

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Question about complaining

Lipton's Ice Tea™ - August 11, 2015, 11:54 am

I've seen on a couple of forums that have been advertised on HF people that have literally come over there and as it's 95% people on HF they have started complaining about certain things at HF including being repfucked.

As it's publicly complaining about being repfucked but it's not on HF - is that allowed or disallowed?

King of Hearts - August 11, 2015, 11:55 am

If it's not on HF, I doubt the staff will care. It doesn't affect the running of this forum in any way (other than maybe lose potential members, but staff can't do anything about it).

Good rule of thumb: If it's off site, staff will most likely not get involved.

Lipton's Ice Tea™ - August 11, 2015, 11:59 am

(Aug 11, 2015 11:55 AM)King of Hearts Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If it's not on HF, I doubt the staff will care. It doesn't affect the running of this forum in any way (other than maybe lose potential members, but staff can't do anything about it).

Good rule of thumb: If it's off site, staff will most likely not get involved.

This is what I thought. Just wanted to clarify.

Aurora - August 11, 2015, 12:12 pm

HF rules apply if you're on the HF site. Other forum rules apply to their own sites. ?

My Dixie Normous - August 11, 2015, 12:20 pm

Lol staff here don't police the internet they can only take action against members if they break a rule on site.

Vagina?????? - August 11, 2015, 12:40 pm

As long as you aint on HF complaining is fine. That is almost all I see in Optimized's E-Whore Chat.

Sir - August 11, 2015, 12:49 pm

I don't see any problem with it considering it isn't happening on-site.

People bitch about getting rep-fucked literally every time it happens, nothing new.

!!* Alone Vampire *!! - August 11, 2015, 1:19 pm

Staff will only get involved if a member breaks rules on site.