Thread: [\[Interesting\] Huge Shipment of Hoverboards](#)

RainSpider3000 - January 19, 2016, 4:55 am

So my free shipment of hoverboards just arrived... Yes I got these all for free. (Not telling anyone how. Although the story is very interesting, I may not release the story for a while.)

These are 100% legally obtained hoverboards. I did not card or anything else illegal like that to get them.

Anyways, I am planning on selling these on HackForums sometime soon, then selling the rest on eBay.

How many of you would be willing to buy one or more for $100 each?

I have mainly red, but a few other ones that oddly came in with.

UPDATE: I am trying to find the best shipping price to ship these out with... I will start selling them soon, BUT... For safety reasons on HackForums, I will sell only 3 per 24 hours. Only to people inside of North America, unless you really want to pay for ungodly international shipping amounts. This will be updated sometime with a thread link when I begin to sell. I also just found out that USPS does not allow shipping over hoverboards, so I am still looking...

UPDATE 2: Have sold about 7 on eBay so far for $200... Instead of selling them on HF, I may just have a 10 person giveaway or contest. It will still be hard to decide, since I do like money. If you have any fair games/contests for HackForums, please let me know. :D

Would not go near these little fuckers. Wouldn't dream of it. Don't get the sudden hype around them.

minimalist - January 19, 2016, 4:59 am

"they're not hoverboards dude why are you so politically incorrect!!!"

Optimistical - January 19, 2016, 5:02 am

Yes, these are very dangerous.

If these aren't the IonHawks, they are most likely the knock-offs. Which have been known to catch on fire, and are banned in many US Cities, as well as being taken off of Amazon. (Honestly I wouldn't mind buying one off of you because I could give a shit less, and if it blew up on me, I could sue that company and make $$$)

Either way, if you were looking to sell them for $100 each that's a pretty damn good price, if you could leave one back for me, I would be able to purchase one in a couple of days.

But, otherwise selling them to eBay people, i wouldn't suggest it, they are really dangerous, and can be explosive.

I didn't explain why they were so dangerous, but, the plugs are different, and it is powering out a huge amount of wattage to the battery, which causes overheating, and eventually will explode. These are the types of things you can't leave on the charger for days, because this will happen.

Kebabs - January 19, 2016, 5:04 am

Yeah, its apparently true that it does catch on fire if charging due to poor quality from the batteries.

so the ionhawks are more reliable than any other one? id like to look forward for one but if these ones explode may change mind.

I don't believe there has been any reports on the Io Hawk boards exploding, but I did see a bunch of the Chinese variants have been seized by the police due to the fact of being illegally made.

Queen Cin - January 19, 2016, 5:19 am

You guys are all fucking ausists who fall for consumerism. Non-IO Hawks are not knock offs, they are all the same. The only difference is battery, and IO Hawks are not the only one with Samsung batteries. Just message your Ali seller (or where ever you're buying from), and ask what kind of battery is in it. Get one with a Samsung, and you're good.

These things are all made in 1 factory in China, companies like IoHawk and PhunkeeDuck buy them in bulks from China for about $200 each. Then they stick their own branding on it and they sell them for sometime 5 times the price. But you will get exactly the same one as you would if you bought it from China directly. Except for the branding on it.

I guess you do have a point. I stand corrected.

Sure I'll make it a hot thread

edit: "free and legal" <https://niceme.me>

tulip - January 24, 2016, 1:08 pm

holy shiie, that's a lot of board wtf

KamehK - January 24, 2016, 3:46 pm

I would still buy a board for $100 xD Even if it is a bomb those things are sick :P

Banana - January 24, 2016, 4:16 pm

Wouldn't be surprised if many of those are fakes and they catch on fire.

puresplz - January 24, 2016, 5:46 pm

Only way you could of got them for free is an alibaba method to a dumb seller and got them for free, other then that id pay 150 for 2 and you cover shipping.

WeedSlayingNinja - January 24, 2016, 7:50 pm

If I'm counting all of those hoverboards correctly, that's 78 hoverboards and you have around ~$7800 worth of them, or more. If they were obtained free, nice job lol.

Spending - January 25, 2016, 5:28 am

Don't be scared of them exploding. I have had 200+ of these at once in my warehouse when I sold these. They won't explode. It is pure bullshit.

Enni Riverra - January 25, 2016, 11:09 am

Why the fuck everyone calls these things hoverboards??? It's not a fucking hoverboard!

FHRITP - January 25, 2016, 3:32 pm

Can you PM me whenever u can sell one? Would be more than happy to buy one for 100 bones

Reusable - January 25, 2016, 3:35 pm

well since amAZON and other companies publicly put all these on recall and are refunding for everyone ordered through them cash value noone on here will buy even 1 form you wasted your time getting them

iMario - January 25, 2016, 5:09 pm

I would buy one... I am just scared of the Canadian's Custom fees... They are a pain in the ass.

?Genghis Khan? - January 25, 2016, 8:28 pm

If you're selling them hmu

I want my personal hover board that potentially going to kill me

If these aren't the IonHawks, they are most likely the knock-offs.

IOHawks ARE knock offs. They were just one of the very early, first people to start ordering them from China and re-sell for profit. Plus, that company is full of scummy people and it's honestly sad so many people think they're the originals.

HoverTrax is the original by the way. (They have the patent) If you want a safe one that won't explode, go with them. They cost $1,400 though!

Latinsnake - January 27, 2016, 3:27 pm

Be careful with them. Especially know your Alibaba supplier (assume you got it there) and always have some exchange parts.

I own one of the most popular German-speaking shops for "hoverboards" and recently moved it into a LLC, got an insurance and a few things more. Plus I changed my supplier (old one had LG but was a little unreliable overall, now uses Samsung).

You can make good money with them but be ready to deal with a lot of customer support. However, you made the right step shipping them all to your place, that makes the overall sales process a lot easier and cheaper. Good luck!

DjHaxorz - January 28, 2016, 11:39 am

I would be willing to buy for $100 a pop any day, so hold one for me my friend!!

I was waiting to find someone asking for a vouch copy, good old HF.

I bet people will still buy these, regardless of them being banned in loads of places and them apparently having faulty chargers and batteries that can explode.

An0nyJ - January 29, 2016, 5:04 am after reading the comments on this and doing re search, this can get scary af if they arent high quality.

sevv - January 29, 2016, 6:48 pm

Yes you may have gotten them for free. But if they company was trying too hard to gain profit with cheap materials etc, you are fucked. Ticking time bombs in your house. Flip those and get them out ASAP

teh?ompany - January 29, 2016, 6:53 pm

Did you contact a whole bunch of chinese sellers and ask for samples saying that you are highly interested in being a full time customer?

You should pay for samples on Alibaba.

Usually you pay for samples and if you place an order afterwards (a bigger one) you get your sample money back.

BLURRYF?CE - February 25, 2016, 6:10 am

Haha, that was you fam? Damn!

An0nyJ - February 25, 2016, 7:34 am been some time.. did they explode yet :D?

jk

Tando - February 25, 2016, 7:49 am

I'll buy one right fucking now for $10 cash and will perform any sexual act on you.

?euces - February 25, 2016, 9:12 pm

Yeah dude be careful with these if they were branded i wouldnt have minded buying one let me know though how safe they really are
