Thread: If you won the \$1,400,000,000 Powerball what would you do?

Asynical - January 9, 2016, 9:42 am

So the Powerball has gone to $1,400,000,000 if you win what would you do?

I would first accept the large sum of money anonymously. Then deposit divide it 30-45% with my 2 younger brothers. Next i would buy my family a nice house in Upstate NY.

After we move i would invest my money into some business's.

Id buy 3 lamborghini's and then i will buy a new super computer.

After id just chill out and blow money literally everyday!

What about you?

EDIT X2- This thread has been Successful I'm now a lounge god!

Bow Down! LMAO

Omni Replied P.G. 17.... Thank You!

EDIT- POWERBALL IS A LOTTERY, It has gone up to 1.3 billion now becuae the last drawings were not won.

Give family a few million, get a nice house (nothing overboard, don't really like that) and grab my dream car ^.^

alpa aseo - January 9, 2016, 9:44 am

Winning $900M is too much and everyone even your family would want to kill you, I'd not receive such an amount.

Or I'd receive the whole amount, donate like $500M and live with the rest, even though everyone would still want to kill me.

TwistedTechnologies - January 9, 2016, 10:06 am

When it was back at 700,000,000, if you put it all in the bank and averaged the interest, you would estimate 26,000,000 a year, and about 31,000 a day.

Walt Disney™ - January 9, 2016, 10:08 am

I would go buy my parents house with a offer they can't refuse (5 bed, 3 story, acres) build a 5 car garage, hire friends to help clean it up.

fill the garage with motorcycles, cars and toys.

Hire a hitman.

work on a bussiness plan to build up homeless/poor people in my area so I become a legend.

buy the property next to the house and turn it into a drift/bike track.

Make sure my bros and freinds don't re enlist after service.

Use a fair portion of it for the less fortunate because lets face it, I'm never going to run out of weed :^) (But for real if I had that much fucking money, not helping out the less fortunate in some form would be kinda fucked up).

DuguWudi - January 9, 2016, 10:16 am

Put in FD and eat on its interest for the rest of my life.

Basically, if I calculate interest on 4%, then monthly income would be 30mil, so you can do whatever you want, charity/donation/family/friend/cars/houses/travelling...

Didn't do the math. But I'd pretty much just travel all around the world a couple of times, invest in some companies, hook the fam up.. but man, there's so much to do with that money.

Funny how everyone would use the money for cars and houses. It might be fun in the start, but after a couple of years you'll lose the momentum. I would rather earn 1 mill, then 2 mill and then on and on and on.

It's not healthy to get that kind of money in one shot.

BUT if I won, I'd donate some of the money like everyone else and then I'd buy or create my own big company. Being the owner and CEO of a big and interesting company must be the dream.

After I've paid the IRS the $225 million dollars in federal taxes, I would invest the majority of the remaining amount in to stocks. I would keep about 10 million for myself to spend on housing/cars and casual living expenses. That's more than a substantial amount of money to live off if you know how to manage.

Then when those funds eventually dwindle, I would prefer to sell stocks.

I would probably start a Gaming eSport company based on games such as CS:GO and Seige. Or perhaps a team, I bet I could have all the best players with that money. Have all players from the EU come to NA and make history.

I'll make sure that whatever I do with my money, is for fun and to last me the rest of my life.

Odds of winning the Powerball: 1 in 292,201,338 or 0.0000000034%.

Powerball jackpot: $900 million, holy shit.

Amount rewarded if lump sum is taken: $558 million

Pay 35% of the winnings in Federal tax ($195.3 million, not including state taxes which are ~6%), and you are left with: $357,700,000

Now that we have that established

After collecting the money anonymously, I would use ~20% of it to purchase US Treasuries (Fallback in case of emergency). I would make trusts for family and friends that I plan on giving money to, so that I don't have to worry about if giving them a wad of cash was a good idea. Then, I'd buy a ticket to some country overseas, take a vacation, and think about how I'm going to spend the rest of it. Good luck to you all.

After that i'll retire my parents if they want. My dad will retire 100%, don't know about my mom.

I would definitely pay off any kind of debt and purchase myself a new car. Of course, you would want to invest because you really only get roughly $530 million after the taxes if you took a lump sum. Plus you would want to continually earn more to make up for the annual taxes you would have to pay. /criez

Before I say anything it's obvious nobody here knows how lotteries work. When you win the lottery you get to choose how you get the money, Cash or Annuity. Cash is basically when they tax it then give you a little more than half the winnings flat out. Annuity is when you get the full sum of money through multiple installments, basically yearly checks. These are also taxed but you'll get closer to the ultimate sum of the winnings. Either way for a close to 1 billion lottery you still get a shit ton from cashing out right away. Just letting everyone know.

I love how these responses actually reveal everyone's personality quite a bit, didn't think 90% of HF was so empty. Everyone wants to buy a house and cars and split money with family then live off the wealth Imfao what a choice.

Here's what I would do:

I'd choose to receive the money annually so like 10 millionish a year I don't know how they really do it, probably more. First 10 million I'd buy a 5 million dollar house in my neighborhood then demolish it. I'd let my dad build a new one and spend 3 million on construction. I'd give it to my parents since they always did everything for me and deserve it. The remaining 2 million will be small stuff like cars, appliances, and shit for me and parents.

I'm not giving shit to my brothers. If they're ever in a pinch with financial stuff I'd help but I'm not going to spoil my younger brothers by giving them millions of dollars like 90% of the people here lol.

I'd live off like 500k for a year then when the next paycheck comes I'll buy myself a nice house that could hold a family for the future (I'm only 18). I'd invest in a few startup businesses and some stocks but I'd mainly invest the money into making a new technology based business. I'd always try to start a company to make me more money even though I don't need it with mutiple million coming every year. I'd go gambling in casinos since I've worked out my own personal science when playing poker see if I can handle the big leagues. I'd maybe sponsor the creation of cool movies and such over time. I wouldn't travel because I've done that quite a bit and I don't like it too much.

Anyway the last thing I would do is sit around and be rich. What a waste of my life that would be.

Gotta be active.

Why would you waste time on eBooks that makes you less than $100/hr? ?

You receive 800 million dollars after Uncle Sam's cut, so why do you need to work your butt off for an extra dollar?

Even if you managed to make $100 for 40 hours a week that's only another 200,000 dollars a year. You can put your money into numerous investments and make more off of dividends. Hell, just retire at the point, don't do any more work ever.

Also, just because you have money doesn't mean you become an investor.

For the last 10% I'd get a house and I'd trade my car in for a Tesla P85D. First thing's first, I'd buy myself a new gaming rig. I'd drop like 10k on the desktop, 5k on peripherals and another 5k on a laptop. I'd also buy a Wacom Cintiq.

After that, I'd buy a totally maxed out Tesla S. Then I'd most likely spend some money and spend my next couple of years of highschool overseas. I'd spend any amount of money necessary to help treat my father's disabilities.

After that, I honestly would have no clue. I'd pay for my college and help out any family members or friends buy what is necessary, but I wouldn't give them any money. I wouldn't want to make their life too easy to the point where they don't need to work or anything, because that's no longer living.

I'd probably just put the rest of that money into random donations, a massive retirement fund and a few nonprofit investments.

I honestly wouldn't care if the amount was $1.5b or $250000. All I want is to be able to fund my schooling, which I otherwise wouldn't be able to.

(Jan 13, 2016 12:26 PM)Nao Tomori Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd choose the annual payment, because I don't really need money.

First thing's first, I'd buy myself a new gaming rig. I'd drop like 10k on the desktop, 5k on peripherals and another 5k on a laptop. I'd also buy a Wacom Cintiq.

After that, I'd buy a totally maxed out Tesla S. Then I'd most likely spend some money and spend my next couple of years of highschool overseas. I'd spend any amount of money necessary to help treat my father's disabilities.

After that, I honestly would have no clue. I'd pay for my college and help out any family members or friends buy what is necessary, but I wouldn't give them any money. I wouldn't want to make their life too easy to the point where they don't need to work or anything, because that's no longer living.

I'd probably just put the rest of that money into random donations, a massive retirement fund and a few nonprofit investments.

I honestly wouldn't care if the amount was $1.5b or $250000. All I want is to be able to fund my schooling, which I otherwise wouldn't be able to.

You have had the same idea ive had too! Nice plan!

MeIT3d - January 13, 2016, 11:29 am

I'd spend it carefully and not blow the fuck out of it. Ofcourse I would buy things I ever wanted but I wouldn't buy everything the first day. Maybe try to make a business with it.

AnOrdinaryGuy - January 13, 2016, 12:24 pm

I feel as if people don't realize how much money they have until they have it. With anything over 500 million I don't think you would be able to spend it all even if you tried to. Obviously you could buy yourself useless things but what I mean is that you can satisfy your every day needs and wants without ever having to get off your ass again!

DuguWudi - January 14, 2016, 9:59 am

Buy all awards, upgrades and usergroups ?

'saint - January 14, 2016, 10:08 am

Hire an accountant, a financial adviser, and a chef.

I would finish paying off my Subaru do everything I've been wanting to do to it.

Help my dad pay off the house and all my family members property.

Buy my dad a couple cars and I'll possibly buy myself a couple other cars.

Buy a penthouse in downtown Chicago.

Invest at least 50 million in ways that I can profit and help my future kids/grandchildren are able to attend college without worries.

Most people sometimes forget to take in mind that it cost to have a car such as insurance/gas or a house would they also charge you property tax and all the bills.

Mendum - January 14, 2016, 11:04 am

I'd spend it all on myself. #greed

Fiz? - January 14, 2016, 11:07 am

Sokazoo - January 14, 2016, 11:34 am

Oh shit, quite high. Well, for first I would take the money anonymously (if you don't you're pretty fucked in the public) and then I would buy a few things, like a villa (if not a few :D), a few cars and stuff like that. Then I would share the money with family members, that's always a good thing. Then I would start to think about investment. Because you can increase that money with no problems I guess. But anyways, the money would be enough for the rest of my life, even without increasing it. But I just think I do this. I may do something other if I would really get it. I mean... that's a lot of money.

Beardsteak - January 14, 2016, 12:51 pm

I would donate 400$ to 30,000 homeless people for a year so they can buy food, clothes etc.

Romario - January 14, 2016, 6:39 pm

I propably would buy Google.

Russell Peters - January 14, 2016, 6:48 pm

Don't you mean the $40 million powerball. ?

f o r m i d a b l e - January 25, 2016, 3:16 pm

Once you have up to 2 billion, there's nothing left in the world to buy.

I guess I'll make interest off that and send to charity, pay for further expenses.
