Thread: Different Different Language Section or 1 Common Section

Captain Steve Rogers - September 2, 2015, 7:23 am

Please read full post before you post.

Sometimes i can't get some concepts clear cuz of my poor English and i end up leaving that thing cuz i don't know whom to ask for help.

It will be good if we create mostly all major countries lang section like Hindi , Spanish , Dutch and etc.

Or we can do this

Make a sub section in The Lounge like English Improvement help or Explain __ to you.
So peoples can post their doubts there and get help.

To avoid peoples post in Different language we can make a rule "Post in English Only, If your English is poor then too no issue, Just try as clear as you can.", "Please do mention you native language or preferred language".

No user will be allowed to post in other language.

If someone want something explained then he can make a thread and peoples can post but in English only.

Peoples can also PM users of their country and explain them the thing in their Language if they don't understand in Post which is in English.

Section can also have tag like Eng , Span , Hindi , Dutch and etc.

I know it's a English forum.

Sorry for my bad English.

And Sorry if it's a very bad suggestion.

It got denied. D;

Hash G. - September 2, 2015, 8:34 am

It was suggested and denied before mostly because Staff can't understand and moderate all languages

I know but please take a look at my 2nd suggestion in OP.

Thank you sir, hope boss implement this.

Sorry I misunderstood you. I don't think there's enough activity to warrant a new section, however, you may post in the Education Nation section with a prefix such as [Homework]. If you include the language you need to do the homework for in the title you'll most likely find someone able to help you.

JustNotAnotherMulti - September 2, 2015, 10:16 am

I speak Russian as a secondary language. I'd highly support this.

As you said "I don't think there's enough activity to warrant a new section" >> many peoples don't ask their doubt cuz there is no such section.

Then EN section will be flooded with such LQ threads which are actually HQ for peoples like me.

A separate section will be way better for this.

LMK if you still have any question on my suggestion.

Not all. If they want to report they can.

Btw wait until your real account gets un-banned and don't make more accounts.

You might have used public Wi-Fi and got Last IP matching with 5 other but what about your username? and you also said you can make 50 more account in previous post.

Because I get banned from most forums as "Accidental multi". The name is sarcastic.

This would actually be a really good idea. I support it. The knowledge of computers (Namely hacking and coding) should be for people of all languages and nationalities.

Omniscient - September 2, 2015, 6:12 pm

Had Language sections years ago. Was removed because we can't properly moderate the content.
