there are multiple apps that helps you do that. They'll give you a number to receive texts. I don't remember the names right now.

It will not work, PayPal will only send you the sms to the number already registered on your account. If you add anymore to try and receive sms it will just give an error. I contacted PayPal support regarding this and it is intentional to prevent unauthorised use.

If you really need it badly you can get a sock in your hometown location and login using that. Note that premium socks subscriptions aren't cheap.
You can't just use any number, It has to be your number registered on PP.

I'm giving away an e-book on it. Check my threads if you're thinking about getting this done more often.
