Well you do remember that electric engines provide amazing amounts of torque. Like the Tesla Models S P85D.

I believe my car does 217 lbft of torque with 202 HP or the other way around.

Speedometer maxes out at 220 KM/H, I've taken it up to 200 KM/H.

Like literally tapping the thing keeps you in electric but as soon as you start putting your foot down on the gas peddle the gas engine turns on. But at times you can be in gas and electric while using like 8 litres/100km

For a second car looking to get a 06 or newer BMW 3 series. Been wanting one for a while and it would have been cheaper to get that instead of this 08 Highlander but its a great car to move stuff around.

Everyone has their own opinion.

I find it reliable cause I move stuff around the city a lot and I have a lot of room in the back. Plus the stock sound system is pretty good.

I'm thinking of making it pink with black flames on the sides.

Maybe some chrome rims too.

Whistles are awesome.... but the chew chew chew sound from my crushed Blow Off Valve sounds better.

Mine sounds exactly like this: To the people who think Im retarded for having it flutter... My tuner crushed my BOV to hold more boost since the stock Evo IX can't hold more than 25 PSI of boost so you crush it so it holds 30+. He does this to many Evo's.

The only trouble I've had with mine was a dead battery from it being on the lot.
Ever since then, in my 3 years of ownership I've had to pay a total of $20 for my state inspection sticke. I'm lucky the vehicle came with Honda Care (Free Oil Changes, Maintenance, etc)

Wow, what a great deal. Is it possible to sign up for that or do you have to buy it with the car/lease?

I think if you lease an accord the price is already included with the monthly payments but the price of the accord is increased.

That's sick, I bought mine from a third party not a dealership so I don't get that.
