Thread: [Scammed by an unknown user \[Skype infos\]](#)

tp4019 - August 12, 2015, 10:27 am

Hi!

Someone bought my e-book (I got on my signature) and he started crying like it's not working and stuff (Which is lie, you can ask the buyers and the vouchers) and he demanded a refund!

I asked him to try do what I told him and if he wouldn't get the skins in the price he bought the e-book within one day, I would refund him !

He didn't even try, he did chargeback at the same time and he got my 20€ !

skype username : need4.speed

So deal with caution guys !

gore - August 12, 2015, 10:45 am

From searching in HF, this is him - M0untain Dew

Proof - <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=3775911&highlight=Need4.speed>

Also might want to remove the IP, as that's his personal info.

M0untain Dew - August 12, 2015, 10:48 am

First of all I didn't scam him at all. The method does not even work, the website involved does not even let you withdraw skins and is a complete rip off. Check the steam discussion group OP. Also, OP remove my ip or I will release your shitty non-working ebook to everyone.

Well two wrongs don't make a right there, mister ?

Proof of it not working without leaking?

Did you wait the one day like OP said? Or did you just give up and automatically chargeback?

Vagina?????? - August 12, 2015, 10:52 am tbf no e-books really work at all imo but OP you shouldn't be selling e-book that don't work. That in itself is scamming as you are misleading the user.

Also remove his IP. Having that on here is harrassment.

Finally, if the deal was done off site, you should keep it off site imo.

1. We have no proof whether it does or does not work. OP says it does, Mountain Dew says it doesn't. There's no way to prove it without leaking it.
2. I'm sure he'll remove it when he gets back online.
3. If the deal was done off site... How does it tie back to OPs ebook thats advertised here on HF?

:OMG: because they talked via Skype? If that's the case, 99% of the scam reports here are invalid. If it doesn't originate back to HF, that's different. Or if it's from another forum.

:OMG:

OP was selling an ebook ON HACKFORUMS.

Mountain Dew most likely just added him on Skype and the deal went from there, but the ebook is from here, both members are from here, therefor the deal originated here.

It would not be HF-related if they just added each other on Skype and exchanged the info without it being on HF, or if it was from another forum.

This is a legit dispute and it is tied to HF.

He loses the $20+ you spent to get the method, and even if you say it "doesn't work", you still have his method and his money.

No, as I said multiple times, if you waited that 1 day and then he made an excuse to not refund you even when you had a deal, you'd have a legitimate case against this and wouldn't be 100% in the wrong.

But you didn't even give OP the chance to go through with the deal and refund you, so now he got fucked because you couldn't wait for whatever reason.

This is some good advice.

I wouldnt say 99%, but more like 90%. How do I know? Well, a lot of ebooks from this website and some other forum(I think its KF? or something like that) often get leaked, and while most ebooks are bullshit 1/10 is actually good.
