1. Vince Staples - Summertime '06

Agent Raigar - December 21, 2015, 10:13 am

Imma listen to Summertime '06 right now, since you have put it after TPAB, I suppose it must be crazy good.

LeGodJames - December 21, 2015, 12:38 pm

Documentary 2 and 2.5 was pretty dope as well

You're right, I like 2.5 more but they both were really good projects.

Loved Good:AM, The Rodeo flare wore off after about a week for me. It's still a decent album though.

Good list but I personally think Young Thug and Future are wack and that A$AP album could've been a lot better but was weighed down by some particularly bad tracks.

cough Fine Whine cough cough

Haha, I loved Fine Wine. MIA's part though short was very enjoyable. And Young & Future both create a different type of music than one another. Future is more embodying his depression into a kind of fiery, hellish environment whereas Thug is sort of just having fun with the way he does melodies and pronounces his words with very unique and different flows. I love them both.
