Thread: Can I get in trouble?

Mr Melons - January 20, 2016, 6:38 pm

Quick question,

Besides having all the cops in my town hate me, can I get in trouble for making a twitter account that has no relation to the police but is meant to mock them/make fun of them?

samsepi01 - January 20, 2016, 6:39 pm

Oh man didn't you hear the last guy caught doing that got the death penalty? You're screwed man... I'm sorry...

teh?ompany - January 20, 2016, 6:40 pm

well... freedom of speech. I wouldn't recommend it at all because its always good to have them on your side but you can.

Amerikanski - January 20, 2016, 6:41 pm

Don't drop the soup in prison.

Exactly.

Op try doing something good for them rather than making them dislike you.

Donate to a charity they setup. Buy them lunch if you can. Thank them. Etc

Win friends not enemies

Melons.... All the cops hate me....

Are you black by any chance?

Citgo - January 20, 2016, 6:43 pm

I wouldnt see how you could get in any trouble unless you threaten anyone or cause harm.

Kuso - January 20, 2016, 6:44 pm

Don't tell me it has something to do with black lives matter.

Hahahahaha no. I live in the safest community in my state, and all the cops have to do is bust highschool parties and try to charge highschoolers for stealing pencils in school. It's to make fun of them.

Linuxiety - January 21, 2016, 2:34 pm

Cops saved my life once. Don't mock them. They are awesome

Varane - January 21, 2016, 3:31 pm

Go ahead man, they already hate you.

#Reliant - January 21, 2016, 3:32 pm

You might hurt their feelings, you wouldn't want that, would you

You can and should do it, but just use a separate email and fake name. ISIS HAS A FUCKING TWITTER, and they won't take that down. All social media companies have been increasing encryption and the government is getting pissed because they won't release information.

TLDR: You'll be fine/don't be a bitch

Who told you that? It is clear and available knowledge that social media companies work with governments and use social media as a way to spy on people.

Look up PRISM once in a while. Might scare you have to death who privacy invading they can be, legally, with or without your consent.

Yeah because the statistics of people getting raped after dropping soup is really high in prison lol

I would advise against making an account mocking them if they have a hard on for you already, but if you wanted to and you didn't post personal info etc. you'd be fine.

70s - January 21, 2016, 4:33 pm

No but if your worried about it i wouldnt give them a reason to fuck with you most cops are power tripping cunts some are nice and do the job well but i haven't meant alot of them

Pøw°CøM?ü? - January 21, 2016, 4:34 pm

Its freedom of speech! But governments are corrupt especially in USA! And they will arrest you so don't

The guy I quoted said soup, you obviously didn't catch my sarcasm.

Just make sure to follow these rules (found on the twitter support page) to ensure that you're legally in the right. Satire is perfectly within your first amendment rights.
