A Instagram Turboer attempts to change your username and keep on retrying so when an username becomes available, your username is instantly changed to that new username.

Does this still work well? Looking for a very fast turbo (better than insteal) which doesnt crash. Bare in mind that I like to run 80+ turbos at a time, will the program be able to handle that and run quickly? I also would require it to never crash??

Also generally how many turbos should I run on each name to secure me getting it? I normally run 3-4 but this looks promising and fast so might not have to.

Also does it still have the same interface it had when you made the thread? looks neat

Yes this still works well and I have not bought Insteal so I do not know how to compares to it but this turboer is VERY fast. You could run 3-4 but running at most two should be enough. As for the interface, it is the same as in the video. Neat and simple, yet effective.

It's as fast as it can be with Instagram's new rate limit. Instagram will block your IP if you request too many attempts every second. There's no bypass to this.

No Instagram Turboer can exceed the number of attempts per second that you're getting with this one. If they are then they are artificially inflating the number of attempts. The number of attempts on the video was before the Instagram rate limit was putt into place.

Instagram placed a rate-limit so the speed it is at right now is the fastest that it can be without your IP being blocked. Any other turboers that are faster than what this turboer provides is simply artifically increasing the number of attempt counter.

I bought this product, and it works, but it's not very practical. You would need to run your computer for weeks if not months to get a username you wanted.

If you're logging to your Instagram account from a different IP then you might be hit with a Instagram verification verifying that it's actually you. You would have to log into Instagram directly from your RDP's browser and verify. This is just how Instagram functions.

The license you have is bound to one PC since we are using HWID based logins.

I emailed you 3 weeks ago regarding this issue but you didn't respond after your initial one sentence reply so i've had to post here.

I can't log into any account on your turbo (meaning that I can't use it). After I type the username and password the program just closes and doesn't do anything. I've already logged into the accounts in my browser so that's not the issue. It also seems to do this even if the username and password are completely wrong? Not sure what else I can actually do but the turbo is useless until some kind of fix is found.

I have released an update that should fix this issue. Just reopen the program and it should say an update is available.

A lot of people had success with this turboer! Don't get left out and fail in snatching Instagram usernames!

Secret Agent - October 22, 2018, 11:53 pm

Turboer allows you to snatch a username when they change their username.

For example, lets say you turbo the username JasonDerulo. If JasonDerulo changes his username, your Instagram username will instantly change to JasonDerulo.
