I remember I purchased a Lenovo gaming laptop earlier this year and it came loaded with bloatware that you don't need.

Feel free to uninstall any program that have the word Lenovo in it.

I second this. You should also check if you have the Malware they have preinstalled on most of their computers as well.

A tip when you want that it booting quicker and it use all cores then press start and write "msconfig" then switch to "Start" tab and activate the Checkbox called "No Gui Start" then click on "Advanced Options" and you can select all Processor Cores too ?

I suggest you remove McAfee, 54/56 detection keylogger bypassed McAfee.

I think theres a program that removes all of the crap from your computer that's pre put there.

I would definitely remove anything that looks spammy or malware. any stores, and default crap that's on your desktop etc.

I'd even go as far as removing games that you can remove
