Annoited - January 15, 2016, 5:53 pm

To me, Tokyo Ghoul was pretty sad, or Zankyou No Terror.

Zexo - January 15, 2016, 5:54 pm

Zankyou no terror, toradora, code geass, Guilty crown.

These are a couple to get you started.

Anywhere you could watch on kissanime, I watched it on crunchy roll personally.

Kuso - January 15, 2016, 6:06 pm

Mai hime is probably the worst when it comes to sad anime I have ever seen.

Originaliity - January 15, 2016, 6:21 pm

Sakamichi No Apollon is a good sad anime, well if you're into sad relationships lol. Angel Beats?

Yuikoro - January 15, 2016, 6:29 pm

Since Nao pretty much took the ones I was gonna mention, take a look at Ef: a tale of memories. And if I'm remembering correctly, myself;yourself is pretty fucked up too.

sad ending or depressing when it ends too soon?

angel beats, guilty crown, steins;gate, plastic memories

RainbowHentAi - January 15, 2016, 7:00 pm

Myself; Yourself was pretty sad I guess

Ryuko - January 15, 2016, 7:13 pm

Watch Kokoro Connect or Kill La Kill, you will enjoy it.

Question. - January 15, 2016, 7:17 pm

If I repeat others' suggestions, consider it doubly recommended.

There are few anime that actually strive to be viewed 'sad', but there are plenty that could be called 'depressing', or have characters that have a backstory, or are currently in circumstances, that could be called 'sad' or 'pitiful'. Sometimes there are anime that just have a climatic moment that defines the series, and is coincidentally 'sad'.

"Sad anime" is just too ambiguous, but I'll do my best:
Elfen Lied

Ano Hi Mita Hana no Namae o Bokutachi wa Mada Shiranai

Clannad & ~After Story

Kanon

AIR (TV)

Gunslinger Girl

Penguindrum

Asura

Madoka Magica

Angel Beats

Plastic Memories

Charlotte

Death Parade

Tokyo Ghoul

Shigatsu wa Kimi no Uso

Pokemon: The First Movie

Brynhildr in the Darkness

Garden of Words

Code Geass

X'amd: Lost Memories

Darker Than Black

Black Lagoon

Steins;Gate

Zankyou no Terror

Akira

Neon Genesis Evangelion

Cowboy Bebop

Haibane Renmei

BOKU DAKE GA INAI MACHI. It's a newly released anime, so all the eps aren't out yet. 3 eps released so far. This anime will definitely make you shed a tear or two. Just a thing or two about the anime its a sorta murder/ mystery plot revolving this guy who has the ability to go back 5 mins in the past to stop bad things from happening. Great realistic artstyle. Each scene is purposeful and it is the most promising anime so far this season.

csystems - February 17, 2016, 11:11 am

Tokyo Ghoul, Clannad: After Story, Elfen Lied...

All of those though all completely different genres have a high possibility of making you get teary eyed, at the VERY least.

As always, I left out suggestions that were previously mentioned.

Those and Code geass, Ano-Hanna(I forgot how to spell it, but you'll find it), Angel Beats, Clannad and it's after story if your into Gore I suggest you take a look at the LSD of Anime: Elfen Lied. I kind of enjoyed Idol M@ster the one about actual singing not the Mecha one with a simple heartbreaking eps around the end and Chihaya's arc. Obviously the first Full Metall Alchemist you'll cry just at ep.3 then at ep. 9 (Brotherhood is good too, but the first FMA makes you ore attached to the characters IMO)

dannykz - February 18, 2016, 6:51 pm

I'd say Plastic Memories and Golden Time were the saddest for me.

Inspective - February 23, 2016, 6:01 am

Clannad, was like the 2nd Anime I ever watched and cried so much xD

Varane - February 23, 2016, 3:37 pm

Steins:Gate, it has quite an amazing anime.

Kahwaii - February 23, 2016, 3:49 pm

I haven't had time to read the thread so don't mind me if someone already said this anime.

<http://anilist.co/anime/20993/OwarinoSeraph:NagoyaKessen-hen>

Trust me it's good and it's sad.

FalconGreyHat - February 26, 2016, 7:18 pm

I didn't check all pages of the thread so I don't know if it's already been suggested or not but I can't not. The anime "Zankyou No Terror" or "Terror in Resonance" is one of the best anime I've ever watched. It's an action / thriller / psychological anime with some aspects similar to death note, but completely different. It's extremely short and just because it's not specifically a "sad" anime... I cried at the end of it, more so than some sad anime I have watched. It's a beautiful gem, as short as it may be (11 episodes).

Tsunfire - October 30, 2016, 9:07 pm

Since I just finished Plastic Memories and Shigatsu Kimi No Uso, I would reccomend both.

Constantia - October 31, 2016, 12:55 am

Zetsuen no Tempest. I don't think that's been mentioned before.

xans - November 1, 2016, 2:40 am

I'm sure it's been mentioned, but you'll definitely want to cry after White Album 2.

https://myanimelist.net/anime/18245/White_Album_2

Some others:

Kanon 2006 - Made by the same studio as Clannad/After Story, if you enjoyed those you'll like this. Much more concise than Clannad.

https://myanimelist.net/anime/1530/Kanon_2006

Katanagatari - A tearjerker in a slightly different way, this show plays with your emotions. Lots of dialogue if you don't like reading, and episodes are 50 minutes a piece (12 eps.). If you like good writing, good story and good animation, give it a shot:
