

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What Headset Should I Get For Xmas?

Leostraza - November 10, 2015, 5:37 pm

I want a new headset for xmas, I'm tired of this g930 cutting out so much but I don't know what to replace it with..

I've already had the Razer Megalodon, and I'll tell you, you get what you pay for. I payed some $300 (at the time they were brand new) and used them for 3 maybe 4 years and they didn't break or anything, best headset I've ever had.. These G930s broke after the first year, but only minor on the ear piece, not too much hassle and you can't notice it. The real problem is the cutting out that it has when you're either out of range or even randomly.

I want something that is wired, I also want something that has a controller like the Razer Megalodon headset with nice sound, preferably studio-quality, surround sound you know the deal.

Any that you would recommend?

Simply Gamer - November 11, 2015, 6:27 pm

I use senheiser 361D , pretty awesome headphone but a little bit expensive

Leostraza - November 11, 2015, 10:21 pm

(Nov 11, 2015 07:27 PM)Simply Gamer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I use senheiser 361D , pretty awesome headphone but a little bit expensive

I couldn't find the 361, but the 363 look amazing.

I watched a review on them and they're exactly what I'm looking for.

Thanks for the suggestion!

btw, cost isn't a problem, it's a Christmas present, basically all I'm asking for is these things.