

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Steam Market Float Checker

YaBoii - November 8, 2015, 8:54 am

I made a program that scrapes CS:GO items from the Steam market and checks the float value and then it will output the results in a listview in which you can sort the results by float value, price range, etc. The bot has an automatic buy function if items meet a certain criteria.

The reason this is profitable is because items with a low float value go for way over their normal market price. A lot of people dont care/know about float values and just put their skins that could be worth a lot of money on the market for nothing. Example; a few days ago I found a gun on the market which I bought for 3 cents and sold for 1 key ($2.20).

Alessyo - November 8, 2015, 9:01 am worth nothing. There are tools that do this for free.

YaBoii - November 8, 2015, 10:25 am

(Nov 8, 2015 10:01 AM)?Alessyo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) worth nothing. There are tools that do this for free. No. There are websites that do it, but you can only do it 5 times a day for free. And you normally cant check the float value of market items, only of items in peoples inventories.

Alessyo - November 8, 2015, 11:22 am csgo.exchange does it.

Anyway you're just reading simple memory, not such a big deal.

I have my own program. You could probs get like 10$ just cause lazy people.

YaBoii - November 8, 2015, 1:28 pm

(Nov 8, 2015 12:22 PM)?Alessyo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) csgo.exchange does it.

Anyway you're just reading simple memory, not such a big deal.

I have my own program. You could probs get like 10$ just cause lazy people.

Not reading memory (csgo doesnt even have to be open) and csgo.exchange is not free, nor is csgozone.net. The latter does allow 5 free uses per day per account though. Anyways, it doesnt use any of those methods.

630 - November 8, 2015, 8:22 pm

(Nov 8, 2015 11:25 AM)YaBoii Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No. There are websites that do it, but you can only do it 5 times a day for free. And you normally cant check the float value of market items, only of items in peoples inventories. This is free and unlimited.

<https://glws.org/#S76561198105687636A2280482163D16883436630920468625>

Also CSGOZone is now unlimited and csgo.exchange allows 500 searches per day.