

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: How to get a spoof email into a gmail inbox?

DangerLizard - October 29, 2015, 6:04 am

The google spam filter seems to have improved. How would I get a spoofed email into the inbox and not the spam folder?

I've tried various settings on emkei with no success. Any help appreciated. Thanks

LijpeMD - October 29, 2015, 6:07 am

Maybe create an email that looks LIKE the email you are trying to send with.

DangerLizard - October 29, 2015, 6:10 am

Oh I'm trying to spoof no_reply@snapchat.com. I did try spoofing simple boring hotmail accounts but still didn't work. So it's not the "snapchat" keyword. I'm just trying to get it to work at all until I try @snapchat.

LijpeMD - October 29, 2015, 6:11 am

(Oct 29, 2015 06:10 AM)DangerLizard Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh I'm trying to spoof no_reply@snapchat.com. I did try spoofing simple boring hotmail accounts but still didn't work. So it's not the "snapchat" keyword. I'm just trying to get it to work at all until I try @snapchat.

Pretty hard to bypass those filters lol, IDK what to tell you.

Quinidex - October 29, 2015, 6:12 am

Try different mailers , possibly make your own?

DangerLizard - October 29, 2015, 6:13 am

Yeah I remember being able to get into a hotmail inbox not too long ago. I imagine Gmail has a better system.

What's another more modern mailer I could use that you think would work?

Mutes - October 29, 2015, 10:19 am

<http://www.anonymailer.net>

I used to use this one.

Register for better results.

Also, it doesn't matter the email spoofer you used.

It's the domain that gets blocked. If you wanna test anything with my Gmail, PM me and I'll let you know if I get it.

DangerLizard - October 29, 2015, 8:44 pm

Thanks for the link I'll give it a try