The Brotherhood described as an organization of individuals who are bound by loyalty to exercise their skills, knowledge, and time, which will encourage the acts of assisting oneself and others. We do not have one main purpose, skill, or idea. Over the past few months, we have worked on relaunching and improving the Brotherhood to better than ever. The group stands as one of the most reputable on Hack Forums and we aim to keep it that way. With the new structure changes made, the Brotherhood School going well and new goals set for the group; we have decided it is time to open up recruitment once again. Our two main section right now our WHH and Windows, with more to come in the future, we would like to fill these first but do not let that stop you from applying.

Requirements

For this recruitment, we are looking for members that meet the following criteria: No more than 20% Warning Level.

- Not involved in black hat activities such as selling RAT's on this site.

- Made contributions that have benefited the site.

- No Deal Disputes, though each one will be investigated accordingly.

- An overall positive reputation in the Hack Forums community, having a certain amount of positive reputation does not apply to this.

- Can meet group responsibilities weekly such as help desks.

- Are in no more than three user-owned groups. Groups such as Writers, Mentors, Staff, etc do not count towards this.

The members will all be hand picked and carefully interviewed, we are keeping the group small at <50 members, as we fill this is all that can managed successfully.

Application

Be very detailed and make your application stand out as we will be taking in no more than 20 members at this time. There are no limits to what you can or cannot include in your application, if you think something will make you stand out, feel free to add it.*note additional things such as graphics do not help, just use the form

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: I was a member of this group in the past, can I get an invite?

A: No, you will have to apply like everyone else. If you were removed for inactivity that's a key point on whether or not you will be accepted again.

Q: Do you accept buy-ins?

A: The Brotherhood has never accepted buy-ins, and never will. If you're looking to buy into a group we suggest you look elsewhere.

Q: In the past you've had recruitment for a White Hat Helper program. Will this be returning anytime soon?

A: At this time yes it will as soon as the current class is finished. Do not apply here if you want in the school, wait till that recruitment opens up.

Q: I have not heard anything about my application, should I reapply or PM you?

A: No, do not do that, wait till next recruitment is open. Also, STOP APPLYING THROUGH CP.

Wow i thought this group completely died off, nice to see recruitment are starting again.

I'd apply but my skills do not apply to HF unless someone needs their furnace / ac repaired.

How come? Just asking, since maybe the user is liked and wants to be in multiple diverse communities!

The more groups you are involved with the less time you can allocate towards The Brotherhood. This group will require you to allocate time in order to stay in it.

Ah, ok then

Let me get off this thread, but this seems like a nice group to join ?

Tell us about yourself:

I'm a 19 year old software developer from Germany. In my free time I like to meet friends, play football, write some code or help people in the coding section.

Currently I'm working as a software developer in a company in Germany.

Due to this job I got a deep insight into professional and commercial software developing which I try to share with the coding section.

List all contributions to the site have you made within the 6 months:

During my time on Hackforums I released several guides and coding help desks to help everyone who needs the help.

These are just the public guides and help desks (I released more in private subforums):

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?:

I use Hackforums to help and talk to people so I guess I will be where I am now.

I just hope I will get the opportunities to participate on some nice projects.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?:

Since you worked on a relaunch I hope that the group will become more active and offers me these opportunities to participate on projects to improve HF.

List any skills, training or certifications you have.

I don't have any certifications yet.

3 years ago I started learning C++ and 2 years ago I started learning web related languages (PHP, HTML, CSS, JS).

I'm experienced in web security as well.

During this time I gained a lot of experience in several coding areas and computer technology.

Meanwhile I have experience with several languages:

C languages (C, C++, C#)

Web languages

Python

Java

Lua

Why should we pick you?:

Actually there's no reason but I have a broad knowledge in coding areas and computer technology due to my job as software developer and the years I spent with coding.

I would try to help every member of the group as good as I can.

Thanks for reading my application

Greetings Remix

Tell us about yourself: I'm very chill, and at the same time outgoing and ambitious.

List all contributions to the site have you made within the 6 months: I haven't made any to be honest, I'd like to start contributing to the community though.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?: I see myself being a very well-known and respected member.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: I will have a lot more motivation to contribute more to the community, knowing that I am representing not only myself, but the brotherhood.

List any skills, training or certifications you have. I am good at marketing, monetizing, social engineering, I'm minoring in graphic design, and I am a pretty decent gamer. A skill I have in life is that I am a car detailer for Volkswagen and Audi. I know how to make shitty cars look better than they ever have.

Why should we pick you?: I've been a member on this forum for 5 years, I've been in numerous groups and I know exactly how to participate in them. I can guarantee that I will contribute more to the community by cash giveaways and tutorials.

I've done a lots of more contributions but this is the contributions I've done withing 6 months.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?:

Hard question. I will hopefully have more knowledge in 6 month in everything and hopefully be able to help a lots of people here on HF.

right now I don't really have so much knowledge when it comes to things like coding etc.

But I'll definitively be here in 6 months and I see myself even more HQ & tons of more contributions by then.

I'm trying to learn new things. Even though someone needs help in something I don't know anything about I try to help the person/member anyways, doesn't matter what it is.

That's how I work and that's how I'll stay. :)

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?:

It will probably and hopefully help me out to reach new goals and learn new stuffs.

I know Brotherhood is a known and respected group.

there's tons of knowledge to get from there and trust me. If I want to learn something new, I'll do it, that's it.

That's the spirit everyone should have hehe.

So I will hopefully learn a lots of new stuffs in Brotherhood and learn to help others more etc.

That's what I usually do and what I love to do. But doing it with Brotherhood will be even more amazing hehe. :)

List any skills, training or certifications you have.

It's not much. But hopefully something.

Music / Producing: I've been producing music since 7 years back and now a quite whole lot about it.

Even though this might not come in handy on HF, that's one of my specialists.

I also know a quite lot about cracking as well. I crack all kinds of accounts a lot.

and if someone wants to have any help when it comes to cracking I'll be here to assist.

Sadly, that's pretty much the only things i'm good at the moment. But I hope to learn more about other things so I can teach and help other members as well.

Like I said, I might not have much knowledge right now but helping people who wants help is the #1 thing I like to do on this forum because I love to other people.

Why should we pick you?: Well I've seen some of you guys around on Hackforums from time to time and I have understood that you're a very reputable and high quality group on HF.

You're very well respected and everyone would do pretty much everything to get into the group, So would I do.

I feel like I can contribute to the group as i'm active everyday, I think I'll fit in just fine in this group, I'll be active every single day and help you out with whatever you need help with.

I'll basically be as helpful as I can and try to help other members out as much as I can and as far as my knowledge can reach.

Thanks for letting me apply Brotherhood!
Take care!

Tell us about yourself: I'm a member on here who has really only ever posted in threads I'd find on the front page of the View New Posts button, but overall have a vast assortment of skills. This includes knowledge in: Computer hardware

White-hat computer help

Computer software debugging

Marketplace and sales

Investments & real assets

Managing game servers

Debating & SRPP

Gaming

Health, nutrition and fitness

I don't necessarily specialize in any of these aforementioned things, but you'll see me around sections focusing around them from time to time with intelligible responses that answer the OP's question in its entirety.

In the past few months I've been more of a lounge rat and not really focusing on the topics I'm actually interested in. Truth is, I am a die-hard computer enthusiast and have a few computer systems that I use for web & software development and gaming on the side. I have a personal website that I keep private and manage alongside other business ventures. I've made it a plan to continue my high-quality posting as was standard from me before I looked at Hack Forums as a laid-back platform.

List all contributions to the site have you made within the 6 months: I have no real contributions recognized by the larger community, though I try my best to help out by posting answers to questions when I see fit. Evidence of this is present through viewing my post activity, where over two thousand posts in assorted sections went to helping people. I ran a pretty successful Minecraft Server Management helpdesk with half a dozen pages of posts back in the day, with another user. I'm also open to any help-desk type of work that could benefit members.

<https://hackforums.net/postactivity.php?uid=1915596>

Apart from this general help, I giveaway things pretty frequently.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?: I see myself just a step up from where I currently am. I'll have established myself as a trusted currency exchanger, and I also hope to become more known on the forums.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: I see many users around the forums posting as members of The Brotherhood. This was especially prevalent in quality sections including RANF, COCH, and the marketplace, to name a few. I can sincerely say that my presence will not tarnish the reputation of the group - in fact, I'll be able to develop it even further for the better and I hope that your members can do the same for me.

List any skills, training or certifications you have. None that are notable or relevant.

Why should we pick you?: I'm a sociable guy and I think that I can improve myself by being dedicated to what I know and love. The Brotherhood has been, on my mind, a group that's been high on my list of outlets with which I can boost the forum within the group and the forums. With my plans outlined above, I think that 2016 can be a great year for self-improvement for myself.

Thank you for reading.

There not blackhat, its how the user uses the program which is blackhat. I always had a solid EULA written on everyone of my products that was written up by a lawyer just in case something was to go down hill.

For the users above, Nex+ and Raptor, RAT is broad. There is a difference between a Remote administration tool and a trojan, these concepts have the same result with a different agenda. We will inspect users before contacting them, these rules are more of a guidelines rather than something you need to meet exactly. Selling tools that will be or aimed to directly compete against Teamviewer and VNC isn't bad nor "blackhat" activity at all albeit they fall under the RAT category. That is legitimate and each one will be inspected and judged by us. You, users, don't have to point this out to those whom apply here, let this thread be up to applications and questions concerning the group/applications, not statements on applications and users.

Thanks.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?: The most active people on the PHP section, maybe mod for this section, why not? I will continue writing tutorials related to every domain I know, and since I will start a whole new job in less than 6 months, I'll probably have much more to learn to every others person.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: Meeting new persons to write a tutorial with me, to learn things I was not even aware of their existence, to help me hen I'm stuck on something. For a lot of things, and maybe with some help we could make the PHP section a better place!

List any skills, training or certifications you have.PHP (OOP, Design Pattern, Framework)
Javascript (AngularJS, jQuery a bit and VanillaJS)
C# (ASP.NET and Web API)
Java (Java EE, Hibernate)
C (just basic knowledge)
Computer Engineer certification
Bachelor in Software Engineering (this year)

Why should we pick you?: Because I'm the most active person in the PHP section (not sure about this point but pretty sure, and if not, I'm almost the most active). I'm writing a lot of tutorials (and will continue writing new tutorials) and I'm very funny on Skype chat :B

Tell us about yourself: Hey guys. About me. Well, I just recently turned 19 and I'm currently pursuing a Finance degree. I live in the US, and am fluent in English. Despite my join date back in 2012, if you look at my post history you'll see that I only recently actually became active again. I was a major lurker back when I was younger, and I just recently returned to be active on the forum. I aim to make a name for myself, and be known throughout the community as a member that can be both trusted and dealt with in any and all matters. I absolutely despise members on this site that are glorified and respected just because of their reputation or post count. It's not to say a huge percentage of those type users are actually good, mature members; I just think a standard should be kept if you want to be well known. I devote hours and hours a day on this site, and am constantly posting and interacting with other members. I've made more friends on this site that I could have dreamed, and I'm glad I was able to weed out the good from the bad. I understand that in its current state, HackForums is deteriorating because of the need for high repped or well known members to scam and what not. I think it's our job to turn that around, and restore hope in HackForums' future.

List all contributions to the site have you made within the 6 months: This is where I hit a rough patch. I see so many users with lists of contributions and it's a bit intimidating, especially since I legitimately have no argument against those type of members. I'm currently hosting and award giveaway, and plan to host more as time goes on. I would love to be able to get behind any project that was opened or set for The Brotherhood to work on. I pride myself in being open minded, and having the ability to work well on group projects.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?: As a household name on HackForums for good reasons. Like I said, I want to make a name for myself. There's nothing I want more than to demonstrate a group's quality and morals in a positive way. I want to be one of the members who signs on and has 10+ private messages asking for assistance with whatever I'm working on, because I would love to be a known advocate for anyone who needed help. Above all things, I want respect and I see no better way than to apply for one of the groups I see at HackForums' core.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: This is simple, actually. You message someone and you're a L33t, maybe even just an Ub3r, and tell me how much respect and reverence you'll get. Sure there are tons of decent members who will actually give another user the time of day, but I was to insure my image be one that speaks for itself. You have no idea how much of a boost it would be to brand things under The Brotherhood's image, and how much more success I could achieve under your regime. If anything, being a member of your group would serve as an image booster, and insure my future contributions were always set as a top priority.

List any skills, training or certifications you have. I specialize in C/C++, Python, and various aspects of Java, through multiple computer engineering courses I took in recent years. I am extremely knowledgeable in all things financial, as I've been on the road to a career in finances for a very long time now. I consider myself as social as anyone else on this site, and am able to interact with others better than other members. (This may come in handy with teaching a course, providing assistance with a product, etc.)

Why should we pick you?: I will keep this short because I believe that if you've gotten this far, the decision will have already been made. Ask yourself one thing: Would you rather take a member with an extremely high rep and post count who may be too busy with other things onsite, and may not have enough time to be an active, contributing member to your group, or would you rather have equally high quality member, who has all the time in the world to devote to the bettering of your group, The Brotherhood.

I hope you enjoyed my application as it certainly took me a long time to write. Please don't hesitate to private message me with any further questions or concerns. Good luck to all other applicants.

Many people my age and under usually have journeys in life with vices. I usually would never really think about posting such things but at the same time if it would seemed enjoyable but also enlightening to some others, I thought it would definitely help.

-<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5143450>

I have made a thread in the SRPP section a while ago. Though the subject at hand may be a little difficult for the majority of people here, my aim was to help people understand the sociology of people in today's society. The most important thing in my view when walking through life is to understand people within your surroundings. If you can understand how they live, how they think, what makes a person tick, you can thoroughly pass by in life with good judgement and experiences. I will definitely take this in experience with the replies I have recieved to further perfect my craft in helping people understand. Perhaps it was my wording or perhaps I have still not entirely understood the grasp of some user's minds within the section. About 25-30% of the replies somewhat understood from my perspective.

At last and not the least. I rather find it important for people to understand today's worldly milestones. Whether someone finally found a breakthrough in scientific discoveries, technological advancements, today's biological understanding. In effort to keep minds flowing with something worth pondering about, I hope some of these stories in the news may help them in pursuing something.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?:

I find myself most likely being interested in learning anything in particular with business. As any mind these days, it takes some searching for clarity in one's pursuit of interest. Lately I have found an interest in business. I don't necessarily mean selling products on here. I mean learning on how business works in our industry. Though it may be rare as some people here are not entirely really business oriented because they have products being sold, but some can actually bring some great learning threads. So in my future stay here I will attempt to network out to HF more so in finding productive members that can help further my education in business.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?:

I believe joining this group will help me be surrounded by minded and productive individuals. In hopes of joining this group I can learn useful resources. I would hope in my pursuit of knowledge I can just not only be able to be a benefit to the scene on HF more so than previously, but for myself as someone seeking knowledge.

List any skills, training or certifications you have.

I currently have novice skills in the programming language swift. I been attending online courses for this. This is a new programming language Apple has created for all platforms to be more convenient.

I also have knowledge of the stock market. Starting off at the little things even with DRIPS, CDS, etc. they can be basic but even then the most important and powerful tools with knowledge in the market is needed more so than ever.

I have knowledge within the computer hardware section. Though I tend to not have a high post count in our own HF's section mainly due to the amount of basic user - gaming hardware related questions. I tend not attend quite as often as I do lurk. Everything from understandings all hardware's functionalities to some basic knowledge of building actual circuit boards for head phones, I/O panels, etc.

Brilliant team worker and organizer. I am the most dependable person when it comes to dependability and team work. This is my strong suit. I have always been a team player no matter where I have been. Though I have no experience on here to be able to show, in joining this group I may possibly be able to join in on projects. I love working working as a team player to get things done.

Why should we pick you?:

I have no reasons why you should pick me. In all honesty, I would hope you find me as a member with filling the slots within the group. I get along with anyone, I am great team player, I productive in search of experience and knowledge, and love to share important philosophical ideals.

HackForums has been a place mainly for me to understand the minds that lurk the forums. I tend to come grasps with it. I hopefully will however like be able to join a quality to group in order find myself at a different pace.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?: I will still be here, talking to people and helping them. I plan to be on HF for a very long time. I love the marketplace (for now), and I love the gaming section. I also plan on contributing a lot to other groups. There is not much else to say in my opinion. I will be here, helping people, talking to people, and just overall browsing HF in a normal manner like I do every day.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: I already love helping people. Being in the Brotherhood allows me to help even more, in group activities such as the White Hat Helper training and such. I would also rep the userbar very proudly, as this group is one of the few groups on HF that are actually beneficial (in my opinion) to the community. I have always looked up to this group ever since it was made. The awesome ownership combined with the dedicated leadership makes this group one to die for.

List any skills, training or certifications you have. I would say I am good at helping people if they need assistance in an area I am knowledgeable at (like the Windows 10 section for example). I have also built 3 custom gaming computers over a span of the last 2 and a half years. Yes, I bought all the parts and put them all together myself, I didn't take it to my local computer store and have them put it together for me. I am also some-what knowledgeable in crypto-currencies of sorts. I'm currently taking college classes while I'm still in High School.

Why should we pick you?: Well, I look through all the replies on this thread and I see nothing but high quality applications. In my mind almost every single one of them has a chance of being accepted. However, I believe you should accept me because I thoroughly enjoy helping people any way I can, if I can. I didn't put lies or embellishments into my application. Everything in this application was answered with 100% complete honesty. I am a strong believer in it doesn't matter how much text you can use in your application, it's all about what you put into your application. Sometimes one sentence can take more effort and be higher quality than a wall of text. So I ask you, please don't judge my application on the word count, judge it on the quality.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?: I honestly think joining this group, with the members and help of team effort, I can get a lot of things done. I plan on making a full mega thread of tools, etc. which I sell and plan to give them for free to the community. They won't be a big ball of wasted effort. They will be quality tools, that will NOT need to be signed up for, buy anything within, etc. These tools would be full fledged projects that should be sold for a good portion of money, but will be given for free to clear up the site. teaching/coaching more users free of charge into becoming better people and more knowledgeable about personal security.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?:

I know this group has a tonne of respect and only accepts members who truly deserve to be in it - I have dealt with a few of the members in the past and can with 100% certainty say that they are respectful, polite and more than happy to help people to learn. I know I can use the group in a positive manner to help more users and guide them in the right direction.

List any skills, training or certifications you have.

Skills:

Average/mediocre in PHP/HTML/Python/C#/Batch/Ruby

Doxing/Private investigation

Graduate certificate in Linux systems level 7

Graduate certificate in Security Administration level 7

A few more - such as accredited certificates & diplomas in accounting and business management.

Password decryption and extensive knowledge around RATS and personal security.

Why should we pick you?:

I believe I can represent the group in the best light and use the group as a community to better myself and others.

Side note: I am currently in 4 groups but can meet the expectations of each and if necessary - leave one to join The Brotherhood.

I currently have a 65% warning level for honest mistakes that I am happy to explain if needed.

If my application is unsuccessful on these terms, I will make amendments and apply at a future date.

Thank you for taking the time to consider my application and wish the group the best of luck.

Tell us about yourself:

I am an aspiring penetration tester, professional web developer (I've worked with small-medium businesses as well as one government contract.). I have always loved learning about things I enjoy such as computers (obviously), people (psychology, business/interpersonal communication, etc.). I'm a relatively introverted person so I'm not all that great at talking about myself.

List all contributions to the site have you made within the 6 months:

I haven't been very active over the last 6 months but I've been on the forum a lot more over the past few weeks. I have been very busy getting my life back on track and I am now getting to the point where I can focus on school and certification courses. I am taking multiple penetration testing courses currently and I plan on taking what I learn from them and creating tutorials and guides for members of HF that teach real world professional penetration testing skills. I feel there is a lack of high quality tutorials on HF and I would love to help change that, I've been on this forum for quite a long time and I appreciate the motivation members here have given me and I would like to give back.

Where do you see yourself (on Hack Forums) in the next 6 months?:

I see myself helping many members learn about web development and penetration testing by creating high quality tutorials and guides like I previously discussed. I also have a few plans for some original marketing ideas which I would rather not discuss in the public domain. Overall I would like to use HF as a kind of notebook for my studies, once I fully grasp a concept I will write a detailed guide relating to the subject. I don't want to just tell people how to do something, I want to teach them how that something works and why it works. This helps me out as well as the HF community.

How will joining this group help you reach where you want to be in those 6 months?:

I feel as if a community based off of knowledge, loyalty, and time would be extremely beneficial to my life right now, off HF and on HF. I think the ability to collaborate, share, and grow with like minded individuals would go along with what I am trying to accomplish in life right now. I am focusing a lot of my time on school, and building my career.

List any skills, training or certifications you have.

Web development (client side and server side), python, C++, pretty much anything *nix or windows, network administration, private investigation, pretty much anything IT, and social engineering. A+, Sec+, multiple Cisco certifications. I am also currently working on my OSCP, multiple stackskills courses, and the eLearnSecurity PTP course.

Why should we pick you?:

Knowledge has always been a very important aspect of my life. I thoroughly enjoy sharing what I know and learning what others know. Loyalty is a very important trait that I feel is slowly dying in the world, it would be nice to part of a group that values what I value. I believe I could contribute a lot to this group if given the opportunity.

Thank you for this opportunity! I hope to hear from you soon.
