Thread: So charlotte wont have a new season?

Magna imperium - December 29, 2015, 12:47 pm

I just watched the end and, i have seen something about ovas or something. can anyone confirm me this?

Spoiler (Click to View)

NO KISS WHY I CRY.

nobodygamezlikeme - December 29, 2015, 1:03 pm

Hate to say it but most likely not,click to know why Spoiler (Click to View)due to the fact that Yu took all the powers of the effected so of they made another season idk where they would go on with the story but this is only my take on it

Zexo - December 29, 2015, 1:05 pm

You might want to put a spoiler on that post above me.

Also ya I doubt it will get a new season but I loved it.

BlackholesOnii-Chan - December 29, 2015, 1:58 pm

Their is a ova coming out in 2016.

Lone - December 29, 2015, 4:28 pm

Damn that is unfortunate the way they ended it seemed like they could of done a lot with it.

Kiyoshi - December 29, 2015, 4:59 pm

That last ep was like on steroids or something. Was like a 10ep episode. rofl

Then again, I don't really see why and how they're gonna continue from that point. Was a decent enough end - if I'm not mistaken.

It's like playing a pokemon game.

At the start they tell you that there's an evil organization called team rocket.

You spend like 11 episodes training your pokemon at pallet town and the one next to it.

Then you defeat all 8 gym leaders + elite four + champion + complete pokedex in 1 episode.

And guess what?

You never saw team rocket except only in your dreams

I'd rather not have a season 2.

Houtarou - December 29, 2015, 9:56 pm

Doubtful that it will have a second season. The show was amazing, but i'd prefer it if they left it the way it is, rather than ruining it with a second season.

Xepher The Cat - December 29, 2015, 10:29 pm

I'd say the anime ended well. Doubt it'll have a second season.

ankitkhosya - December 29, 2015, 11:06 pm

it could not possibly continue with a Superpower genreline

if it did, it would turn shitty like many other anime out there just getting new seasons until people stop watching them.

Yuikoro - December 29, 2015, 11:42 pm

The way the last episode went, it ruined the chance of there being a second season, less they choose a different character and went back in time from before Yu took everyone's powers. I wish they expanded the length of the series to be 24 episodes long where the 11 on the second half was spent in the several different countries (or just one country to introduce new characters), and then the final 24th episode being back in Japan. It'd introduce so much more character development to Yu in that we could see him slowly losing himself and becoming more and more insane while losing his memories and purpose.

I feel like it'd have been more poetic if they dramatized it like that instead of all in one episode. Felt too fast, didn't have much emotion compared to what it could've been. It still ended nicely but not in a way where it deserves (or has the chance to have) a second season.

Nekito - January 10, 2016, 8:18 pm

I don't think it'll have a new season. I loved the show but I think the ending was good enough, if they try to add something else they might ruin it...

Rey? - January 10, 2016, 8:30 pm

OVA been announced, no news on a second season however

Larceny - January 10, 2016, 9:41 pm

It's fine, I didn't want another episode of that shitty show anyway.

It ended well enough. A little more of an epilogue would be nice, but I ain't complaining.

Nethermost - January 13, 2016, 3:00 am

Stop bringing it up. It was a good show, I wanted to have it a second season but there is no point. So sad. Makes me cry

I doubt it will have a second season. And maybe it's better that way. The show was good but... Let's just be honest here, for anyone familiar with Jun Maeda's works... It just felt like he was re-using old formulas over and over again.

"Okay, so this was a big success, and made people cry in that anime, let's use something along the same lines in Charlotte."
