What do you think about these userbars I made?

They are not professional at all but I would like to share here since I loved to work on this 'snake' style and the results are very colourful:

These are my favourite 5 in their original size, link to imgur because with the blank background it is more visible their 'grid' behind:

I think web dev looks really weird

Idk man, I don't think it's my kind of style... I don't like it that much ;/

too hard to see the actual text... Try darkening the background and lighting the text up a bit.

I like the basic look of them but they are a bit hard to read. I would try something to make the text more distinctive personally. Good work though.

Very creative!! I have to agree with shadow though, web-dev looks kind of odd. :)
