Thread: Today, I finally stood up for myself.

Great Britian - December 4, 2015, 2:28 pm

I usually get picked on as I am not the brightest spark in the year however, I am no where near being one of the least educated people. So anyway's, let us begin.

I was casually sitting down with my friends and then the bully comes up to me (I am 6ft and pretty strong but he is way larger than me) and he said "Get the fuck up faggot", then I said "No". And then it escalated, he grabbed my collar and picked me up, he then threw me against a wall and I was saying to myself 'Not today bitch' so I speared him (illegal rugby tackled him) into a wall and started beating the shit out of him.

He had to go to hospital as he has a broken nose, man... The adrenaline feels so nice, I love it. But yeah, that's my story of standing up to a bully, what's yours?

Violence isn't the way forward, however, neither is being a bully.

Good job OP...

My father was a "tough guy" who faught a shit-ton and I was brought up with that mindset, so I've never personally had a bully, but I would always suggest standing up to one...

Glad ya got that great feeling of victory...

GOD OF SARADOMIN - December 4, 2015, 3:45 pm

Feanor - December 4, 2015, 3:47 pm

You should of done that from the start, especially if you are 6ft. No respect for you since you didn't nip it in the bud from the beginning.
