Me and this user had a deal for my tumblr.

$180 PP for my 2 digit "03". I gave him the info to the account, and he claimed that he was signed out while he was securing it.

He then leaves me a neg saying "DWC blah blah blah"

PROOF

The images don't work for me.

This is hilarious, firstly you didn't create the thread correctly. The images don't work and the links are wrong.

I'll explain to the people that actually want some information.

I was planning on purchasing this account from this user for the price of $180 via PayPal, his account was legit. I had offered to use a Middleman, but the fees would have to be covered by him obviously. He proceeds to tell me that he doesn't mind going first without any hesitation, so I go along with it of course.

He sends me the account information along with his paypal email.

I log into the account, to make sure its legit and that all is well with the account. It is, I then reply to his PM with the following "Ok logged in, just going to secure then send payment. Give me a moment." (<http://prntscr.com/98u4yq>) to which he replies "Sounds good fam". As I am in paypal about to send him the funds I go back to make sure I verified the email change on the account, I refresh the page and I am logged out, none of the previous information he has given me has worked to log in.

My assumption is, he was expecting the funds to come through without myself noticing that he had changed the information on the account while I was paying, lucky for me I went back to check everything.

And this is how the conversation ended.

This nigga tryna cover his tracks because I threatened to post a report.

Why would I offer up a middleman if I was planning on scamming, yet you claim you need the money quick and you "trust me" when we've been talking no more than 5 minutes.

Looks legit, did you re secure the account or does he have possession of it?
if it's the latter, gl getting it back.

Closing this due to me recovering pulling my account back, deal with extreme caution.
