

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: tattoo advice for first tattoo

Charmander - January 2, 2016, 10:33 pm

hi , ,

I am getting my first ever tattoo this month and i was wondering which one would actually look good on a 18 year olds left arm i have knocked it down to this design to start off my sleeve and i like this you can suggest me some which look cooler thanks.

S?arlet - January 2, 2016, 10:35 pm

Don't get a tattoo unless it truly has some deeper meaning for you, and it'd be better to think long and hard and come up with your own design so you're not really copying and pasting someone else's art.

I would find a great tattoo artist and throw some ideas at him

SLY - January 2, 2016, 10:35 pm

Don't get something that will mean nothing to you later on in life because you will regret it.... and maybe get something smaller as it as your first time because once they start they can't stop.

Charmander - January 2, 2016, 10:36 pm

(Jan 2, 2016 11:35 PM)S?arlet Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Don't get a tattoo unless it truly has some deeper meaning for you, and it'd be better to think real long and come up with you're own design so you're not really copying and pasting someone else's art.

I would find a great tattoo artist and throw some ideas at him he can help a lot thats what im thinking im going to get him to make it half jinx face out of league of legends and half orc

S?arlet - January 2, 2016, 10:37 pm

That's a better step forward and body placement is very important too, so decide on that as well

problems.x - January 2, 2016, 10:39 pm

Honestly i'd recommend you get something small and unnoticeable to anybody that isn't close, that way it will reduce the way people look at you liek badly, say if you have your arms covered in tats and go to a job interview, not going to be good right? Just get something on your wrist small, or on your chest, that's my opinion, unless you want to pursue filling your whole body with ink but until you are sure i'd get something small and unnoticeable.

aleximo - January 2, 2016, 10:40 pm

Just think about it and make sure you want it, and tell the artist if you don't like it or not, it will stay there for ever.

and to be honest a los meurtos or day of the dead face is a great tattoo for a sleeve will be getting one myself soon

Hello Buddy - January 2, 2016, 10:41 pm

I wouldn't get anything too big unless it has a real meaning to you. I would make it big enough to be seen but not an entire forearm.

Zuro - January 2, 2016, 10:57 pm

What would look smart is a huge 'Employability' across your face that kinda morphs into a ridiculous skull or some other generic load of bullshit on your arm.

blerthotel - January 2, 2016, 11:01 pm

I'm a tattooist, That looks pretty cool,