You cannot get certified unless you pass the exam. which if you did. you will surely get the certificates. and just to let you know.. there's no grading system. its simply a certificate if you've scored 80% minimum marks in the exam you required to take.

I will be registering your profile, completing all formalities required before you can take exams. and the big thing is. I'm sparing you trouble to sit in exam hall. INSTEAD, I'm taking care of everything on my own. and in the end. I'm getting you certified, like you did it yourself.

What's annoying about the Cisco exams is that some of they arn't even hard because of me not knowing the material, the way the questions get worded is cryptic as hell. :/ Instead of whatever the hell they're saying, "Create a vlan on interface3" would be WAY more easy to understand >.> Though I have to ask, if you work for CompTia, how do you certify Cisco certs? Good. Glad to see someone doing something about this kinda thing... Workforce doesn't want unqualified people who cheat on tests and exams and get qualifications without actually knowing anything :(.

Wondering this myself. Also, any idea on when/if you're gonna start doing CCNA again? If you do CCNA again, are you able to do any higher-up ones than that from Cisco too?

I'm planning on taking Networking + this year where I'm enrolled, Isn't there two different prices? With one allowing a retake? Just wondering.

I am messaging you on skype regarding this.

Nopee - October 27, 2016, 12:35 am

Do you still do.

MCSE package and CCNA?

TYLER - October 27, 2016, 12:44 am

This is pretty fucking awesome and would be useful to people who actually have the proper knowledge to play it off but quite funny to see people asking what it's for. Pretty worried they might buy this thinking it'll take them far. GLWS, OP!

Rollins - October 28, 2016, 9:38 am

Has anyone that paid for this service actually received all their certs?

B?ker - October 28, 2016, 1:13 pm

Vouch for him, I got one of the my first certs today! Thanks you man,

Will update when all are done

HackOnTheGo - November 7, 2016, 2:11 pm

Hi, I bought this awhile ago and can vouch! You get for what you paid for. I would not recommend buying this before you plan how to use it. Do not use it to show off. There are cheaper ways for doing so ? if that is the case. I bought the google one, used it, now I have a leg into google after I graduate. Might buy one more for something else I have planned. ?

Snillor - November 8, 2016, 4:56 am

User knows what he's doing. Good luck with sales, buddy.

There is no point doing this if you aren't able to learn what is required, however, good luck with sales boss.
