

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: I have an idea for a semi-troll-like game idea

cogama - November 9, 2015, 1:38 pm

The gist is that you will be asked certain questions based on a category you pick, which could have anything to do with real life (ex. IQ test) or computer based questions (I may consider batch related questions, it's just that i'm not anywhere near fluent so unless i get help with those questions I won't be able to think of complex questions on my own)

The reason for the title is because i wan't it to have some sort of russian roulette factor in it, in the sense of if you answer correctly you move on, if you do not for lets say twice in a row, then it loops opening a file which crashes your system... lol

but this is just a thought i have and it's just for self educational purposes, any and all feedback and suggestions would help a lot, thanks

SavageBoys - November 9, 2015, 4:15 pm

Would probably be better and bit more "in good fun" if you instead used the fake BSOD script floating around along with another users full screen batch script rather than attempt to crash the system.

You can even change the BSOD text to look more like a game over screen.