Thread: [\[Divine\] || Official Group || Leadership Positions Available || \$100](#)

Nex+ - September 21, 2015, 3:07 pm

Coding complements marketing in an unparalleled fusion.

Divine is in search of one more leader. We have no intentions on rebranding, selling, or altering the group in anyway. The new leader and I will have a written contract on which we both agree on. You will not be kicked unless I sell the group, or break a major rule. We will have in our written contract that I won't be allowed to sell the group for X amount of time, to ensure a smooth transaction. You will also get a % of all profits in group projects and products. (10%-50%), on things such as, but not limited to, rat, keylogger, crypters, http + irc bots, and many other things we have in store for the future. No refunds will be granted.

Serious buyers only, non-sense or trolling will be ignored. Message me if you have any questions.

If you sell the group, what would happen to the leader?

Since you guarantee for X amount of time, so you can say that the leadership is temporary?

LMFAO Nex are you fucking kidding me? You just said on that last rebrand when you sold slots that you weren't going to sell the group/etc, and that you would NEVER be selling slots on this group, and here you are selling leadership slots. Deal with extreme fucking caution anyone who wants to buy into this, he's promised no rebrands/selling before and totally backtracked on his word.

We were not selling spots but due to members leaving, we have decided to sell a leadership spot. Also I do not think you read it fully. With a contract, signed by both parties Nex and whoever are bound to it. I would hope somewhere in the contract there is a spot saying If this is broken than etc. etc.. It would ensure both parties are covered if the contract is broken.

A contract is worth absolute fucking jack shit on HF.

There is nothing to say (which is what most people have done) just go and do something like this, then a few months realise they hate life on hf and want to focus on something else like real life, go sell the group and never come back.

Has happened plenty of times or in very similar circumstances.

There are allowed 7 leaders per group of my understanding, as of now Divine only has 2. If he gets reopened you will still be a leader.

2016 as in I can not sell the group until then, and it will more than likely be until 2017 on our contract. Leader and I will have a written contract we both agree on and they will not be removed unless they break a rule.

Edit - There are many methods within the SF on how to make easily over 1k a week and you can ask any Divine member on that to verify.

If you think he will line up a buyer without taking a major loss within 4months of posting his sales thread, then you're crazy. At the current rate, you could buy AnimeFAN, Void, Specialists, The Brotherhood, and maybe Echo (heard it was for sale). So I doubt he could sell Divine without taking at least a $2k loss in any decent amount of time, assuming the price for groups is $8k.

Also, it doesn't say anywhere that you'll be kicked if he simply rebrands the group.

If a rebrand they will be kept. I would take more than a 2k hit as I ended up paying over 12k for the group. So I can assure anyone I will not be selling for at least the next 2 years.

Oh you mean get a very low percentage of whatever products are being sold under the groups name (which is most likely very low because of previous problems with nex being called out, putting him in a negative light).

Groups are not what they use to be, and the owners want to treat the groups like a business, why can't the leaders treat it as an investment that they want to make money back on? That main point being selling spots like the Owners would.

Probably because the owner paid 7-12 times as much as any leader is paying for their position. They get to be apart of the group in a major way. Anybody that buys leadership of a group should buy it to be apart of the group itself in a major way, and if people are willing to blow $1k+ on awards then why not have something that you can actually interact with and be apart of? You don't make any return from a $1k award, but yet there are plenty of people buying it. Or the $500 award... that has a LOT more people buying it.

Instead of a small 24x24 award, you get a userbar that is like 20 times bigger, but also be able to control who can wear it, what it means to wear it, etc. Imo, a leadership spot to any group is worth $1500+. And for groups like Instinct, they sold for up to $2500, I even heard $3k for one of the spots lol. I doubt any of them made their "investment" back on those leader spots lol.

Most of those guys did, because V innie knew what he was doing. Award shows you support the site, leadership spots just show you wanted the userbar that bad and a bit of power that you would spend that much to gain the power to do, only for the leaders to sell down the road anyways. The only person who is making out is the Owner, albeit you are right about them paying more, leaders really don't get much. Dont make it out that the leaders get to "interact" with users, basically lounging in the subforum. They basically have to pay $1500+ to invite their friends to talk privately?

You could make profit by becoming the owner, rarely the leader though, unless you do buy-ins, which makes the group less attractive and lesser quality, unless it's as good as Illuminati or Polymath.

Also, Awards stay, that's correct. That's why people buy awards.

Young Donald - September 25, 2015, 12:35 am

It seriously makes me wonder what kind of person OP is.

It looks like he made this thread in 60 seconds.

He spent 70% of the post promising not to scam you out of the spot.

And used the last sentence to guarantee 10-50% (a huge leap rofl) of profits of future services. Which he did not name, or give insight to.

Then he finishes off by asking for 900$.

There is no information in this thread at all about why this spot is worth $900.

This is what happens when everyone just starts using these groups to profit. Everytime I turn around someone is selling partial ownership (how stupid), or selling leadership positions. Then a few months later we get to sick back with the popcorn and read the deal dispute.

Hopefully this is different and someone gets something of value for this insanely high price.

For some reason, you did the same thing OP did, and spent half of your post promising not to scam me lol (saying group won't be sold... twice), and promisn future profits of "group products" that are not listed.

What group products are these guys coming out with, that are so in demand that its worth it to buy $900 Rank to get in on?

So i get access to the subforum just like anyone else, and "get to be involved in the lead team" which should be a given, as it's leadership.

Group won't be sold till 2017, but it might get rebranded, plus Nex said in a post earlier that he promised "at least 2 months" of being a leader unless you do something wrong.

License to put the most hated groups name on my project? Good one.

Percentage of group sales profits, which will most likely be nearly non-existent because everyone shits on Nex for not being able to code, and the fact that this group is hated by nearly everyone except people in it.

A "written contract saying it won't be sold" doesn't mean jack shit, because Nex says "I can kick you if you do something I don't like" which he could just decide that he didn't like that you +3'd someone.

Basically Nex is being super fucking sketchy about the terms and conditions most likely because he's just trying to make money off this, then boot that person in x weeks. They wouldn't be SELLING leadership spots if they expected you to make profit off the "group projects" because they'd be better off not selling a leadership spot.

How did you ever know about "Debug" lol?

Btw, those who bought leadspots in Debug were never kicked. This is a leadspot being sold here.

We will have a contract which both parties are satisfied with.

Why are you selling the leadership position rather than running it for a month or 3 so that i could gain some attention.

It seems that most of the users are not going for Divine.

SIM-1472133 - December 11, 2015, 6:02 am

Lowering your price? must be desperate.... looks to me like a sell out xD

c x y k - December 11, 2015, 6:03 am i will bid $80 on this monthly spot my good friend

Scymo - December 11, 2015, 12:05 pm

i'd need some statistics on what the current group sales look like before handing over $100

ZerFallen - December 11, 2015, 4:14 pm

Divine seems to be a wonderful group. Anyone who ends up buying the leadership spot is a lucky individual.

I might be interested.

But I see everybody shitting on this.

This is considered a sales-thread. You're salestrashing and that being said; you can be reported for it. If you have a problem with what Nex's actions then create a community alert with adequate proof that he screwed you over wrongfully. Keep it off this thread.

Mons - December 12, 2015, 11:11 am

Bought leadership from Nex.

Thanks.

Euxine - December 13, 2015, 2:25 am

Why would somebody pay a person who can't code for entry/leadership to a coding group with horrible products that barely sell and have a terrible reputation?

Nex+ - December 15, 2015, 11:13 am

This is still up for grabs people.

c x y k - December 15, 2015, 4:20 pm
