Update

I have decided to make this crypter have an even longer FUD time by only selling to members who know what they are doing this does not mean I won't sell to you if you have 0 rep you just need to know basic stuff. I will make less profit like this but it is not important.

Will work on this soon but here is an old runtime scan keep in mind that it is scanning darkcomet which is detected in memory more easily:

Updated runtime scan 100% bypass with darkcomet no startup.

yeah but what was his reasoning for the prices, also whats the longest amount of days it has been fud

i mean yeah its a good crypter but i wouldnt call it "150$ for life" good here let me explain why, the product isnt from a "well known" hf member we dont know the past experience of the coder and also its not a well vouched crypter and it only has a handful of options not even "cryptex Reborn" is that expensive (coder made refud.me) and it has over 1.6k customers now im not trashing your product infact its a great crypter but if you want to bring in customers, maybe in the future it will be 150$

bakasura - September 2, 2015, 6:29 pm

More customers don't necessarily mean a good product. Especially when it comes to FUD life. Worse is the attitude of most of them who don't even bother to give an estimate when the new fix is coming. I have been through many crypters here and it has been utter waste of money so far barring one or two cases.

Big vouch for Sanch here. Quality product and good support. I am certain very soon his product will be a very popular choice here.

but do you own cryptex to say it's a utter waste of money and i personally do think it matters because if you have more customers the quicker it becomes detected right?? Wrong well he has 1.6k customers and the longest fud time is 22 customers

Assuming you're talking about Cryptex Reborn. Then, Yes. I think the main issue was .NET dependency. I prefer native. I was in a hurry and purchased without going through all the details. The developers are good guys, they responded on skype and helped me through configuration options. The crypter itself is loaded with features.

They added extra days to my license for the time lost (one of them had some emergency and wasn't around to refund) and even enabled my license to use on a second machine. But none of it matters if the crypter file isn't FUD or doesn't remain FUD for long. .NET dep was also a thorny issue. I'd rather pay a little more and get a private set of stubs.

Haste, Now let me tell you something, I have asked you share the LL settings many time for your crypter but you never shared it with me.

This may be working because you did opt for almost nothing in LL server builder - no RING3, nothing else, if we are not using these features provided by RAT then what is the use of crypting LL.

It seems it works after seeing at your pic, should have discussed it with me on skype and we were never fussing about this topic today.

You have to use the install feature of the crypter not of LL. I don't know if you have to disable the ring 3 test it.

He will refund you if it didn't work with your file. He refunded me previously cause it crash netwire on startup.

Note: This crypter corrupts netwire on startup regardless of if you use install on rat, or on crypter.

Also it apparently doesn't work with LL unless you use startup on crypter and not rat (It's advised to NEVER use startup on crypters unless it's an absolute last resort, common knowledge)

Just saying that if you use the Startup in LL its most likely detected Runtime by the AV.

You used the Startup Option? Then your .exe executes at starting Windows.

Probably because this crypter causes some rats to crash on startup (netwire for example).

Always test your exe in a virtual machine on startup before using it.

I was hoping to buy it but coder does not sell the crypter anymore and says project isn't supported.
