putty sort of pony.exe showing up and nothing else happens , no server is executed.

I'm not happy at this , If you fix this , I will come back here to testify , and if not then I will not fail to voice out my anger. cos right now I'm not happy

Goldmine for the ones who know it's merit.

Waste of $1500 for the ones who have no idea what it is.

Can you tell me which one is CVE 2015 the 3 detections or 4 detections ?

Furthermore, will it work on only unpatched system or will it work on updated OS including Windows 10 aswell ?

Edit: I am still waiting for your reply. ?

Sorry for the delay, I was busy.

Its the CVE 2015 with two version of builders. The 4/35 is $1000.
and the 1-3/35 is $1500 [currently 2/35].

Works on unpatched systems only.

Windows 10 - Yes.

PS - don't forget to read the update at the bottom of the thread.

Most of the deals I have had were on jabber and skype. I don't remember their profile links, also many of them didn't even come to vouch back.

The ones who vouched on the thread are here itself, you can scan the thread to get their contacts.

However if they come here and admit they are a customer, I can pull records and verify it.

No, I used to, like months ago. That must be a very old version of the builder. Contact Owned and he will tell you. I have improved my python and obfuscation skills and I do it on my own now.

Here is a quote from him.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5054012&pid=48529001#pid48529001>

"i stopped selling exploit along time ago..... i used to sell codes to raymond months back but not anymore cos he has improved in his python skills and obfuscation method as well and i am in no way affiliated to his sales thread.....just cant understand why a lot of kill joy who cant be happy when a dude is making progress.....i have seen redbulls sales thread and all i can tell is a scared bitch/drama king who is trying to using this media to boost his sales thread cos this is no way to compete in the exploit market. OP is a disgrace to UB3R cos you dont deserve it cos i see this thread as LQ gosh"

Thank you.

Also, are you my customer?

No, I'm afraid you can't do that, because the document contains arbitrary header and codes which can not be edited. That's possible in a macro document, not in this silent one.

When the created doc is sent via email, does the exploit execute before the Word "Protected View" is enabled? For more "silent" exploits, if the user receives the doc via email, he has to click "Enable editing" before the exploit is launched, meaning its not really even silent. Very, very interested in purchasing, but need to know the answer to this.

The user doesn;t need to click anything at all.

No protected mode and no "Click to enable editing" shit.

He downloads it, opens it and the job is done.

Well if you were willing to email me the test.doc with the putty exe embedded to test out, I would be willing to purchase today.

Edit: I know your rep, and everything indicates you sell legit products. But this is still HF. I have spent hundreds, if not into the thousands now on crap. So this isn't an indictment on you, it necessary to protect myself.

You see that's the problem. Sending a sample from one of the builders means risking the whole FUD time for that particular piece of shell code. I would rather sell it to someone who trusts me and make some profit off it.

You can wait for reviews or trust your instincts.

Yeah, I understand that but this isn;t the way lol.

Yeah, I do honestly get that. You could always record placing the putty doc on a local webserver, and then downloading that doc from a browser. Since you downloaded from the internet - though it was a localhost server - that should trigger Word's Protected View and then we could see if Putty still launched.

Otherwise, I'll wait around for reviews. If anyone purchases and can vouch on the exploit working even with protected view enabled, I'd love to hear it.

Hey mate , are you sure its almost FUD?

I have bought OEBuilder V5 here ,then after paying 130$ it turned out to have 15/35 detection rate while the owner guaranteed that its 100% FUD !!

which makes it useless , I just burned my 130$!

It may have been an old one which was not updated and stated as FUD from a few years ago. Ray is active though and with this you get a builder created with a private code, meaning others can't ruin your FUD by scanning on distributing sites. Go through the reviews left here by others and see what they say.

Exactly.

I do not sell the same builder to some other guy. You are the sole owner and therefore keeping it fud is your responsibility.

Yes his silent exploit does that. Download and executes silently, the victim just need only open the document to get infected. I also need one. He told me over Jabber he's working on CVE 2015, he will resume sales next week

Also, if you smell something fishy and do not have confidence in your seller, I suggest you to find yourself another deal. How do you even know if its FUD or not? Do not make a comment if you don't know about it. Any other buyer can confirm I sell FUD builders only.

Currently, I am working on the new CVE to improve compatibility and stability. I will update this thread when it is ready for sale. This is not an easy pie.

Replied to your PM.

660 KB is the standard size and has nothing to do with the size of the stub. It will remain fixed.

Of course you are not sales thrashing. If you are going to spend like $1000 on something, you must investigate all of it. I don;t mind answering your questions.

There's a reason why I didn't send you the PM details. I sold the builder that was ready to someone else. And it was out of stock. I didn't want you to keep waiting after sending the payment.

I will send you PM shortly.

Many infact.

Generally who buy these kind of stuffs, don't brag about it or leave a review. The reasons are obvious.

Some do, and thread has vouches from a small fraction of my customers.

Read the entire thread, all pages. All of it. If you are spending $1000 over something, you ought to know the person and the product inside out.

I think that would answer your question.

[ Support]

Raymond Reddington was with me the whole time via Skype, and answered every question almost right after I asked them, do not hesitate to be curious (not sexually), with Raymond.

[* Layout/Design]

The layout and design of the software was easy and simple, although it could have been better. It gets the job done, and you can easily and efficiently tell where everything is.

[ Simplicity]

For something that was once so complicated, this tool made everything 100 times simpler! I can easily find everything in once nice orderly style, without having to use advanced root commands, that aren't noob friendly.

[ Overall]

Overall this tool was easy, efficient, simple, fast, and noob friendly. I wouldn't hesitate to purchase it at all, it was very usefull, and I plan to use it for a very long time!

I applaud Raymond Reddington for selling at a price that is realistic, rather than a price that gets the most possible sales. Prices like this sort the men from the boys ... so to speak.

I'd love to buy this and, if a few things fall into place, I will buy this!

My statement:

Its an old exploit but its re-fudded! So it has only 1-35 detection rate!
This exploit has an nice execution rate on all NON-updated Office 2007 and 2010 Versions
One of the only real silent exploits here! This is not crapshit like the silent bullshit builder from Money. Moneys bullshit builder makes a vbs file of your silent doc LOL.
It should be named EXE to VBS :'D

Hi there Mr Reddington I have some questions for your that I want to confirm.

1. Since these exploits that you are selling are already patched by Microsoft, does the endpoint you want to exploit have to be still vulnerable (not updated)?
2. If point 1 is the case, why do you sell a solution that you scripted in python to outdated CVEs for 1500$?

thanks.

(Aug 23, 2018 09:08 AM)el4zar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hi there Mr Reddington I have some questions for your that I want to confirm.

1. Since these exploits that you are selling are already patched by Microsoft, does the endpoint you want to exploit have to be still vulnerable (not updated)?
2. If point 1 is the case, why do you sell a solution that you scripted in python to outdated CVEs for 1500$?

thanks.

If the endpoint has the latest version of MS and the latest security patch applied to it, then it is only vulnerable to a 0-day vulnerability.

Let me give you a quick insight.

]Piracy rates for MSO in first world countries is a minimum of 24%. Developing countries, anywhere between 40-75% and not to mention 3rd world countries where it is over 80%. The exploit works on all pirated copies. ALL VERSIONS since they are devoid of any security patches.

Institutions generally prefer to have older stable versions of software suites rather than the most advanced ones. They also are ignorant enough to upgrade their infrastructures or upgrade MS Offices on thousands of PCs daily. That's the reason why most careless organizations are prone to vulnerabilities and end up getting hacked sooner or later.

An average consumer doesn't know or understand what vulnerabilities are out there so they don't care about updating their suites.

If you sum up the three factors, it equals to around 90% of all MSO's running out there. So, you are guaranteed to sort of gain results in most cases.

Now you ask why it costs so much?

CVEs are public. Not the exploit. What I mean is, its re-coded from ground which not only makes it non detected by AVs, but also better in terms of performance and reliability.

If you have a good knowledge of your target's machine, OS, MSO (basic info-gathering), you can pretty much deploy a targeted attack and gain desired results.

I hope I made it clear.

2. Just as you mentioned in the OP, will it be specifically private for me?
3. Is the price still the same?
4. Any other update or added info as of the present moment aside from what's stated in the OP?

Not sure why you need this, Raymond Reddington is selling this for long time and the product has been vouched. Worth to mention that no one else is selling FUD & silent exploit on hackforums. He has literally 0 competitors here.

(Aug 23, 2018 10:46 AM)Raymond Reddington Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hi, nice answer, sounds logical, But I disagree with you when it comes to the availability of the exploits on the internet, because you can get exploits for all of those CVE's the question is if your exploits are that expensive because of their "FUDness" or because of the way they are developed. Another question that I have. I have bought many products in the past here on this forum were the sellers claims that their macro or exploit is FUD, and in all of the cases I see that a lot of effort were put into developing the payloads, but in most of the cases Microsoft virus and threat protection on windows 10 would basically nail all of these payloads immediately. The question is what the status of your product is when it comes to AV detection and especially when it comes to Microsoft virus & threat protection. Thanks.

(Sep 12, 2018 07:42 AM)Dynamo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I wasn't going to call you out in your own thread. But then I saw the price you're charging.

You're asking people to pay $1500 BTC for 2017-11882, 2018-0802, and others? These CVE's already have free public PoC's.

This is just dirty.

I sometimes wonder why I take the time to respond to these posts while I have already addressed it in my previous posts. But then again, I guess I have to since some people definitely don't like to read the thread and jump to assumptions.

(Aug 23, 2018 10:46 AM)Raymond Reddington Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If the endpoint has the latest version of MS and the latest security patch applied to it, then it is only vulnerable to a 0-day vulnerability.

Let me give you a quick insight.

]Piracy rates for MSO in first world countries is a minimum of 24%. Developing countries, anywhere between 40-75% and not to mention 3rd world countries where it is over 80%. The exploit works on all pirated copies. ALL VERSIONS since they are devoid of any security patches.

Institutions generally prefer to have older stable versions of software suites rather than the most advanced ones. They also are ignorant enough to upgrade their infrastructures or upgrade MS Offices on thousands of PCs daily. That's the reason why most careless organizations are prone to vulnerabilities and end up getting hacked sooner or later.

An average consumer doesn't know or understand what vulnerabilities are out there so they don't care about updating their suites.

If you sum up the three factors, it equals to around 90% of all MSO's running out there. So, you are guaranteed to sort of gain results in most cases.

Now you ask why it costs so much?

CVEs are public. Not the exploit. What I mean is, its re-coded from ground which not only makes it non detected by AVs, but also better in terms of performance and reliability.

If you have a good knowledge of your target's machine, OS, MSO (basic info-gathering), you can pretty much deploy a targeted attack and gain desired results.

I hope I made it clear.

Just because the CVE listed can be googled does not mean that the same public code PoC is being sold. I'll leave this post here:

(Jun 7, 2015 09:12 AM)NTTITONV199 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is what happens when you sell on HF. You post public CVE for reference and people think it's a scam considering the exploits are public. What are they expecting, 0 days for $500??? They're fucking retards.

Feel free to go ahead and compile it, you'll get a 25/30 .doc that is not even utilizable (in a more realistic sense, not just for testing on a VM with AV's disabled) at all. Here what I offer since 3 years is a FUD exploit. Completely re-written/recoded as a sequential exploit affecting all attack avenues listed, with support for memory injection, customizable content, and other private plugins/add-ons.

Once again I've stated several times that anyone who will compile the exact same exploit will receive a $1000 bounty reward. Which isn't possible at all since you won't get a public exploit having all 6+ CVEs hardcoded with the specialization I offer.

(Sep 20, 2018 03:16 PM)blitzblitz001 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hi Red . Does this exploit bypass protected view? Yes or No

Protected view only occurs when the [ZoneTransfer] section of your alternate NTFS file stream allocates the transfer zone identifier ZoneId=3,4 on any file. So if you are bringing the binary in from a non-local or restricted network/sites, it will be triggered. But zone ID=0,1,2 are safe and have been used for targeted deployment on local/trusted networks by several campaigns.

It is not a simple yes or no answer, nor are the products being offered here considered simple in any aspect as compared to public PoCs, shared access exploits & low-quality macro exploits. Its possible to avoid, yes. One method involves the usage of Spearphishing and phishing techniques to circumvent it. Alternatively, a toolkit can be built around the likes of changing and/or removing the zoneID on runtime without executing the binary at all, but by using a loader sequence.

Another method includes executing ZoneID removal processes - facilitated through PowerShell within your binary itself on first execution.

Code Remove-Item .\install-file -Stream Zone.Identifier

If not, versions without the protected view are also possible (near the likes of 0days), but they will cost over a minimum of $25k and maximum/exact prices & costs incurred will be determined at the end of creation. Let me know on Jabber (with OTR only).

please after exploiting exe file to doc can it bypass gmail scanner??

Amphitrite - November 21, 2018, 12:33 am

Just so I be sure i understood everything.

$1500 for the builder.

If it gets detected, you pay $1000 for another Builder.

And that continues for subsequent detects right?

That means its a one time buy with any update after detection $1000.

That to say each builder is private and coded for specifically for each customer, right?

Yes, its a one time payment for the builder with varying prices for reFUDs and modifications (custom plugins etc). The maximum price for any reFUD/recode will be less than $1k for returning customers, yes. The detections acquired on any builder will vary on the usage of the file.

Does your software work around patched systems? All of the listed CVEs have patches that are forced updates.

Hi, Raymond.

When you are online, Let me know.

I don't want to tell all details here.

Lord Agrippa III - December 18, 2018, 8:48 am

Quite expensive regarding it gets detections and also microsoft forced updates. I will buy if the price is reduced.

What you're seeking is easily worth over tenfold of the asking price here. Not impossible but definitely a new level of difficult.

He is no longer a customer. Underpaid, received several support sessions and reFUDs and couldn't do anything on his own. There's just so much time, resources and money you can spend for a single client, who hasn't even paid the full price.

(Jan 21, 2019 12:34 PM)officeunit247 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) is your tool still FUD? i need a fresh proof.. this is 2019 and Microsoft people are not sleeping, they roll out updates everyday..

It is FUD, yes. As told, there is no/only one detection on all builders made

(Jan 21, 2019 12:52 PM)J.P.Belmondo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I believe that this is not Oday and it will work only on unpached windows and office. OP correct me if im wrong

Yes correct, it is a CVE-based exploit. Odays are at a whole new higher price level. Please refer to my previous post regarding this topic:

What happens when the .docx gets detected? How much is refud for the builder?

Also, does the user need the whole microsoft office installed or just microsoft word?

So let me get this right, you want us to pay $1500 for a builder that may or may not be fud?
Because all of your previous posts say 0-2/22.

Because all of your previous posts say 0-2/22.

You can negotiate with me directly for a reFUD when it gets detected. Price is determined upon extent of usage & detections, so it will vary.

Microsoft Word is fine, since all required protocols for the exploit are within MS Word itself.

I am not telling it may or may not be FUD. It is always delivered at 0-1/35. (not 22). Points to be noted:

- The payment is for a FUD silent doc with the CVEs listed,
- I personally attach a scan of the DOC from each builder with the builder files itself. Delivery is only done when the product is FUD else sale offer is declined.

- The subsequent FUD lasts depending on a variety of factors like usage, extent of usage, etc. My posts show experimental builds from different versions of the exploit. To be noted there have been over several different versions of different builders operating on unique CVEs for the 3 years that my product has been running.

There's a reason why I have the sale thread open since 3 years, and its because I always. deliver. quality.
