

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Powerpoint alternate?

Rishabh - October 24, 2015, 4:31 am

Guys

Need to prepare an important presentation.

Any suggestion for an alternate to powerpoint? Will prefer an offline software.

The online tools like prezzi and slidebean are paid for features like private presentation, export to PPT. Therefore out of budget(unless someone can give me a free paid account :D)

TIA

Raaz - October 24, 2015, 4:33 am

Offline alternatives are libreoffice impress, WPS Office Presentation, both have to ability to save as .ppt and read .ppt. No idea about online ones.

Remix - October 24, 2015, 4:33 am

These presentation tools are fking bullshit.

Better use LaTeX for a presentation.

Rishabh - October 24, 2015, 4:45 am

(Oct 24, 2015 04:38 AM)MD5??????????????????? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) OpenOffice has a similar tool to PowerPoint called Impress. Why don't you just get the cracked version of PP tho?
Openoffice is crap.

And I have a paid version of PP. But I just don't want to use it for this presentation.

YihuYon - October 24, 2015, 4:46 am

WPS Office is a good alternate OP.

DrDoof - October 24, 2015, 4:49 am

Google presentation is pretty neat. It's online though. If you're on a mac there's keynote.

ImPerfectPersona - October 24, 2015, 5:01 am

If you're a student (aka have an email with .edu) you can get a free prezzi account.

Mnikkilla - October 24, 2015, 6:15 am

Use open office as an alternative, they let you save as word document / powerpoint.

Cammy - October 24, 2015, 6:16 am

- PowToon
- Google Drive Presentation
- Prezi
- 280 Slides
- SlideRocket

Adapter - October 24, 2015, 7:23 am

(Oct 24, 2015 04:31 AM)Rishabh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Guys

Need to prepare an important presentation.

Any suggestion for an alternate to powerpoint? Will prefer an offline software.

The online tools like prezi and slidebean are paid for features like private presentation, export to PPT. Therefore out of budget(unless someone can give me a free paid account :D)

TIA

Libreoffice is what I would use in offline mode. Never have to though. Online is good enough for me.

I use Google slides or PowerPoint online. I think you haven't heard of online free powerpoint tools provided by google and microsoft itself. So, here i.imgur.com/TzK4hQX.png

For google slides, go to:
drive[WARNING POSSIBLY INFECTED]google.com
then go to menu and choose slides

Hope this helps.

Absolute Greatest - October 24, 2015, 7:25 am

I know you said offline preferred but google presentation is really nice, that's what I use

Adapter - October 24, 2015, 7:25 am

And I am quite sure you can export to ppt using google slides or outlook powerpoint