crazykill420 - November 23, 2015, 2:24 am

Does anyone own or have used AA Rust hack that can tell me about it?

HaruhiAA - November 23, 2015, 7:54 am

I own it, what about it :3

crazykill420 - November 23, 2015, 5:58 pm

What does it do because it has a long list and I play experimental and is it easily detectable?

charlo - November 23, 2015, 8:46 pm

yes i have use AA the admin helios say is not detected but this shit is detected and detected bad hack i need other but i think other private dont exist

Some people report bans, but I test it daily.

It's completely safe.

I've tested the cheat for ages and its safe to use.

After starting, cheat enabled: <https://i.imgur.com/VSbloJE.png> da_king_69 - November 24, 2015, 2:38 am if you want rust experimental hack aa is your only option, i mean in the end no hack is COMPLETELY UNDETECTED, you obviously risk something, but the hack works great...

just for safety use a side account, and never inject the hack after the game just updated, and avoid using speed and jump hacks, if people see you your pretty much fucked.

basically as long as you play safe your fine. if you want it to rage! it wont last you for shit

Can you send me a pm, i've been interested in AA since a long time but i have some questions about it (don't worry won't ask about detection rate or something like that), and i don't want it just for rust, i want the cheats for other games you support too. I just need some advices since it's my first time trying hacks in online games ^^ Cheers!

AfunnyBunny - November 24, 2015, 1:29 pm

Used AA you can get eac scanned, as a result of hacking under a eac scan you get hwid banned not worth risking playing rust forever (or until new hwid).

Also another downside to the AA hacks is the admins dont refund when you get a error or when the hack doesn't work if attempted you get banned on all levels.

It's detected buddy. Not worth it. At least the Rust part of AA.

Btw the part of people that are countering bans like the one you can see here (from an AA staff member) are just a hoax to keep the status as "undetected" so people keep buying it. :-)

We won't refund anyone. That's a policy. What we usually do as an exception (not really, it's the only option before everyone goes all chargey-back) is try and get the person to change to a different game). What he says isn't a lie. AA does not refund. Even if the product itself is a lie.

I'm not lying. Cus in the previous posts I do acknowledge people are getting bans.

I'm genuinely not getting banned by Rust and so is our coder.

I could disable the cheat and the status but this will upset thousands of other users who are using it and are NOT getting banned.

Now I can help you if you get banned from the game so please keep hacking. I can't help you with a ban from AA, I can and will help you get your money back from the scumbags though. Just PM me in either case.

the sad part is that when someone comes to aa to ask to get a ban unlifted, the rudeness from the staff is something shocking...

i was queuing in chat for support and some user joined asking if he could talk to an admin to get his account unbanned as he was just banned after 3 hours of using it.. just because he didnt know what he was doing and complained to support(which is completely normal! if someone is new to the site and doesnt know where to look!)

but anyways

the way the staff made fun of that guy was just terrible told him to go fuck himself and he had to pay them such much more but they insulted him soo badly... and i honestly dont know why they are soo rude to people i mean this is to the staff of AA...

dont you think you guys cross the line abit?

dont you think its abit your fault sometimes too?

because from what im seeing its not only one or two peeps complaining... its an insane amount lol and no other hack forums has this problem..

just a thought of mind

and if you ban me for just stating facts lol go ahead...

i just said what i saw not saying anything against the client...which i like

and honestly snjoy

its just my piece of mind to maybe changing the behaviour of the staff in the AA community?

Reff - December 1, 2015, 7:51 pm

They banned me on AA for posting here relating to the Rust framework being a hoax when I was just copy pasting what one of the moderators told me. If you notice I was speaking in first person when I have nothing to do with AA staff.

GG. This is for you to see what AA Staff is regarding the community base. Thankfully they have enough hoaxes and working products to keep it running forever.

This is what you get for being honest in a community like this:

SIM-2910527 - December 2, 2015, 9:28 am

I don't really have a real (present) complaint against AA other than them maintaining that the Rust hack was perfectly fine despite a massive wave of ban reports for quite some time and that any detections must have been solely been from user error. They eventually conceded this though, so now I'm happy, but maybe they should increase their hack QA team or whatever to a few more people and systems for a broader representation. Nothing against Haruhi personally as he tends to be pretty chill, but being told it must have been my fault when I followed every step perfectly for about a week and never even used the aimbot, speedhack, or jumphack (just ESP) was more than a bit frustrating. You can see some of my other comments on AA in a few of the more recent threads here, I'd invite people looking to purchase to look over them. I can't post links yet as I need fifty posts though.

Overall, they are a decent enough hack company for what you pay and the hack itself is fairly good despite the recent detection issues, though improvements could be made and CS can only benefit from being a bit more professional and understanding in some matters. I'm not sure I approve of them banning people from using their services simply for criticizing aspects of how they run their business outside of their forums as seen above in this thread, but it is their company and their rules in the end.

I am pretty sure you are leaving something out of this because the staff treat people they way they treat them, so if you are an adult with them they will treat you in the same way. Since you probably don't know and we don't know why the guy was previously banned and you have no idea how he may have treated the staff i guess we have to assume by your post the guy must have been a real dick because the live chat is always open and so are the forums for support. Doing a chargeback because you don't ask for help isn't going to get you anywhere, its just going to get you a perm ban. As an adult how can you later complain they ban you again because the last time you basically tried to use the software and then opened a dispute after you used it. Its called stealing in my eyes. You can look over the years its always the same thing. People don't take the time to write down a post saying hey i need help or join the live support and request it. They simply open a dispute with paypal because they aren't computer savy and then decide to come back later on because they know its not a scam probably because there buddy uses it or some shit and they feel stupid they couldn't understand or take the time to read or really ask for help. In the end being patience does miracles.

Act mature? My ban was applied due to a discussion OUTSIDE of the AA community, and you're telling me to act mature?

I actually am not a frequent HF user my self. But as to all generalization in the world with species, races and ethnics, you cannot generalize a user just because it is posting on a community. It's like me, saying russians(or americans or whatever it's just an example) are all cunts. No. So to the "acting like most kids here", I saw a thread being posted about a discussion I had with a moderator that was faking such proof, I limited my self to copy paste what he said here so HF users wouldn't get scammed.

I got my money back plus got another subscription running, who cares?

I talked to HelioS about the Rust hack actually. All he said was it was undetected. He of all people know that EAC only bans for known signatures. The rust module has been detected for ages now. Now stop making accounts just to post here and back up AA disclosure threads. ?

Have a nice day.

Just updating my review of AA here, I recently used their customer service and it has markedly improved since around six years ago. I was able to get things cleared up with them over a misinterpreted chargeback from a long time ago by being courteous and paying the amount that was accidentally chargebacked from them. They can be a little brusque at times, but they do have to deal with a lot of bullshit and stupid people, so I can understand why. I'm still not 100% sure what the detection status for Rust is at the moment, but I will update you all once it is clarified further.

So, in sum, I don't have any issues with AA at the moment and the hack, when undetected, works well and I've had no problems with it. It's also the only one to my knowledge that is not a scam and is updated regularly. Not being a shill here as you can see with my post history that I'm not afraid to give an unbiased review of AA, but AA is the only solid Rust hack out there, thanks staff and Helios. My advice to people buying and using AA is to be extremely polite when talking to staff members, more so than you might normally be, and just understand they deal with a lot of BS from day to day.

I'm not sure why so many people seem overly butthurt against them, I mean, they are the only ones providing the hack, of course they are going to get detected faster as a result with a company like EAC. If people want this to change they are going to have to convince other coders to take a shot at it, or otherwise just accept the quicker bans as a side effect of cheating on Rust in particular just like you have to do for DayZ.

And Garry Newman, if you are reading this, fuck you. I wouldn't even have to hack if you didn't make sulfur mining such a miserable pain in the ass and nerfed quarries to hell, I'm playing a shooter/survival game, not an ore mining simulator.

Idont agree with every opinion here. I made super friendly experience with the AA Support. If you are good to them they are good to you. I used the Rust cheat since Summer this year. In the beginning was everything perfect but after some month my Account got EAC banned just after 1-2 days. I tried everything.. to change my HWID in case EAC tracked them etc. I dont know what Haruhi does different than most of the AA customers of the rust hack but there have to be something that is not correct with the Hack.

AA is bullshit u must be really desperate to buy from them, only reason the might get customers buying the rust cheat is because they're the only well known open providers for the experimental, but indeed both staff and software for rust which is detected like every week, it's just shit. Would rather recommend someone to not cheat at all than buying AA for rust.

As a lover of AA, I was banned using the cheat within 4 days.

As with all hacks use at your own risk..
