Thread: monetizing blog with 38k+ followers

ajones - November 7, 2015, 3:56 pm

hi guys, first thread cherry popped

I have been lurking this website and other sites for a while now really researching on how to monetize blogs and I am aware of the different techniques that people use. I was just curious to see what has worked the best with you.

I want to pick one to focus on and I'm having trouble deciding on which method I want to use.

Its a tumblr blog, and it basically runs by itself. It has really good engagement too advice, tips, thoughts?

thanks

Try to build a list, provide content to that list, and then sell to it eventually. That is a very easy way to turn interaction into large amounts of money

An email list, sorry. You allow people to subscribe to your email list and then you use an autoresponder to provide them with content and eventually product/affiliate offers

Try ppi locker from ogmobi. Idk if the majority of your followers but it's worth a try

I'd never go with PPI on an interactive blog.

Whats the niche of your blog? Some niches are very easy to monetize, such as fitness, moneymaking, nutrition etc.
