?Fact Of The Day?

When the first prototype of Apple's iPod was shown to Steve Jobs, he dropped it in an aquarium and used the air bubbles to prove there was empty space and it could be made smaller.

The Prototype:

?E?TR AS?

When engineers working on the very first iPod completed the prototype, they presented their work to Steve Jobs for his approval.

Jobs played with the device, scrutinized it, weighed it in his hands, and promptly rejected it.

It was too big.

The engineers explained that they had to reinvent inventing to create the iPod, and that it was simply impossible to make it any smaller.

Jobs was quiet for a moment.

Finally he stood, walked over to an aquarium, and dropped the iPod in the tank.

After it touched bottom, bubbles floated to the top.

"Those are air bubbles," he snapped. "That means there's space in there. Make it smaller."

?Fun Fact ?

Steve Jobs never wrote a single line of programming code.

=====

?Another Fun Fact?

Steve Jobs was dyslexic

HE NEVER WROTE A SINGLE LINE OF CODE?

wow mind blown

Seife?r - January 25, 2016, 7:50 am

I might be wrong, but I think steve jobs has wrote a line of code before, he just has never released a product that contained a line of his own code.

Replace () with [] ?

redi - January 25, 2016, 8:00 am

I'm guessing you're doing this for practice for school/work?

Anyways, pretty cool dude. If I were you I'd make it in photoshop and post in sites like reddit and 9gag.

You told me yesterday that my joke sucked and I should make a better one so here it is.

What's the difference between Cancer and Mexicans?
Cancer can get Jobs.

Ctrl + C then Ctrl + V makes for the best humor.
