Thread: <https://hackforums.net loads without CSS>.

hackforums.net loads fine but <https://hackforums.net> loads without CSS.

I have the https bookmarked on my browser so at first I was confused after seeing that.

Just asking if it will be fixed.

https is the issue. How come you're trying to load it via https?

I started using safari which had the https version bookmarked and that's when I noticed.

It's probably because it's being requested through http rather than https, so it's an "unsafe script".

Probably.

There is really no reason to use HTTPS on HF.

Omni has stated before he will not add https to HF, I can't find it someone else can link.

It's supposed to be like this. There is no need for this to be used as you aren't inputting any sensitive data while browsing this site.

Want to login securely? Go ahead and use the HTTPS for the login process. There hasn't been an account stolen from any MITM attack for not using HTTPS.

These threads have been made time and time again, there is simply no need for this to change.
