Thread: Red Lions - Recruitment Closed | Official HF Group

!!* Alone Vampire *!! - September 2, 2015, 2:11 am

Thanks to Glassy for the layout.

[img]http://k.min.us/ixnWAS7QxFeP.gif[/img]

Now Recruiting

Requirements Must be a member of HF for at least 3 full months.

Must provide five quality contributions in application.

Must have a warning level of 0% (You can still apply with warnings, but be sure it's 0% when we accept members)

No spamming/low quality posting.

No open/unresolved scam reports.

You may have negative reputations but they will be reviewed on a case to case basis.

What are the Red Lions?

The Red Lions are a group of high quality members who will work together to make HackForums a better place. We will veil the marketplace, report spam, illegal products, sales trashers and the desires that signify the discomposure of Hackforums. We will help each and every member with the aspects of Hackforums, by knowing all rules, policies, and everything within the Help Docs. We will understand and verse in your subject areas. The Red Lions are expected to conduct maturely forum-wide, with no exemptions. We do not endorse of trolling, along with members who flame consistently. We've gained what we have given, that is respect. With that we turn average members into Red Lions.

Current Leaders

!!* Alone Vampire !!

iHydra

These are the only people who can either accept or decline you from the group.

What to do after you apply

1. Do not private message leaders if your application hasn't been dealt with.
2. If you have any questions feel free to contact !! Alone Vampire !! or iHydra
3. Every application will be dealt with in a timely manner.
4. If declined, feel free to reapply next recruitment unless instructed otherwise.
5. If accepted, read all of the stickies before posting.
6. If you are applying, only post once. Nothing else but your application should be posted.
7. Do not apply via CP or you will be declined.

Remember joining a group is strictly a privilege, leaders are not obligated to accept new members. Applications will be reviewed in time and selection will be more strict. Recruitment will end when I feel it is time to do so, don't ask when. If you're not selected, just re-apply another time.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I would love to join Red Lions as I'd love to contribute towards the members of the group's projects and It looks to be a active group full of HQ members.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: Not sure as I'm unsure what they are.

Ninetales. - September 2, 2015, 2:19 am

Woah, a RL recruit thread. Didn't think I'd see the day.

Obli - September 2, 2015, 2:22 am

What are some of your skills?: Debating, being an annoyance, did some pretty private psychological stuff that I can tell you guys about but in private.

How can you contribute to the group?: Discussing stuff with people, helping them understand themselves, their issues, other's issues, and being supportive overall. I'd just be the guy hanging around, a benefactor of our age... haha.

Links to any contributions: None of large importance, but I was the first marketer for OMC, did a lot of trading, did a few giveaways, etc..

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I don't really know. Back in the day, I knew that all groups were corrupt, aside from yours, and I'm saying this with no intent to dickride you, but that's the whole reality of things. You guys seem like people I'd like to frequent; Not doing anything 'overkill', like extreme presence over HF, and giving away stupid stuff, but doing things that matter, helping out people for the sake of helping, and not for the sake of the group's name; Helping people, because they're people, and not because the group's membership implies this as a mandatory thing. I knew that Red Lions was the only really 'decent' group, not because nokia is fucking loaded IRL, but more because I never saw any corruption (I saw corruption within ALL groups aside from fbn, and I've seen my good share of things), and people never had any hidden intents; as insignificant as I may come off, this was always something, or at least, the 'one' thing I wanted to accomplish on HF, I want to be a part of it. If you review my previous posts, you'll notice I only really recently came back to the forums, I'm not trying to excuse lack of contributions, or activity for that matter, but what I am trying to say is that my intents are more 'honest', and true to the group's purpose, than the intents of someone who applies providing a list of giveaways for l33ts and ub3rs; I've done that, I mean, I've made plenty of giveaways, but then again, those giveaways only indicate to complete hypocrisy as people use them, or well, used them to acquire reputation.

In short terms, I want to be a part of you, because I believe that we may hold similar ideals. I don't really care about the userbar, wouldn't really apply only for a shiny bar under my name, but being a part of something like that is... well, the only real purpose I find on this forums. Being true to yourself, to others, and not a hypocritical abusive member is my top priority.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As much as it's needed.

Name: My friends call me Liu.

Age: 24.

Country/State: Originally from Canada.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: Defeatist, narcissistic at times, devolved into debates and discussions to the point of being a bit aggressive but in a respectful way and in good spirits, supportive, gentle and kind to the people who deserve it... Let's see... deductive, analyzes everything that goes around, keeps a check on other people, and goes into their thinking patterns to understand their next few steps forward in time. A good friend to those who prove to be of worth, and biased to the end to those who offend his loved one. Other than that, I'd say that I'm like your average Joe, outside of those characteristics.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 8. I know how to write and all, but I'm sure that at some point I'll make a stupid mistake; although mistakes like 'should of' 'could of' do annoy me, I'm not likely to point those out at any given time except if it's really pressed on.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Red Lions is the longest surviving group on the forum and I'd consider it a great forum achievement to join. When they were active, the quality of their public releases was outstanding and I want to join to be a part of this if it's restarting. I rarely apply for groups never mind revisiting an application so often.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I'm rarely offline and reachable whenever. I have no commitments other than Uni so I'm going to say plenty.

Name: Andrew

Age: 18

Country/State: Turkey/United Kingdom (long story)

In one paragraph, describe your personality: Definitely one of the quieter types but I love making friends and working as a group. Huge believer in sharing knowledge and the best way to learn is from each other. Many come to me for advice and help so I see myself as an approachable & friendly guy. It's why I make everything I release 100% open source as everything should be up for discussion/improvement. That said, I consider myself helpful to all which probably explains why 1.3k of my 1.6k posts are in the .NET section.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

To be honest people have been talking about this group as being a dead group and when I say that I mean the sub-forum showing up with large amounts of inactivity. I would like to change that perception and view the people have on the group a little bit and bring some life to it. Although I do not have every day to devote to the forums like I used to, I am still relatively active. I am eager to participate in whatever the group is going to be doing next, seeing as though a good start was making a recruitment thread. I thought I might as well take advantage of this opportunity and submit an application.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

As much as I can for now, as the winter season approaches I will have more and more time to put towards whatever need be. For now I am working over 115 hours a week.

MeshCollider's Application Name: MeshCollider

Age: 17

Country/State: New Zealand

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I would describe myself as slightly introverted, I consider myself intelligent, and I learn quickly. I have a good sense of humour and enjoy spending time with friends. I really enjoy learning new things, a lot of subjects interest me, and that is probably why I like computer science so much - it is an area of growth and research, and there is always more to learn. I also love learning languages, mathematics, sciences and philosophy to name a few. I always put effort into making my work the best it can be, I try hard to manage my time well, and I am not motivated by money or fame - rather I am motivated by knowledge. Hence, I do not sell any projects on HF but instead work in groups to learn and help others simultaneously. I would say I was mature and respectable in all areas, I do not troll or flame, instead I look to assist others wherever I can.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 10 (I am an editor for the HFNT)

What are some of your skills?: I can code in multiple programming languages (including languages from OOP, imperative and functional paradigms). I have a good knowledge of computer security and 'hacking'. I also know quite a bit about cryptocurrencies, as alluded to by my involvement in the Omnicoin Team.

How can you contribute to the group?: Activity, member quality, and participation in projects are the things I can offer. I enjoy partaking in group discussions and activities, and would be an active member in the subforum. I would continue to produce tutorials and assistance, thereby reflecting well on the group. I will also happily help out with group projects (as long as they are in areas related to my abilities). I believe any member of Diving could vouch for the fact that I am one of the most active partakers in group communities and discussions.

In your group description, you mentioned that you work together to make HF a better place. I believe I also contribute to making HF a better place. I have helped report many members/posts breaking site rules including members attempting to infect others with malware. I have never had a scam report against me, and easily meet all the requirements you listed. I have shown below that I have already given a huge amount of time to this forum. Overall, I am a very active, friendly, helpful and HQ member.

I don't think many members can claim that a plugin they wrote is installed on the largest MyBB forum on the internet :)

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I have been in many groups over my time at HF (Specialists, Divine, Debug, Null, Titans, Polymath, Echo, Crypto, The Brotherhood and Revolution, as well as numerous offsite groups), and can tell by the longevity of Red Lions that it isn't just a buy-and-sell money making venture for the leader. I want to be part of a group which has a good history, a high quality member base, and a promising future. By the fact that you have opened up a recruitment thread, I can tell that the group is aiming to grow - so I want to be a part of it. I don't just join groups for the userbar, I join them because of what they can offer me and I can offer them. To be a part of Red Lions is a symbol of prestige, and all the members I know in the group are HQ, so I would love to join your ranks.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I have a busy schedule, I am sitting full time university at the same time as my final year of school + scholarship subjects, so my free time varies from day to day. In general, though, I will be able to find time to participate actively in the group and its activities, and will let you know if there are periods of time I may have to be inactive for.

Thank you for reading and considering my application. I put a lot of effort into this, so I hope I am accepted ?

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Red Lions is a prestigious group in my eyes simply because their member base consists of only the top elite on HF. With that being said, I don't consider myself in the same ballpark as any of the current members of the group, but I'd like to think they'd give me chance to prove myself and see that I'm the kind of member that goes above and beyond when I'm given the opportunity. So many users are desperately trying to get accepted into Red Lions simply for the userbar, that makes m absolutely sick. That just goes to show you the type of individuals we have on these forums. I'm an active member of the community and I think my skills will be beneficial to your group. Hopefully, when you read this you think about perhaps giving me a chance to prove myself and I'm 110% sure you'll be extremely happy with the results. Thank you to the leaders of Red Lions for hosting this recruitment and thank you again for taking the time out of your busy schedules to read my application. If any questions arise, you can contact me via PM or ask for my Skype through PM. Thank you and have a great day.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I can dedicate as much time is needed after I'm finished with work for the day. Usually working until 4PM EST, so until 11PM EST I can be on call available. I can also be reached all day on Skype.

Country/State: United States of America, PM me for the state.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I'm the kind of person that never settles for good. Everything I've ever done online or in person has been to the best of my abilities and I pride myself on just that. Character says a lot about a person and if settling for things is alright with you, I feel very sorry for you. I'm very laid back when talking with friends or playing Xbox with them as it's a fun experience and there's no need for negativity and rage. I'm also fairly difficult to upset in anyway shape or form. I don't hate anyone, but I'm sure I could name a few individuals that I strongly dislike. In my eyes, hating someone is a waste of energy. I just continue to live my life and they continue to live theirs and never our paths shall cross. That just about sums up my personality. I live by the saying treat people the way you'd like to be treated because it's a two-way street with that rule of thumb. Treating people the way you'd like to be treated doesn't always work out for you in the long run, but whoever was being an asshole to you in the first place will get theirs in the end. As stated above, thank you leaders of Red Lions for hosting this recruitment and thank you for reading up on my personality. I hope I've convinced one or two of you to give me the opportunity to show my skill set in this prestigious group. Everyone have a great day and I look forward to possibly chatting with you all.

@NEGRO - September 2, 2015, 6:00 am

What are some of your skills?:

I would say in general I'm adept in several fields given that I have had a variety of experiences in my life that have attributed to a well-rounded background. As a kid I was forced to do a lot of academically inclined activities, including math competitions such as the AMC 10 and I qualified all the way up to the USAJMO level. I pursued this math ambition from late elementary school until around sophomore year in high school, where I decided that my math progression wasn't going to benefit me if I kept on accelerating; by the time I was a junior I had run out of math classes because I had already completed BC Calculus (and gotten a 5 on the exam ;3). Nonetheless - this helped foster an innate problem solving ability which I find helpful in all fields since I had to do a lot of computation and problem solving at a young age.

I'm a producer as well. In my free time I mess around in my studio which I have set up in my basement and make beats and kill them with logic pro x. I have a bunch of friends come over with similar musical ambitions and we can make some pretty neat stuff - I wouldn't mind sharing some of the stuff I've made with you guys. I've written a lot of raps and music in class and in my free time as one of the forms to truly express my feelings without "fronting." I personally feel many of the situations we encounter day to day involve us playing a false persona, and I got frustrated with this and found music as an avenue to escape and find freedom; which is why I still pursue this art today.

Given my 14 AP classes taken in all of high school and 34 on the ACT, I have a lot of background knowledge as those courses have required me to read a lot. I'm an avid read, speaking of which, and I spend a lot of my time reading. I'm a self acclaimed speed reader and can read around 450 words per minute, which isn't great but it's definitely faster than the average. Currently my favorite book is 48 Laws of Power by Robert Greene - has a lot of aphorisms in it which I follow daily. Also the Art of Seduction by Robert Greene is an interesting read and helps give a lot of insight into the psychology of male and female actions.

Finally, I would say I'm a decent entrepreneur, however i'd have to let others decide. I flip a lot of items, including clothing (specifically supreme, I have a few bots and every Thursday me and my partner manage to grab the most hyped pieces and resell them for almost 100% profit). I also sell a lot of usernames on here, you can check my threads out for all the sales I have made. I have the hustler mindset, which is why I am so enthralled with producing and MCing in general as well.

tldr; i have a variety of analytical skills and can use many programs which could be handy in accomplishing many tasks efficiently.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I think one contribution I can make to red lions is helping the marketplace become a safer area. Having a free of charge MM system (although there are a lot in place already) in the name of red lion would help ensure that no one gets scammed, and since I can be online on hackforums nearly all the time since my job permits me too and so do my activities, I would be available to help mentor this service. Helping make the market place area more secure is one of my primary goals since, as you can tell by my posts, its my most active section. I get a lot of people who back out of deals randomly for no reason and obviously they have malicious intentions. Having a prompt way to complete trades between users would help encourage the market to grow on HF rather than shrink.

I am in general not a stickler for rules, however the rules enforced on HF help with the organization and function of the site, therefore I would help uphold these rules in the name of the group. I think that this is a dynamic issue that has a dynamic answer as HF changes as a forum - for example, right now groups are in a low spot, so having a strong pool of Red Lion applicants that can join and help make a significant impact on the forum would help bolster the name of groups in general.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I would like to join Red Lions because most of the groups on Hack Forums represent an elitist hierarchy that I don't want to take apart of. They don't have any projects or do anything as a group together to help the forum - which is a fundamental flaw in the concept of groups. I think groups should enhance the usability and vibration of the forum and I strongly believe I could be a viable asset for red lions in this instance.

I would also actively participate and start discussions in the SF that are interesting and pertinent, which I think would fuel healthy relationship among group members. Once group members are more close knit (which I'm sure they are in such an exclusive group), team synergy will allow for effective consultation of plans to help make this place better :)!

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

I can devote 20 hours - 30 hours a week solely on hack forums, but I can always adjust my schedule accordingly - I would say that is one of my strong personality traits.

Name: Shield

Age: 18

Country/State: USA

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I would say that I am an introverted person by nature. As I talked about in my skills part of the application, I was raised in a very math oriented family which contributed to my nerdy-side, but it also turned me into a diligent, focused problem solver. I made friends with such people in my early years of public education who all were usually social outcasts - luckily I broke out of that group in high school but reconnected with them in senior year after we had all matured and I had gone through my whole pothead phase (not sure if it's done yet lol). Anyways, I really dislike fake people and artificial personas, just fakery in general, which is why I get aggravated by many people on this forum and in real life. I follow my own set of values and beliefs since I know what best works for me, and I don't take criticism from others seriously since most just talk out of their ass anyways. I'm a sociable person and love to make intellectual conversation, solve problems, and help people. I also love reading books and discussing them with people because I feel like it's a good way to bounce ideas off each others, and what is more important in this day and age than ideas?

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 7, 8.5 when I proof read but I honestly could perfect any conventions to the highest degree if it were really necessary.

Best of luck to everyone applying.

What are some of your skills?:

My skills are.

-Games: I usually game quite a lot and have a vast knowledge about gaming and it's history, since I have been a gamer since I was 6 years old. I just love it and I don't think I will ever stop till I am dead.

-Movies: I am a HUGE movie fan since I have a very big knowledge about movies and all their histories ect ect. I am mostly into all movies but my fave genres are Action and War. :D
I have watched so many movies in my time and I guess I have lost count.

-Music: I have a good knowledge of music since I listen to a lot of music everyday for the past 22 years of my life. :D

I like to listen to all music but Metal is my strong point. :D

What are some of your skills?: I'm a software developer. I work mostly with VB.Net but sometimes also with AutoIT. Besides that I'm also an investor as I put some money in projects I believe in, waiting for a return.

How can you contribute to the group?: I can contribute to the group in 3 ways: Coding - Using my skills to work in some projects you just might have.

Lounge - As I also have an official group here, I'm used to bring some activity by opening discussion threads about numerous topics.

Funding - If necessary I can help with money.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Well first of all for the same reason most of the users that applied have said: because Red Lions is the only remaining group from the old times of HF. As an user that is on HF for around 5 years I miss those days and so I'd like to be a member of this historical group.

Secondly, I've noticed one of the things you guys do in the group is to find scammers and idiots and expose them to the community (I'm sick of so many scammers and skids lately so I'd really love to help with that).

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As a group owner myself and a coder, I am online almost 24h so I can devote many hours to HF and the group.

Red Lions to me is the most unique group on the forum and in the eyes of many, is the "perfect" group. Unlike the other groups, only the best of the best can get in and this is why it's such a high quality group. Whenever I see a post from a member of Red Lions, I know that I can expect a high quality post and will always read it from start to finish. Sometimes, I feel like I'm a reflection of a Red Lions member, in a different condition. I can relate to a lot of things that the group do and I often find myself doing the same - Helping others out / Bringing goodness to the forum / High quality posts.

I almost feel like I belong in this group and it is perfect for me. As of right now, I've been involved in a misunderstanding but I plan to get this all fixed soon and then hopefully, the leaders can see for themselves that what I am saying is true. Right now my eyes are set on getting into this group and I hope this can have even the slightest effect on my chance.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: However much is necessary, I'm on pretty much everyday and every night, even when I'm out, I have my phone on me and can continue to work on whatever it is that needs working on and helping others out / replying to their posts and messages.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10:

What are some of your skills?:

I am a marketer and I am currently studying program/website development in Amsterdam. I have studied psychology in high school because I was a volunteer in a program against bullying. as I was bullied myself I knew exactly how these kids thought and felt. During this study I learned how to get someones trust by talking to them in certain ways and how to change the state of mind.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I am planning on making a few help desks for people to ask questions or just privately chat with me if they have any problems. I am willing to put this under the name of Red Lions. My other contributions really depend on the tutorials/help desks/give-aways I am going to do/release.

I had a big period where I was just not serious enough on here. I really wanted to change that around. I started lurking around and reporting a lot of posts and member that where not obeying the rules that HF has. I started to learn all the HF rules and tried to bring justice to the people that where not respected or not treated right.

I think that Skorp and or F8 can back me up on how many PM's I sent them reporting, leakers, Multi accounters, Grave diggers, Really offensive threads, etc etc.

I just wanted to explain my negative reputation. As it is stated in the requirements that it's allowed but it will be reviewed.

A lot of time I got in a discussion with thread owners that though they knew the rules. They then got mad at me for either reporting them or telling them that certain things where not allowed.

In one paragraph, describe your personality:

I can never say no to my friends, enjoy the occasional discussion concerning realistic topics that either involve politics or what ever that could be. I like dogs more than cats but do not hate any animal and browse 4chan.org at least once a day. And yes, I do laugh at gore because it is funny aside from anything related to children.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10:

English is not my native language however I would rate it around 7-ish. I will never say my English is perfect yet from my end it seems to beat most of the grammar people on this site have, or at least those who I have seen.

What are some of your skills?:

My skills are mostly around *Nix systems. Either it is debugging problems and fixing them or with setting up and configuring various applications. That at least is where my expertise lies, but other subjects are not completely dead to me and on case to case basis I could jump in to assist in something I either know or have previously needed to do myself and that could be more than just a little bit as I've been playing with, fucking up and starting over with different types of operating systems for the past 7-8 years. I'm not useless when it comes to coding in PHP but that isn't an expertise of mine but more of an hobby. I enjoy having problems such as compiling C or C++ applications and reading through error messages to find the solution and understand why it didn't work.

I've always been intrigued with computer security, privacy, piracy, anonymity and so on. After having owned a site that is around the same scale as HF is and illegal I should have picked up a few pointers that I can give out about what does and doesn't work when considering your privacy and anonymity. Special thanks to knowing some of those points go out to my friends who were "busted" back in the day.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I could contribute to the group in nearly any way asked of me.. I'm very interested in topics that concern any *nix systems, its philosophy or quite simply how to get alsa or pulseaudio to work.. Aside from that I'm also interested in topics such as RFID and other insecure methods that millions of people use everyday. The fact that RFID is seriously used today as payment method is laughable and plain and simply stupid considering all the demonstrations that show how vulnerable it really is. But so, yes, I can contribute quite to the group, mostly in my area of expertise and usually lay back when I do not understand a topic completely.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I don't really have many reasons to join the group. I'm very interested in knowing what direction this group will take as it has been inactive for quite some time. I have my ideas on what direction it should take however I'm not sure the group is even a fit for me. If I get accepted only time will tell if I actually want to be a part of the group or if I quite simply will leave it. I don't do much on HF anymore except by answering questions inside one forum which is the Linux/FreeBSD/Unix flavors section and it would be nice to have a new, hopefully active forum to both contribute to and be active within along with maybe making my stay here on Hackforums enjoyable once more and becoming more active elsewhere than in the one section I'm truly active within.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

Hard to say... I can't decide right now if I even like the group and would want to be a part of its future.. I've joined and seen a few groups and none of them felt appealing to me when I got accepted into them. If I like the people in the group I could spend an hour or two a day contributing to the group with ideas as well as to execute those or other ideas. But then again; If I don't like the group and it doesn't suit me then of course I don't belong in it and therefor wouldn't contribute much. If any of the judges of this application have been in the brotherhood over the past two years circa they know that I want and am able to contribute to the group, however of course that is based on how much I like the group, the people in it and its direction, the only reason I continue to contribute to The Brotherhood is simply because I like the people inside that group as well as its current path. However to be clear... I have a few hours per day to be active on this site, but all comes down to the group if I am even willing to put that time into the group.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Well I've seen some of you guys around on Hackforums from time to time and I have understood that you're a very reputable and high quality group on HF.

You're very well respected and everyone would do pretty much everything to get into the group, So would I do. I feel like I can contribute to the group as i'm active everyday, I'll be able to report things that's against the Hackforums rules etc.

I know the rules on Hackforums very well and I know exactly when I need to report something or if it's breaking the rules. I'm a high and reputable member as well so you don't have to worry about me making something stupid. I'll forever be high quality and never post anything Low Quality. I think I'll fit in just fine in this group,

I'll be active every single day and help you out with whatever you need help with. :)

How much time can you devote towards group activities: How much time? I'm unemployed, don't have anything to do on the days so I'll be active pretty much all day long, everyday. I have nothing I got to do so i'm free pretty much all the time and i'm on Hackforums daily.

So me being inactive will not be a problem you'll have to worry about. Trust me on that one. :)

What are some of your skills?:

Marketing - I am part of an advertising and sales team for a hosting company and a VPN company.

Customer Support - I do billing and sales support for a hosting company as well as level 1 technical support.

Website Management - As level 1 technical support I know how to setup and manage most types of website content management systems. Those I have no experience in can be picked up rather quickly, as far as my experience goes.

Networking - My job requires the management of Windows and Linux servers, virtual machines running with Hypervisor and OpenVPN.

Human Relations - I am good at listening to people and empathizing, relating to and giving advice and support.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I can provide giveaways as well as my time for group projects and help to anyone in and outside of the subforum I see that I can help. I will represent the group outside of the subforum with respect and integrity, without bias against any member based on status. I am not sure what happens inside of the subforum, but I will contribute to that as well. This includes discussions, projects and other misc happenings.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I want to join the Red Lions because you are what a large aspect of 143 was about, without the explicit innuendo. I am interested in a group that was created around the idea of helping out around the forums and has proven itself time and time again in doing so.

Aside from that, I really want a group that I can be a part of. It is hard to really get involved with groups these days as they are always coming and going. I believe the Red Lions won't be going anywhere. This makes joining the group and dedicating time and energy into it more appealing. I have been a part of many groups over the years, even a leader of 3 of them (143, Phoenix and Empire) and I am looking for a chance to be in something as good, or better than what those groups were to me before they were disbanded.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

I have a lot of time to myself, but it depends on the day and how much work I have to do. I may be starting a new job in the near future, and going back to school. I believe I will be able to manage my commitments to the group despite these new responsibilities.

Infinit? - September 2, 2015, 3:21 pm

I'm interested in joining due to the members involved in the group, I know each of the given members is respectable in their given fields of interest and have knowledge to offer on a more professional level. I'm also interested in the networking involved being able to formally interact with successful men/women from around the globe who perhaps would be interested in formal business ventures with me. Besides the above, I'm always interested in being involved in the community and this would act as another point of entry for me to overall contribute even if only on a private level through teaching and discussion of business/investing with other members.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As much as realistically needed, a couple hours a week without an issue.

Ethical Hacking

How can you contribute to the group?

I will contribute to the group like I do the entire forums. I try my best to be seen as a High Quality member who is always willing to answer a question I know the answer of and if I don't I will search to the ends of earth to find them the answer.

I try to put my own skills to use for members of the forums in various ways such as Information Threads, Help Desks, Guides and much more.

I'm always willing to join in on any group activities which require my absolute attention as I may learn something from them myself.

As a member of the group I would be willing to give a better insight into my knowledge by sharing threads I wouldn't make public and even opening a Help Desk within the sub-forum making it exclusive to the Red Lions.

I would also be more than willing to learn new skills in new areas to help current members with their public contents may it be a Guide or a Help Desk.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section)

Currently I am a member of Archive and I've realised by reading the description of this thread that the groups are similar in many ways. Archive works to make quality threads which will benefit the entire forums. That is the reason I wanted to join them and the exact same reason I want to join this group. Red Lions is a highly respected, outstanding group which has most definitely earned the respect of this community. Personally I'm not interested in the userbar, saying I am a member or anything like that. The one and only reason I want to become a member is because of the members within this group and it's purpose, the members want to make HackForums a better place may it be through reporting a lot of the threads that aren't allowed or feeding information to the members to improve their knowledge in a certain area. I too want to set an example of how the creation of a single thread that could take hours, days, weeks or even months to develop can in fact have a huge impact on a single section within the forums.

Red Lions is a group that presents the simple factor of making Hack Forums a better place, offering every single member support regardless of their rank, post count and reputation. If a question is asked that can be answered it shall be answered.

How much time can you devote towards group activities

I'll contribute as much time as possible to the group activities which should be a great amount each week unless I am far too busy. If I were too busy one week, the following week you I would put in twice as long due to the lacking of the previous week. The group activities are a way for the members to work together, build their knowledge of each other and embrace their skills. It's a team-work exercise and should be treated as such.

In one paragraph, describe your personality

Describe myself in one paragraph? Well I would consider myself to be an outgoing person who is always willing to join in on discussions and participate in the learning of new skills. I love to learn, grow and eventually master new skills and I am always willing to dive into the deep-end with no support and learn a new skill. I love learning and growing, I guess you could say it's like a drug to me.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: Not going to sugar-coat this section. I tend to stay to myself. For example, I would much rather stay home and teach myself a new thing or two about programming than go out to some high school party getting drunk and high on drugs for a good time. I have a small but awesome group of friends and don't buy in to people's bullshit when they try to take advantage of me. I'm an "average" student if you judge me based on grades (which is incredibly ignorant), but I know for a fact that I have a lot more knowledge than almost every other kid in my class (which sounds cocky, but I know it's true).

[img]http://k.min.us/ixnWAS7QxFeP.gif[/img] What are some of your skills?: Gaming, I've been big into gaming for most of my life and still am but have slowed down. I've made money from tournaments and YouTube as I have a partnered channel that I built from the ground up (PM if you would like the link.)

Coding, I know a bit of HTML as I took a course in High School, I am trying to learn more coding languages.

Marketing, I have ran a "stresser" in the past alongside the member Paranormal and have marketed eBooks in the past.

Bilingual, I speak both English and Japanese.

Supportive, I believe this is a skill because it requires a special person to care about someone they don't really know whether it's over the internet or in person. Whenever I see someone down and against the world I try to be there for them and help them through it, even if it just takes a couple of encouraging words.

How can you contribute to the group?: I can be active within the group and assist members as needed throughout both the forums and sub forum, represent the group to the best of my abilities and be that one person anyone can talk to about anything.

I am pretty big into Clash of Clans and could possibly start up a Red Lions clan to be one of the top clans (just a thought ? .)

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I have always wanted to join Red Lions believe it or not, it was one of the first groups that really stood out to me when I joined HF back in 2012 along with The Reviewers. I would like to join not only to be apart of one of the most recognized and distinguished groups on HF but to be apart of something great, to be apart of a group of individuals that help HF and strive to help other members and make the site a better place.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I haven't been active in the past months and just have recently started visiting HF more and more, I don't post like I used to since The Empire parted, I really had no desire to get on HF and almost kind of felt lost in a way because we were a family. I can devote as much time is needed of myself to devote, if not more. ?

Rivalry - September 3, 2015, 3:39 am

What are some of your skills?

I've been graphic designing for very nearly 5 years now! I've been invited to Fly by Night, the Writers, The Brotherhood, Titans, Polymath, Pirates, The Empire, and various other groups for my design work. You can view some of my work here.

Until I resigned recently I had hosted the HFNT Graphics Gallery for many months. I also operate a successful store in the Graphics Marketplace.

Additionally, I'm extremely academic. You can view some academic information about me on the helpdesk thread I'll link below, but to paraphrase- I'm studying English (Literature) at Cambridge University, so I can provide a variety of discussions about academia in general or English Literature, as well as provide advice to people about their education. I can proofread, write eloquently, and communicate my ideas concisely and clearly (well, I hope so).

I also debate. I've debated at a national level for about 8 years now, and last year I reached the international final of the Oxford University Schools' debating competition, amongst other competitions. Debating is something I really enjoy, and as a result I've been in L'appel du vide since it was Void. Going hand in hand with this is a deep interest in current affairs and politics (I took an A-Level in it); I'm very much on top of world happenings and I follow global politics on a daily basis (literally).

Having the skills that I do allows for a fairly unlimited portfolio. Take for instance debating and graphic design; the ability to persuade, but then to also put such persuasion into an aesthetically pleasing image for consumers to read. Combining the two skills gives me the ability to market successfully; I have experience in real life with marketing, having worked with both the private sector and with politicians seeking re-election. Thus my skills take on an interconnected and transferable nature that is of value to any group, because it makes me a highly adaptable member with intertwined talents.

How can you contribute to the group?

I'm adaptable. I'm comfortable in almost any role in a group: I've led whole sectors single-handedly before (The Brotherhood's Design Bureau), I've pioneered projects for groups before (Launchpad as part of The Brotherhood, the Cicada 3301 contest for Polymath [sadly this never went ahead due to the group's sale], the Pirates DJ Lounge, and an upcoming Titans event), and I've also sat back and simply offered my services and extensive HF experience to the group more generally, such as by creating the recent deluge of Titans signatures to be seen on HF, as well as an almost immeasurable amount of other group graphics over my career.

This means that I can offer pretty much anything that Red Lions requires of me. I can get stuck in with the group's wider projects, deploying my wide range of transferable skills to see the project through to completion, or I can drive forwards with my own ideas as I've done in the past and am doing currently in Titans and privately. I have a variety of Graphics Marketplace projects on the boil that I can demonstrate upon request (PM me).

I can also continue and expand my contributions to the Personal Life forums in the name of the group. I try to help people insofar as I can with whatever their problem might be. In the past I've been recognised for my contributions to these sections both with large quantities of inbound green apples, but also by being invited to 143. Therefore, I can post various guides on subjects or topics that I have expertise in to try and help others out.

Aside from these contributions, I also frequently post in Education Nation and Innuendo in particular. Check my recent posts.

Reason why you want to join?

Because for as long as I can remember Red Lions has been a legacy group. It hasn't done much other than sit and wait, which I always thought was a real shame; there are a limited number of groups on the forum so any group that isn't publicly active isn't adding value to the site. Therefore, the fact that Red Lions is now recruiting excites me, because it implies that it's ready to begin adding value to Hack Forums and its users again. As with Titans before this, The Brotherhood before that, Polymath before that (and so on), I'm always up for helping a group to maximise its potential to participate in the forum by making it a more enjoyable place to spend time. After all, in the end that's why we're all here- to have fun, and perhaps to learn something in the process. I believe that contributing and adding value to the site ought to be about more than just throwing loose change at people on a random giveaway thread. It ought to be about helping people to achieve those two goals: to have fun, and to learn something. Notice, then, that all of my contributions listed above have nothing to do with giving money or freebies away to strangers on the internet. Instead, I try to help people to enjoy themselves or learn something, thus contributing to not only the website, but to their lives. That is why I want to join Red Lions; because it represents an opportunity like no other to use blue sky thinking and creativity to continue that contributing work I've begun elsewhere, as well as to help a group mobilise its considerable muscles and add value to the site and its users once more.

How much time can you devote towards group activities?

A decent amount. It varies day by day, but I always find time to do what's asked of me in other groups, and I'm canny about managing my time; I resigned my HFNT positions precisely so I could devote more screen time to group-related activities, for example. Don't worry about that.

In one paragraph, describe your personality:

Apparently, I'm an ENFJ personality type. I'm slightly extroverted in real life (hence the debating/public speaking), but I tend to be more reserved and private online. I'm extremely empathetic, and often care more about how I make others feel than for my own feelings. Some people say I'm witty. I don't pre-judge people, and I don't hold grudges. I like to think that I'm mature (or 'professional', as HF seems to refer to maturity), reasonably intelligent, and eloquent. I think I have an open mind to other points of view, but if you want to bring me round to your way of thinking on a topic then that'll take a good argument and some critical thinking. I'm creative, and I love brainstorming new ideas (even if they don't work out) and trying new things. I don't take life overly seriously; I try to have fun and succeed as far as possible, setting stretching goals for myself that thus far I've always managed to attain. In the end, though, the best way to figure out my personality is to get to know me!

What is the true purpose of typing it then? The purpose then was internal laughter by your own definition of the acronym "lol." Why would I interpret something that is clearly defined by internet standards and has been for quite some time.

Also to your question. I do indeed laugh out loud when I type it.

OT: Some decent threads so far.

What is the true purpose? Sometimes, there is no true purpose at all. Got repfucked? Type lol. Got embarrassed? Type lol. When I type lol am I actually or internally laughing out loud? I dunno lol Anyways, I'm just blabbering from my own perspective. The internet standards for short words have degraded so much (again in my opinion) over the years, even I wonder the actual meaning of lol used in sentences these days. Anyhow, this argument is going off topic. Sorry to Alone Vampire and respective group leaders of Red Lions for this off topic post. ?

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I am not going to write a page on this section of the application, as I feel you would get bored reading all of these applications, so I am going to be short and to the point. I want to join the Red Lions because it is a well respected, high quality group. I believe that I can achieve this for myself also while being in the Red Lions group. I feel as if everyone in it is one big family and I would like to be apart of that family. I feel as if I proved myself since my stay at Hackforums for being here for under two years. I wish to help members of the Red Lions develop and execute ideas that we can contribute to the community. Divine is currently braining storming some ideas within our subforum, and you can check them out for what I have in mind. I would like to take some of these ideas over to Red Lions so we all can contribute to the community as much as possible.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

I can devote an excessive amount of time into the Red Lions group. I am a college student, however I still have time for Hackforums, where I can devote my time to the groups I am in. I am a man of my word, and when I say I will do something I will do it. Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): This is where most people will throw the old "Red Lions is the most HQ group here on HackForums" song and dance, and it's mostly to gain entry to the group. To me, to join a group that houses some of the more respected members here on HackForums would be something short of awesome. I know people say this a lot, but I think I'd fit in with the members of this group very well and really is one of the only groups I have applied to recently because of that reason. I don't want to apply for the userbar, hell that is never the aim when applying for a group. Basically, the bottom line, no bullshit answer is that I want to join because I believe I fit in with it's current members. To get respect you have to give respect. I also want to find a group that I can join that won't up and sell 3 months down the road after they have made their money off of buyins and various other things. Just basically searching for a place I can fit in with others.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As much as needed. I know it is a commonly posted answer, but after work and excluding some other activities, I have nothing but free time to devote to the group if needed. I only apply to groups I plan to be active in or are in a field that I am interested in, and seeming as there is nothing on HF that really peaks my interest outside of the sections that I post in, I have nothing but time.

Thank you for the opportunity of joining Red Lions.

Raz Riverblade - September 3, 2015, 2:53 pm

since this is not a thread design contest i'm going to leave all the shiny redlion logos out of it. i want you guys to accept me not my sexy post.

What are some of your skills?: i'm fairly skilled in video editing.

How can you contribute to the group?: I have an unsatiable thirst for knowledge and have done a, for my age, reasonable high amount of research on various topics. my main interests lay in economics, history and cultures around the world. by sharing this with the group I can not only teach you something here and there but i may get you to look at the world in another way.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): it's fairly simple, i've seen the quality of HF drop the past few years. i've struggled against the dropping quality of the LoL section by opposing cheat sellers such as KingJason. By joining the group i hope to find coördinated efforts that might help 'clean' HF subforum per subforum like a SWAT team clearing a building.

I just want to be helpful and be what i miss in the community. But trying to be the HQ user i want to be isn't all that easy when you're not surrounded by peopel who can serve as an example. although Goodies presence in the SSRP subforum helped me contain my anger towards the ignorant. (which is, by the way, my weak spot. i have a hard time dealing with stubborn ignorance in others)

How much time can you devote towards group activities:at least one hour a day, if the activities are well planned i can free up to 6 hours each day.

Name: Raz

In one paragraph, describe your personality:

I'm thirsty for knowledge which may result in a salvo of questions you'd rather not have asked. I'm also a fairly openminded atheist who's up for a religious discussion if you're not an extremist. The stubborn ignorace that you find in extremists is my only weak point, having the knowledge to help someone open their eyes but not being able to open them is the most frustrating thing in my life and sadly it happens way to often.

Further I'm very social and helpfull if you don't try to troll or use me.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 8/10 my english is self-tought and might even contain errors i'm not aware of.

e?erg1zer - September 3, 2015, 4:22 pm

Name: energ1zer

Age: 16

Country/State: USA/NJ

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I am an outgoing person, and I'd like to think I have a decent sense of humor. I like to come up with my own ideas and creative solutions for things, but I know when to stop and trust someone else's judgement.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: I truly, honestly would have to rate myself a nine out of ten, as I am extremely bothered when words are spelled in correctly on thread designs and on public pieces in general. To me, especially when someone is selling a product, an incorrectly spelled word or poorly phrased sentence signifies a lack of professionalism, and almost always means that I avoid the product.

What are some of your skills?: To be completely honest, I wouldn't say that I've mastered any one element. I can do some photo editing when necessary, and I delve in almost every aspect of technology, always figuring out what I need to, and then moving on.

How can you contribute to the group?: My goal is to explore my capabilities, and contribute everything from the occasional light-hearted wisecrack (assuming it is acceptable), to officially promoted guides and help desks.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): First of all, I just want to say, with complete sincerity, that I have always wanted to join the Red Lions. I'm not sure what initially peaked my interest, but ever since I joined HF I've idolized the Red Lions. To me, those of you honored enough to be in the group have a sort-of legendary status. In particular, nokia2mon2 has always seemed to me like the type of HF member I aspire to be. Someone who is able to impress and please Omni to the point where they receive their own unique reward, and the shining praise that accompanied it is simply amazing. On top of that, the idea that someone as prestigious as a staff member like Alone Vampire could be in charge of a group is mind-blowing. For someone to have earned the title of "Staff," they must represent everything Omni could want in a member of his forum. This prestige and high level of expectations doesn't simply stop when it comes to groups; I'd imagine that a group run by a staff member would be the best possible experience one could have in a group, period. Even further, I'd imagine that to become a Writer, one has to be a certain caliber member of HF, for a long period of time. I consistently read the news and am always grateful for the amount of work and dedication that must be poured into such an awesome project.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As far as group activities are concerned, I really don't have many commitments at this period in my life, other than school, and the sports that I play afterwards. What I'm saying is, I could easily spare (at the very least) a few solid hours on a weekly basis to contribute the group.

Thanks for your consideration!

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I'm an outgoing jolly person to be around, I love helping others and am very polite. With the proper motivation I'm a very fast learner when teaching myself. I'm a fairly exclusive person in fact Red Lions is probably the 3rd group I've ever applied for on HF. I'm a cool person, love meeting new people but at the same time could be shy as well.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 8

What are some of your skills?: As stated above I'm a very quick learner as long as I have the proper motivation, I consider this a very valuable asset. I've been working with servers for around ~6 years now largely consisting of things like Web server networks, VPN Networks, I've worked with multiple distro's such as Ubuntu & CentOS as well as Debian. Alongside having lots of experience with servers, I'm also a junior web developer, I can fluently code HTML and CSS but my color blindness disability ruins the aesthetics of my developed pages. I am starting to get better with my color choices regardless. I am also currently learning C# for application developing and just finished my inventory application for my uncles shop. I am also great at teaching others what I have learned.

How can you contribute to the group?: As stated above I can utilize my skill set to insure that members of the group receive knowledge that they can utilize later on. I'm a casual person, group members can always ask me for help and be welcomed with open arms without question. With my extensive servers & networks background I feel like I can be a real asset in terms of knowledge when it comes to sharing. My first attempt is to be very mature but after all we are humans and at times snap. I'm a fun joking kind of person and can give lots of fun to the group and lighten the atmosphere.

I usually am not public about helping and mostly either have the person PM me or I PM them / talk through skype etc. I've been planing a few contests but with my summer schedule on vacation things got very tough and I only had access to my phone. Since then school has started, I hope I'll be able to schedule more contests soon!

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I've been on HF for around 2 years now, almost 3. Within that period of time I've always wanted to achieve a few things, with the start being gain knowledge, but knowledge can't be stopped, even when you think you've learned all there is to know there's always something that you don't know, with that being said another achievement I've wanted to meet was joining two groups. One being 143 (I love you) which I was very thankful to be invited into, and the second group being Red Lions. I've always looked upon both groups as being the superior elevated groups (don't get me wrong, I'm not trying to say it in a cocky way) I viewed both groups as being certain of their way & values without hesitation as well as having the self determination to continue without taking into consideration societies words. All groups ever established have been sold, as far as I know Red Lions is currently the ONLY group on HF that has never been sold. Props to you guys for that!

To date I've applied to around 3 groups on HF, I no longer remember the other two but the latest application that I made was for the Revolution group, which was sold around a year ago? As you can see I have absolutely no interest in groups unless they actually catch my eye, I hold certain groups to certain standards with Red Lions being at the top of pyramid. To break all this down, I simply want to join Red Lions because not only do they stay true to their beliefs they have managed to change the standards of groups on HF while gaining the respect of many HF members such as myself.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I can devote a large portion of my time without hesitation, I am always browsing HF even if I'm not posting. I will attempt to devote as much time as possible to Red Lions at times this may be 5 - 8 hours but at times this could only be 30 minutes. Life is unpredictable coming home from school late etc. could change the time heavily.

Thanks for reading, I appreciate you taking a look and perhaps even considering me as a candidate. All the best to my fellow candidates!

- Guy.

General Help How can you contribute to the group?: I feel that I can contribute to the group in many ways. I feel that I can help represent the group in a positive way. I try to conduct myself in a certain manner on Hack Forums and could live up to the group's expectations. I am a dedicated and willing person. What mysteries /tasks behind that userbar is beyond me, but I feel that I am a person who could complete them. I try to be an active member and this group could possibly give me the spark to find why I really like Hack Forums again. I can help pass on my knowledge of certain markets to other members of the group. I look forward to positively contributing to the community under the group's name. I feel that it would be a motivating factor to write a tutorial or run a help desk. What I am really trying to say is that I have learned a lot during my time spent on Hack Forums and I am eager to share that knowledge with members new and old.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I do not want to sound bad here saying that this has been a bucketlist group for me, but it has. Ever since I first joined Hack Forums the most high quality members have been a part of this group. Back when they were ridding the Hack Forum's marketplace of scammers I wanted to be a part of that. I remember being on vacation for one of the recruitments and not being able to fill out an application. I have kicked myself for not doing once via mobile back then. The group seems very fun and mysterious. I like what the group stands for and feel that I could represent the Red Lions in a positive way. I see what they're doing in certain sections in the marketplace currently and wish I was a part of that. I should not be admitting this, but over the summer my posting on the forums has gone down. I still post, but I feel that by being in the Red Lions it would ignite something inside me to use the forums how I used to. I feel that I have a lot to share and want to give back to the community as a part of a group who can do so in a quality manner. Another reason would be that Red Lions does not accept buyins and does not look like they will ever sell. I want to be a part of something that will not be changed in the next 3 months or require me to pay them to be a part of. I respect the fact that the group has been running the same for over 4 years and hope to see it running that way for many more to come.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I am a fairly active member and spend a lot of time on Hack Forums. I do have a job and school, but outside of that I spend a few hours per day on Hack Forums. I cannot give a specific amount of time, but I guarantee that I can contribute enough time to be active in the subforum daily and participate in any group projects.

Gladly - September 3, 2015, 9:17 pm

What are some of your skills?:

I have a great amount of skill in drawing and art, whether it be multimedia, digital, or simply pencil and paper. I know basic animation (Flash), which also happens to correlate with a hobby of mine. I am good at writing articles, papers, and reviews (been on the HF News Team since early this year), which makes college a little easier. I'm also skilled at making instant noodles.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I can write threads, reviews (nearly any piece of writing really) when necessary, host events, and most of all I can contribute my free time.

It's neat that and all that you guys are 'prestigious', but honestly, what I enjoy about Red Lions members is they show consistency. There are no real "bad" or "low quality" members of the group from what I can see; most members of the group have an area of knowledge where they assist those they can in that area. For example, A Red Lions group member may have a help desk in a section, or act almost as a mentor or a role model for a sub forum. I enjoy the concept of helping people where you can, and I wouldn't mind being a part of that. I feel I can show the consistency I see the Red Lions userbase portray. I'm knowledgeable in various areas, whether it be tech related things or media, and I want to contribute what I know to the group.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: The free time I get when I'm not in class, as I'm a full time student and that will always come before this forum.

I'm the kind of person who is pretty compulsive about details and finishing things. If I finish a piece, I'll continue trying to add to it or improve it over, and over, and over until I'm fully satisfied. I'm pretty analytical for the most part, so I tend to look into things more than I need to, or question a variety of things that pique my interest. I can be an introvert occasionally when it comes to meeting new people, but when I get to know someone, I really get to know them and show my true nature. I am very well rounded in most areas, and can get good at things that grab my attention. Lastly, I'm pretty laid back and friendly; you won't really see me attacking members or being an outright jerk. Most who know me will tell you that I'm a pretty nice guy.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I consider myself to be blunt, yet honest. In certain circumstances I can come off as extremely arrogant but under this facade I'm actually a quite nice and humble guy who enjoys helping others above all else. If need be, I can become quite confrontational (especially during debates) but never in an overly aggressive manner. This attitude stems from me being an extremely competitive individual. I guess I've sort of developed a competitive mentality from participating in sports for the greater portion of my life. I'm an extrovert with absolutely no filter on what I say and do. As such, I'm an outgoing individual who doesn't mind being in the center of a crowd.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: I'd say around an 8. I'm not conceited enough to say my grammar is a perfect 10 but I do consider it to be above average. I like to think that my grammar is up to par with my level of education but everyone slips up here and there.

What are some of your skills?: Other than being able to keep a discussion going and writing reviews, I have nothing to brag about. I feel I am a skilled reviewer of movies, television series, music, and some video games. I like to write and I'm very knowledgeable when it comes to the English language. Being a senior CS major in college, I've learned to code well over many years of dedication and practice. Along with learning to code, minoring in CIS has helped me experience the business aspects of the IT industry. I can code efficiently in Java, Python, ASM, C, C++, and C# and

I am at least proficient enough to obtain an internship with a one of the most prominent power corporations in the US working with and developing nuclear applications. I've also recently acquired my android developers license.

How can you contribute to the group?: As said above in the "describe me" paragraph, I'm a fun user to talk to. Being a part of a forum group is very much social based, and whenever I can, I love to have good discussions with members on their beliefs as well as having debates on both common and controversial topics. If members are having any problems, whether it be emotional or physical, I'm more than happy to help them out and try and resolve their problem.

As for my skills, I can only contribute to the best of my own ability and nothing more. As long as I know I am giving the best I can, and if that is still not enough I will be satisfied no matter what occurs. I can also contribute a wide array of knowledge to the group and assist members with everyday problems, as I am a very reliable person.

Links to any contributions: There aren't any threads of my own that I'm particularly proud of (other than threads for particular TV shows where I can enjoy a genuine discussion with fellow members), but I am a dedicated volunteer writer for AA Weekly, a weekly newsletter released to the AA section. I'm extremely proud to work with this small, dedicated team and will continue to work with them for as long as I'm able to. Along with volunteer writing, I'm also the technology news writer for the HF News and have been formally since Edition 232.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Since the day I registered on Hack Forums Red Lions has always be one of my "goals" to reach on HF. I want to join Red Lions because of the mysteriousness that lurks around your group and how rarely you accept members and I'm truly humbled to have a chance to apply for such a group. One of my main reasons for wanting to joining is to help improve my self and learn from your outstanding member-base to not only help enrich my knowledge but to also broaden it as a whole. I am always up for helping people with whatever they may need and although I probably couldn't bring anything new or unique to the group, I feel I could still be a valuable part of Red Lions as a whole. I'm a down to earth guy than can bring a positive and team mentality into this group. I want to see myself as a member of your family. I wish to be a part of something bigger than myself, I am worthy of the title Red Lion and I will display it as such. I would be proud to call myself a Red Lion, and I hope you will too. Whether getting accepted or not, I think Red Lions as a whole have what it takes to do some cool and different things and I'd love to see where this group goes.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: Unless said activities conflict with school or work (e.g. holding group activities during my exam schedule), I'm willing to spend a good amount of my time helping with group activities. I usually spend a minimum of four hours online each day. Being the determined and diligent worker that I am, I enjoy helping out on group projects in anyway I can.

I personally think helping individual users is better than making a large thread. I know I sure like interacting with someone rather than trying to read about it on a big thread made 4 years ago.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

Just like everyone else, I believe Red Lions is one of the most prestigious groups here and it has always been kind of a 'goal' to be seen as quality enough to be a part of it. Because it is such a small group I assume it would give real a sense of comradery compared to the groups that have 100s of members. I think that being a part of that is something I would like very much.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

I can be online for up to 12 hours a day these days. I do not have a lot going on so I have nothing but time. If the group activity is something that interests me I could put in a lot of time.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I'm a well-educated, polite, straight edge and soft spoken person in real life. Even on HF, I just log in, take care of my work, help other users if possible and sign off. I don't poke in others' business and I don't like insulting anyone.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10:I think I'm at 7. Application:What are some of your skills?:

Designing : I have decent photoshop skills and I can design websites using CSS/HTML/Bootstrap.

Programming : I can code in VB .net, PHP and Java to a commercial extent.

Marketing : I have been having success in HF marketplace and outside for few years now.

Gaming : Fairly good Counter-Strike player.

Problem Solving : I'm always equipped with puzzles like Rubik's cube, Megaminx etc., and I always fix bugs in my projects quickly.

Sports: I play Cricket and Badminton at club level. By playing I don't mean just participation; I mean winning club-level competitions.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I was one of the primitive members of Red Lions but I was left out while I was inactive few years ago. If I remember correctly, my project [\[Red Lions Binder\]](#) was the first project contribution from Red Lions towards the community. The project had to end unfortunately because file-sharing websites like Megaupload were taken down and I had to leave HF for other reasons. I was a beginner in programming back then and I am a lot more than that now. I can start a new project like that for the community any time. This will boost up the 'already high' reputation of Red Lions group among HF.

Do contests, giveaways and upgrades count? If yes, I have way too many contests to list here. I have upgraded many valuable HF users, one worth enough member to mention would be you, Alone Vampire.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

Reason why I want to join? It's simple. I was a member of RL previously. I was left out when I was inactive on HF. I just want my place in the group and be part of a wonderful sub-forum again. Red Lions is one of the greatest groups on HF ever, probably only next to The Alliance. I might be wrong about it being next to Alliance because I haven't been in Red Lions for more than 2 years now and I can't really tell from outside if it has changed inside. I want to get back into the group and look if it is better than Alliance now.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I will be honest with you. I will mostly spend 20 minutes or half an hour in a day at best. Spending 20 minutes with a group everyday is a lot more than anybody can afford in a busy schedule once they are working in real life. I can guarantee that even if I spend such short time, all my posts will be informative rather than just hanging up in the lounge.

How can you contribute to the group?: I can contribute to the group by being a all round wonderful person and can learn about what you guys are doing and potentially help you guys out

In one paragraph, describe your personality:

An easy outgoing person, with a great sense of humor and responsibility. I'm very considerate towards others and will always try to help if it's within my power.

I'm loyal and eager to learn and experience new things. My biggest interests are cultures and their languages, I spend a good amount of my time learning them (At the moment French and German).

In my eyes everyone is equal and deserves the same attention/help. May it be a new member or experienced member.. I don't like the terms "LQ", "skid", ect..

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10:

Taking into consideration that I'm from Europe I think my grammar is somewhere around 7.

[img]http://static.afbeeldinguploaden.nl/1509/119845/IHKAbku7.jpg[/img]

What are some of your skills?:

At the moment I'm mainly interested in networking and Steganography.

In the past I did a bit of everything..

Reverse engineering, pen-testing (mostly web), Malware (RAT) & Malware-removal, I feel I have a good understanding of how RATs work, I have owned a RAT in the past.. and during the endless hours of support I think I have probably seen every possible issue a user may come across while using their RAT.

I know my way around HTML, CSS, Batch and studied Python in the past. A few months ago I considered to learn c++ and covered the basics, unfortunately I decided to place it to the side for the time being.

I'm good at anything business related, off forums I work as a salesperson, selling multimedia products and household cosmetics & luxury perfumes. On HF I have also had several good selling products, this is something I really enjoy doing.

When it comes to graphic design I'm by far good at it but I can handle myself if I need a logo or simple thread design for myself.

Social engineering is something I really enjoyed doing, a few years back. I would setup a small group with me, my brother and another friend and try to SE as many goods as possible during that day.

I think I have SEd over €750 worth of goods, this goes from headsets to webcams, games, cannabis seeds, ect..

I'm good at languages, I speak Dutch, English fluently, know french and Arabic on a decent level (still studying) and plan to start my German classes within a few months.

Learning these languages is something I really enjoy doing and something I don't mind spending my time on. It's very rewarding.

How can you contribute to the group?:

In any way you want. As of now I'm fairly active on the forums and spend most of my time helping people within the RAT section.

I will do what's required from me if I were to be accepted in the group and will maintain the good image the Red Lions have.

Whether it's helping, teaching members or learning from them myself.

I'll do it with passion and great dedication.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

Since I have first joined HF, I have seen the many great contributions made towards the forum in the name of the "Red Lions".

Whether it was by donations or helping other members with issues, I have always found it a great thing to do and it always fascinated me to do my share of giving/helping towards the community.

Over the time, meeting some Red Lions members I have come to the conclusion that the group consists of wonderful people who are here to better the community.

I have never had bad experiences with the group or any of it's members.

I would be extremely honored to be a part of this and meet all the great people within the group and hopefully contribute in the best way I can.

I feel like this would be a great opportunity & new experience for me that hopefully opens new doors.

On top of that my time on HF has been somewhat boring lately and I'm honestly looking for something new and exciting I can dedicate my attention to.
Hopefully that will be the Red Lions.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

As much as you need me to, I will do my best to participate in every group activity, event or whatever it may be.

[img]http://static.afbeeldinguploaden.nl/1509/119845/IHKAbku7.jpg[/img]

Thank you for your time, reading this application. I hope it wasn't too boring to read.
Warm regards, Yakz.

What are some of your skills?:

A skill that I value the most is that of being able to connect and understand others on a personal level. I'm also very knowledgeable in psychological disorders (anxiety, depression, OCD....) I'm also a beginner level coder in Python and Java. I'm also (in my opinion) a very good guitar player.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I can help out users inside the group that have some sort of mental problems or any life problems that they may have. I could even teach you all how to play guitar if many people are interested in doing so. I can even do my best to help people financially if they are struggling to make ends meet. I also like giving away money occasionally so that could be something as well. If someone needs a favor I'll try my best to help.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

The reason I would like to join this group is simply because of the prestige and reputation it has. I remember ever since I joined HF that the group has always been composed of such generous and high quality members. I'm that type of member. I love contributing to people either by tutorials, giveaways, or services. This group stands out from all others simply because it is "pure". It's completely unique from all others and it's not money driven. When ever I see the group I see myself. I feel that this group represents everything about me as a person and as a member of HF. I believe that an HQ user is defined not by their post count nor rep, but by the quality and tone in their posts.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

I can devote as much time as humanly possible. I'm usually a very active member. I think the only reason for me not to be on much is for some illness or tragedy.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): There are many reasons, one of them is having a group of people that also want to help make HF a better place. For 1 man to make changes in a web like HF is hard. That's why having a team is always a good thing. I joined HF a year ago and I fell in love with it. I been in a lot of Forums before but HF is the 1# Forum in the surface web. Not because HF has a good hacking section or HF has a lot of members, No. It is because HF is not an immature place. Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):Just like anyone else, it's been my goal at some point during my HF journey to join Red Lions. Recently I've hit a bit of a rough patch on HF. I just can't seem to find my place again. Months back, I left for about 4-5 months to sort out some issues in the real world. HF just doesn't feel the same now. I've been in 30+ groups in my time on HF, and most seem to have lost their spark. With the tenure, and reputation of Red Lions, it is a group I'd like to dedicate time to. More so, it is a group that I would love to be a part of.

I'm all about helping people on-and-off HF. Red Lions has a reputation of helping and contributing and I'd love to be a part of that. On top of that, I'd really like to find my spot on HF again. What are some of your skills?

Over the years on Hack Forums, I've practiced numerous things that made me into the person I am today. The skills I've learned include, but are not limited to:

Computing

I was the leader of The Brotherhood's White Hat Helping division for a few months. I've assisted a lot of users on Hack Forums with removing infections and troubleshooting problems. I have also published numerous computing guides on Hack Forums. This is mostly Windows troubleshooting and malware removal, but I also have experience with Android troubleshooting and rooting.

Relationship Advice & Life Counseling

This is a real passion of mine. I enjoy helping others with their social issues. I help them to get over social anxiety, provide them with tips that will help them talk to girls, give them advice about certain difficulties they are facing in life and other problems. I love doing this and I am planning to base my real life career on this. For me it's just practicing before I go out and do this full-time. I've done this both on Hack Forums and in real life.

Writing

While writing isn't something I am willing to do as a professional career, I enjoy doing it. I'm a skilled writer. I'm currently a on-call writer for the HFNT, and I'm planning to do this for a while. I'm able to write about a lot of things, ranging from gaming to computer security.

Entertainment

Entertainment is a skill. Not everyone is naturally entertaining. I enjoy making others laugh and making their day a little bit better. Everyone is going through tough times and it's the job of an entertainer to relieve them of their stress. It makes me happy to make others happy, and as long as I am able to do so I will do it.

How can you contribute to the group?

I'm able to contribute to Red Lions in many ways. This includes the cliché — but truthful — promise of activeness in the subforum. Besides that I have a lot of projects in my mind that would be useful and fun for the community that I haven't completed and/or launched yet. I would be happy to share those projects with Red Lions to make them happen in the near future. I'd have no problem with participating in any other events either. Lastly, I'm offering all of my knowledge to Red Lions. Most of us came to Hack Forums to learn something.

Reason why you want to join?

I want to join Red Lions because this is a very interesting situation. We haven't really heard anything from Red Lions for a very long time. When something starts again, it attracts people, especially if it was a prestigious thing earlier. Before the group went quiet, it was a helpful group, and I would like to be part of a helpful group. Red Lions has always been a mystery to me, just like how 143 always was mysterious to me. I want to see with my own eyes what Red Lions is like from the inside. I want to see how the projects are hosted and I want to participate in them. I want to be able to see a certain thread that helps out members with problems and be able to think to myself that I was a part of that. You can help out people individually, but it's much easier with people that have experience with community events.

How much time can you devote towards group activities

I would be able to devote around 3-4 hours a day, depending on the day. Fridays and Saturdays are busier days for me, but I would still be able to devote a lot of time weekly. When a task is assigned to me, I'll make time for it if I don't have time already. I check my phone every hour or so to make sure I answer important PM's and to post within group subforums.

Personal Information

My name is 'Cinnamon', I'm 17 years old and am currently residing in The Netherlands. I'm someone that's constantly adapting to the current atmosphere. If the mood at the moment is a serious one, I'll be serious. If it's a playful one, I'll be playful. I'm someone that doesn't enjoy drama and doesn't participate in drama. I enjoy helping others. I don't ask anything in return besides proper etiquette and a little bit of respect. I'm a very outgoing and social person. I spend most of my days working out in the gym, going to school, gaming occasionally and partying when time allows it. I'd rate my grammar a solid 8/10. I have no problems with the English language, but everyone makes mistakes once in a while.

Outro

Thank you for reading my application. I hope to be considered as a member of Red Lions, and I'm hoping my application wasn't too long. Have a great day :)

What are some of your skills?:

I am an active programmer who mainly specializes in the Java language but I also have knowledge of other languages such as html, css, sql and some other.

I am also experienced with computer hardware and can provide help if someone has a problem.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I can provide mentoring for Java if members want to learn the language. I can also make product showcase websites if people want a website for products.

Links to any contributions:

The Java Section: I have been a moderator at this section since february and have been keeping it clean and overal nice. I see this as a big contribution to HF.

BTCRate: A toll to keep track of the current bitcoin price.

Java Streams Tutorial: A guide on how to use Java IO streams.

I also contribute to groups which I cannot say in here. I am a nice peroson to talk to :D

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I would like to join this group as I heard a lot about it and was interested in joining it. Now that there's a recruitment thread I thought why not apply. If possible I would enjoy collaborating on projects and whatnot.

Furthermore I enjoy talking to members so that's a plus too.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

It really depends on it on it as I am in my final year but atleast two hours per day should be doable(exceptions to be made sometimes).

Name: Looka(I'd rather not disclose my name on here.)

Age: 16

Country/State: Netherlands

In one paragraph, describe your personality: Well I am a nice guy who likes to talk about all kinds of subjects. I enjoy programming but I am not someone who never goes outside and only plays WoW.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: I would have to say 8/10 I can have a great grammar but sometimes it's pure shit, most of the time that's when I am tired though.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

To start off with, I don't want to ramble on too much about my reasoning of joining and my intentions of being here on HF, but hopefully all of the puzzle pieces will come together by reading this.

Back when I joined, my intentions weren't what they were today. They were simply just to grab a decent understanding of hacking and coding, and maybe have a bit of fun here and there. Never had I ever thought about the current state of the forum, it's members, the current issues HF faced, and how everything was going down. Despite those facts, I knew I wanted to strive to set an example and be as HQ as possible. I've always looked at Red Lions as one of the more notable and contributing groups to HF, and I think they deserve the reputation the community has provided them with. Lending other members a helping hand is what I enjoy doing, and just by looking at everything Red Lions has done for this community over the past few years I can see it's a group that would best suit my intentions. I love HF and the community as much as any other person applying for the group, but I would just like to show how dedicated I want to be to the forum, and I believe this group will help me out with that.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

As much time as I can provide.

What are some of your skills?:

I personally am good with marketing and social media.

I also do graphic design, but i'd still consider myself a beginner, I have a lot to learn.

With marketing, I know how to invest, what to invest in, and make the most money out of it. I have literally, no lie, invested in things from social media to cows. Being 100% real.

I know someone who lives in Alabama with farm land (This is so embarrassing, but I'm telling the truth, enjoy the laugh while you can) and saw the market for cows and how much they go for, bought two calves, and grew them, sold them for triple my investment. Made around $2,000 in profit from them.

Although social media is what I mainly enjoy, Ill take anything I can make profit with.

With social media I run manage accounts for people or I buy & sell OGs for profit.

I love the online aspect of it and it's something I enjoy. That's the number one thing about a job..

Find something you enjoy and can make money off of.

The last thing I am the best at online or even in real life, is social engineering.

I personally do not eWhore or use social engineering to my advantage that much online. But when I do, I can always win in the situation!

Not to mention, but gaming! I am naturally good at it and love playing online game modes with people I know!

I hate making these kind of answers, I always feel like I'm being way too cocky..

How can you contribute to the group?:

Making a good reputation for our group!

There comes a part of being in any kind of team, one person represents the whole team. So always have respect for your friends and be a good reputation for them as well. You will expect from me, anything you need help with. Anything from graphic designs, thread making for tutorials etc, help in the community, helping our team with anything I can provide an ounce of help with, activeness, and respect. Community wise, basically as what I just said. Anytime I see someone I can help on HackForums I do it! Mainly with lower tiers/ranks as well.. I hate seeing normal members not receiving any help due to people treating them different. Even if I don't know the subject, I try my best!

I mainly do giveaways/free services, looking to do tutorials soon!

Not to mention, a load of GFX and my free methods from PM's etc.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

Red Lions, where do I even start. This group is held to very high standards and is known for being very high quality..

A lot of cool people are in this group i'd love to make friends with, help out, crack jokes with and all. Honestly, why would I not want to? This group is simply high quality and amazing!

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

A lot! I am home schooled, meaning I spend all (most) of my day at home, behind my computer!

Although it only takes me about 3 hours a day to finish school.. I ask one thing, when I'm doing it, I'm doing.. I don't really want people who put me off of my school work to do something silly! :P

Unless it's a meeting or something we already had planned of course.

But back to the question, a lot. I can put in a load of time into this group anytime I am wanted for the most part.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I've always looked up to Red Lions as THE group to join. I've tried to make a good name for myself without posting crap giveaways for meaningless rep. Red Lions are one of if not THE most well-respected groups on HF, and are known for their quality posts. Red Lions is also firmly rooted in HF's rich history of groups as being one of the first.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I'm a part-time employee and a full-time student, but I make time out of my day for my hobbies. There may be times when I go for weeks on end without posting, but even when I cannot take the time to post, I make sure to keep myself up to date. So I guess my best estimate would be a 2 hour minimum weekly with an upwards bounds of 85 hours a week.

Contributions:

What are some of your skills?

My main skill is management. I have been a moderator on several forums, gaming servers, and games. I was a moderator for Meez, Xivio, and Lasuni. I owned and participated in several Habbo Hotel fansites, was an Admin on HF's official Minecraft server, and I have been a leader in several HF groups and projects. Aside from that, I'm certified in Networking, and am currently going to college. I dabble in graphics and writing, and I'm a QA tester and video game designer irl.

How can you contribute to the group?

The answer is simple. I will contribute my knowledge, my experience, my well being and responsibility. I am prepared to put my blood, sweat, and tears into this group (not literally, but you know). I am able to lend a helping hand in a variety of subjects. Although I am unable to contribute money in order to host giveaways or competitions, I can write useful and helpful guides in the name of Red Lions. I am active on HackForums on a daily basis; lack of activity will never be a problem with me. I feel that a lot of members on HF have a false impression of me due to circumstances outside of my control (Omni removing my negative reputations, giving me 10k+ rep, etc). It's unfortunate because from the moment I joined this forum, all I have wanted to do is learn from others and share my own knowledge. The circumstances mentioned above appear to cloud the contributions I have made in other people's eyes.

HF Wiki - I was part of the Wiki team before working on the News team.

HackerCraft - I was a Moderator, then an Admin. Helped build and grow the official HF Minecraft server before it closed.

A Comprehensive Guide to Habbo Hotel - Got the Sticky Man award for this thread.

Guide to Overcoming Shyness - Created while I was in the Phoenix group.

How to Be a Good Conversationalist - Created while I was in the Phoenix group.

Polymath | Radio - I managed the first few shows of the Polymath Radio.

Guide to Increasing Proactivity - Created while I was in the Polymath group.

How to Make a Proper Hacking Request - An attempt to help clean up the Requests for Hacking subforum.

Reason why you want to join?

I do not usually spend 5+ days writing, reviewing, and revising an application, but I feel that this group is well worth it. Red Lions is one of the groups that I have most admired and respected. I am always looking for more ways to contribute to the welfare of HackForums, and I feel that the members of Red Lions would be a great family to venture through that journey with. I've been yearning to be in this group since I joined back in 2012, and have even applied a few times in the past. I'm hoping that this time around I will be accepted, especially since I've come a long way since then. Growing older with HackForums has been a crazy journey.

How much time can you devote towards group activities?

I am online every single day, literally. I can probably devote 20+ hours toward group activities, even while I travel or go on vacation.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: Laid back, easy going guy. I can be funny at times, but serious when I need to be. That pretty much sums up my personality. ?

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: I would say my grammar is 9/10. I passed the highest level writing class my college offers with an A-. My grammar slacks once in awhile throughout my posts, but if it requires formal writing, I know exactly what to do.

What are some of your skills?: I am advanced in marketing, innovative thinking (generating new methods, products/services). Also, I have acquired a vast knowledge of cryptocurrencies throughout the duration of the past 3 years. As for pragmatic skills, I am advanced in all Windows Operating Systems, Linux (ubuntu mostly), Win Server 2012, Cloud Computing, & VMware. Currently a third year student. My major is Computer Science. Also, I type 130 WPM.

How can you contribute to the group?: I can contribute to the group by creating tutorials on advanced malware removal, RAT setup & management, and even tutorials on how to flip currencies for a guaranteed profit.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I want to join because I really want a genuine group that looks out for each other, and cares about the community. I want to give back but at the same time, be apart of one of, if not the most, legitimate groups on Hackforums. I realize you said to take some time to fill this portion of the application out, but I do not feel the need to add random junk into this to fill up space. I am a very straight-forward, to the point type of person.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As much time as you need me to. I am loyal and hardworking.

End Note: Thank you for reading over my application to the Red Lions. Let me add in that I realize I was given a 20% warning reputation from Omni directly today. Let me say that it was all a big misunderstanding, but I accept the consequences. I almost always have 0% warning levels and I take the rules of HF very seriously.

If you require any further information about me, please, feel free to ask.

What are some of your skills?: Skills? Well I got a brain and today it seems to be a skill. Joke! (not) I'm not a common person, I have my way of thinking and I'm happy with it. I may think too much but this just me, my brain doesnt like to be shut, it likes to work. If I encounter a problem be sure we'll pass it somehow, I won't go back. I'm generally loyal and nice to people but once you betray me you will certainly regret it.

I know my way on computers and techs too, especially mac. Know some of web development and currently learning python and the linux environment. Also learning R.A.T.s and that world.

As my nick suggests: I am too good on human manipulation. Everything can be achieved through it and it has also a big role in hacking too.

Another thing I love is making money. I always have business in my mind, I have my activity irl and I'm used to the entrepreneur way of thinking, maybe inherited. I love to analyze, talk and discuss on business as I love to invest.

How can you contribute to the group?: As I'm back even more active than I was in the past, I think I can contribute by being active within the subforums and the forums. I can help members around the forum, report all the spam I see and try to be the most HQ (sometimes you just have to laugh tho :))

Links to any contributions: I didn't make any contribution worth of notice but I link what I think it's closer to that:

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): Honestly I just wanted to join a group so I can focus on more useful things (see purpose of group), learn and have a good time. That's all. I was in Legion before it disbanded and I enjoyed the time spent there.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As stated I have an irl activity that can take from 0 to all my time. During the week I'm active all day (most of the times), comin in and out. During the weekend I may have some less free time but, again, I'm mostly free and online.

What are some of your skills?: I can make music. I can also do some graphics. That's honestly about it. Nothing that really pertains to HF, unfortunately.

How can you contribute to the group?: I would love to help out in literally any way I possibly can.

Links to any contributions: I've done a ton of free graphics for the community. You can look at my rep. As for giveaways and stuff, I'm a 19 year old broke college students, unfortunately, I can't really afford that as much as I'd love to do it, hahaha.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): After I was on HF for awhile and joined a few groups, I realized that most were just the same and had no desire to join any group but Red Lions. Even to this day, I've steered clear of any sort of group recruitment or invitation. None of them have interested me. I guess I just want to feel like I'm part of some community and I think the Red Lions are exactly that. This is by far the most prestigious group on these forums and the only group I would join. I would be delighted with the privilege of wearing the userbar.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: As much as I would need to. Frankly, I don't find as much joy in this site as I used to. I don't really feel like I have any particular reason to be active anymore, unfortunately. This would be my reason to be active on HF again.

I don't really like to intervene on things that I feel don't require a response from me. Even on here, I post mostly to be funny or to debate. I take what I say, and how I hold myself (even online) very seriously. I like to give off the impression that I'm an intelligent person. I am also very opinionated and like to share those opinions. In short, I'm just a very conscious, outspoken introvert.

In one paragraph, describe your personality:

I find my self to be a very powerful personality with a great sense of leadership and serving others. I have a rather humorous side and love to sure a bit of character, but I always maintain a level of maturity. I get along with most people as I feel like I have a warm and friendly aura about me. I often get treated as the dad by the majority of my friends as I am always organizing trips and helping them around their house. I am the type of person that just pushes through life with whatever is handed too me, no task too big or too small. Late last year I was the second person to receive the 'Top Banana' award for "being a good example to all members." Which I think is a great reflection of my personality online and in person.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10:

I am generally an 8 or 9.

What are some of your skills?:

Audio/Visual production, Social media marketing, Professional Voice-over artist and Graphic designer.

How can you contribute to the group?:

I've been around since 2010 and have a profound knowledge about HackForums.

I am also a Mentor and have a wealth of information about the guidelines and rules around HF.

Links to any contributions:

HF Live - HackForums Community Radio Station

Along with this project which has taken months of planning, I run giveaways weekly on it and competitions on HF. The entire project is non-profit.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section):

I believe Red Lions is a very prestigious group which would be an honor to contribute too. I have always wanted to be a part of the group and remember sending a PM like twice a year to check if recruitment was opening soon. In my 5 years here, I have stayed away from groups as almost all of them are involved with drama, which has been illustrated time and time again. The last group I joined before Archive this year was Eminence back in the day. Red Lions is the only group I've always been open to joining one day. I believe I am a mature and respectable member of our community as shown by receiving MoTM this year and I would be a great asset and family member to the Red Lions group.

How much time can you devote towards group activities:

5-10 hours a day easily.

Thanks for taking the time to read.

In one paragraph, describe your personality: I would describe myself as slightly introverted, I consider myself intelligent, and I learn quickly. I have a good sense of humour and enjoy spending time with friends. I really enjoy learning new things, a lot of subjects interest me, and that is probably why I like computer science so much - it is an area of growth and research, and there is always more to learn. I also love learning languages, mathematics, sciences and philosophy to name a few. I always put effort into making my work the best it can be, I try hard to manage my time well, and I am not motivated by money or fame - rather I am motivated by knowledge. Hence, I do not sell any projects on HF but instead work in groups to learn and help others simultaneously. I would say I was mature and respectable in all areas, I do not troll or flame, instead I look to assist others wherever I can.

Rate your grammar, on a scale from 1-10: 10 (I am an editor for the HFNT)

What are some of your skills?: I can code in multiple programming languages (including languages from OOP, imperative and functional paradigms). I have a good knowledge of computer security and 'hacking'. I also know quite a bit about cryptocurrencies, as alluded to by my involvement in the Omnicoin Team.

How can you contribute to the group?: Activity, member quality, and participation in projects are the things I can offer. I enjoy partaking in group discussions and activities, and would be an active member in the subforum. I would continue to produce tutorials and assistance, thereby reflecting well on the group. I will also happily help out with group projects (as long as they are in areas related to my abilities). I believe any member of Diving could vouch for the fact that I am one of the most active partakers in group communities and discussions.

In your group description, you mentioned that you work together to make HF a better place. I believe I also contribute to making HF a better place. I have helped report many members/posts breaking site rules including members attempting to infect others with malware. I have never had a scam report against me, and easily meet all the requirements you listed. I have shown below that I have already given a huge amount of time to this forum. Overall, I am a very active, friendly, helpful and HQ member.

Reason why you want to join?(take some time to fill this section): I have been in many groups over my time at HF (Specialists, Divine, Debug, Null, Titans, Polymath, Echo, Crypto, The Brotherhood and Revolution, as well as numerous offsite groups), and can tell by the longevity of Red Lions that it isn't just a buy-and-sell money making venture for the leader. I want to be part of a group which has a good history, a high quality member base, and a promising future. By the fact that you have opened up a recruitment thread, I can tell that the group is aiming to grow - so I want to be a part of it. I don't just join groups for the userbar, I join them because of what they can offer me and I can offer them. To be a part of Red Lions is a symbol of prestige, and all the members I know in the group are HQ, so I would love to join your ranks.

How much time can you devote towards group activities: I have a busy schedule, I am sitting full time university at the same time as my final year of school + scholarship subjects, so my free time varies from day to day. In general, though, I will be able to find time to participate actively in the group and its activities, and will let you know if there are periods of time I may have to be inactive for.

Thank you for reading and considering my application. I put a lot of effort into this, so I hope I am accepted ?

If for any reason we're allowed to vouch for other members, I'd like to vouch for this one right here. He's done so much to help the community and the Omnicoin Team. He truly deserves a spot in this group. Best of luck to you, Mesh.

I joined HF when I was younger, unskilled, and over-ambitious. When I took my Hiatus I actually spent years in real life honing my skills for system administration. When I came back (not too terribly long ago) I was much more logical in the way that I handle situations. I am level headed, and specific. I would like to keep this forum a level headed place of learning. This place gave me a sense of what I wanted to be long before I was ever old enough to achieve it. Now that I have done so, I would like to give back to the community by helping in anyway I can.
