The $100 does come with a contract I am pretty sure. I have asked Nex to halt the selling of spots until mine gets sold though. If you buy this spot, you are entitled to what I had within the group, example the $100 buy ins could be removed if they voided the contract. I could not be removed from the group.

Eh, it's not that.

It's rather that most of them don't have clue on what they're doing and/or are blind in their very own ways.

"don't have clue on what they're doing" , would go along with leaders leading a coding project. I see what you're saying though.

This group has been terrible from the get-go and is being milked by Nex (who can't code at all) for every cent. I can't see this as a worthwhile investment for anything over $25.

I am not pissed one bit to be honest, and yes I have worked with many members on this forum. Anyone who has ever partnered with me on anything knows that I don't like to fuck around and like to make the dollar when its there. I'm pure business, and yes about the quick-made products, I bought ownership to everything I ever released and hired people to do edits for me. Everything in the members auction right now is going to get a retheme/reskin and a new name it will be resold. Thats the market breaking down to you right there. Its not just me, I just use it to the best potential.

No you don't, so stop acting like you're on top of the game(because you're not ?).

Your products are shitty and you've been called out by many members as well as ruined your reputation as a leader and marketer on-site, and anyone who buys something from you is more than likely misinformed, or actually sees potential to make money off the next ignorant user.

Unlike you, members like Maximum, Tick, Arrow, and many other HQ members who are known for selling similar products to the previous provide at least decent products(or at least support), since we don't see many issues with their products, do we? Then again, you are just another penny pincher, so I don't blame you for your practice.

This market is manipulable, I understand, but members gotta realize that abusing it will work it's way around to biting you in the ass.

I still have the sour taste of you not passing your group to MeshCollider. You really are scum.

Which means that leadership in Divine is a bad investment because it has no return, unless you're a coder.

Sorry you wasted your money.
