Thread: Help Me Create My Forum And Earn Moderator Status

Natalie Dormerr - September 20, 2015, 10:35 am

Here is an updated version of the thread I had earlier. I am currently working on a forum based around programming called developerforums here is a link <http://developerforums.comli.com/> I am messing around with the theme right now so don't laugh.

I want to know what you guys post in the most here on hackforums and other forums so I can get a general idea of what to add. I am looking for ideas on sections of the forums I can add as well and if you come up with a good section you can become the moderator for it.

If you aren't Ub3r/L33t you must have at least 10+ rep. I am here to get help/ideas and suggestions, do not post if you are going to tell me "it wont work" or "You won't get any members".

I am serious about this forum because its my first and I want it to stand out from others, yeah I know there are a lot of other programming forums out there and that's something you can keep to yourself, I am still building this forum. Also should I choose a theme already built or edit my own? Might go with someones pre build theme.

If you are 100% down to it, you are willing to learn, not slack, give up after three months and you some kind of discipline then do not hesitate to PM me. I'm more than happy to help.
