

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Obscure Excuses

Amyzing - January 19, 2016, 4:35 pm

So I have been chatting this guy for 10 mins and he says he will pay me when he gets paid. I said ok and an hour later he said he sent me the money. I didn't get the money and apparently he didn't get a receipt of payment. So I just left him be.

This is what I woke up to the next morning. i [dot] imgur.com/KijFdTQ.png

Does he really expect me to believe that? What are the most obscure excuses you guys have received?

TridentX - January 19, 2016, 4:59 pm

"My bank said I spent too much money online"

"My wife took my credit cards"

"I can't get Amazon on my phone"

"What's Paypal?"

Liars and time-wasters never run out of excuses.

Pittinger - January 19, 2016, 5:24 pm

Block him and move away. He will only waste your time.

-noise - January 19, 2016, 5:41 pm

Dang thats the worst excuse I've heard

FrozenSundo - January 19, 2016, 5:42 pm

I had a reverse one?

I told him I didn't get the email 5 times and he sent 5 times as much money, and then when I said I got it and sent him an encrypted email, I charged him for the password, and then when he got in, it was an image to a URL with the end blurred off, and I charged him for that, and then he got to the videos.

I simply called them "expenses"...worst thing is I learnt he's the same age as me studying the same course as me at Uni...I didn't think someone could become so gullible in this field..

Amyzing - January 20, 2016, 9:21 pm

(Jan 19, 2016 06:42 PM)FrozenSundo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I had a reverse one?

I told him I didn't get the email 5 times and he sent 5 times as much money, and then when I said I got it and sent him an encrypted email, I charged him for the password, and then when he got in, it was an image to a URL with the end blurred off, and I charged him for that, and then he got to the videos.

I simply called them "expenses"...worst thing is I learnt he's the same age as me studying the same course as me at Uni...I didn't think someone could become so gullible in this field..

Lucky you don't get many fools like those.