Thread: Nex+ - Deal With Caution - Long Story

Russ. - January 25, 2016, 10:50 am

Nex+ : <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2194640>

Here is my entire story with Nex+, from Debug till Prism. All money amounts will be xx for now until I go back and list exactly how much I have sent to Nex+.

Paragraphs:

- 1: Buying leadership to Debug and it being Permanent.
- 2: Paying for the Rebrand and asking for the money back.
- 3: Scamming people through Athena.
- 4: His products and fake features.
- 5: MeshCollider and Nex's issues.
- 6: How I "fucked" over Nex.
- 7: My deal with Nex on buying the group.
- 8: Summary
- 9: Why I think he still owes me.

1. It started out by me buying a leadership spot from Nex for Debug which would later turn into Divine. My leadership spot was bought behind Polymorgs back, Nex said that he wouldn't have to pay Polymorg the % of leadership if I were to send xx amount of money. Shortly after Nex+ Purchased Debug and then he kicked the buyins out saying that they bought into debug not Divine. Which was a "low" move as nex says.

2. My leadership didn't have a "contract" like others. It was Permanent and that was it. Once Debug rebranded over to Divine I paid the $250 fee. At first I said don't worry about it I don't need it back. Within a day I had some things pop up and I messaged Nex stating that I need my $250 back, he said ok (Remember it cause it will come back up). There was a little drama with the leader ChromeProducts as him and Nex's deal went to shits. I am sure he created a thread somewhere about it so I won't talk about that.

3. Nex+ was also very big on fake marketing. He would have several members vouch for his products or tell us that a possible buyer for Athena was going to contact us and we needed to say it was working fully. When Athena was not even working at all. Nex scammed everyone who bought Athena and the person who bought the source. Luckily the person who bought the source had another coder get it working.

4. Now this brings me to some of his products, he would always tell the coders of them to just add the "features" to the builder but when clicked on they do not do anything. If you want Evidence of it ask Casp3r he has more than enough. He also told me to do the same but my skype logs don't go back far enough sadly.

5. Now then Nex was going to give the group to MeshCollider but wanted to come back and take it anytime. Basically using Mesh to make a good name for the group then just come back and take it. Mesh created a thread on this somewhere I think.

6. Now this brings me to how I fucked over Nex (least that's what he is saying). Nex had a project with a coder for xx amount of money. Nex's deal with the coder is not my issue. Here's what I know MeshCollider (good friend of mine and was going to be the one hosting the thread for Nex because Nex's rep for products was not the best) contacted me saying that the coder needs a downpayment of 1k and if I were to pay the project would then be mine. I thought it was a good idea as I could make some money on the side as I worked on my own projects. I paid the 1k to the Coder and I now own the project. Well this happened in december or before that even and no one told Nex.

7. I then make a deal with Nex to buy the group. Rent for 4 months for $1,150. He had to give me a amount that he would sell the group at because I was gathering money to completely buy the group. The first payment of $500 was in the form of Master Donator because if I were to give nex PP or BTC he would have to pay back DamienVC and Casp3r the money he still owes them from purchasing Debug. Nex told me to just buy him master donator so I did. Now my understand was that the rest of the money was due on the 23rd, I guess I was wrong. I even asked Nex if the money was due tomorrow (asked on the 22nd) and of course he never responded cause he was going to "fuck" me over because several days earlier I told him that he doesn't have his project anymore. Reason I told him was he put out a coming soon thread for it that I paid for (graphics).

8. So I lost Prism and Nex wants me to pay $350, which isn't going to happen. He can keep it as Prism, a Programming group led by Fiz (A Lounger), Nex (A worthless Marketer), Young Thug , none of them can code (least to my knowledge, Nex for sure cant). Nex plans to sell 7 leadership spots to pay back DamienVC. Even though Nex claimed that he already paid Damien but after talking with Damien last night Nex still has 1k-2k to pay back. Overall I saved $650 and got a project worth a good amount of money. I lost alot but I don't mind it. Prism is going to be a useless group.

9. Nex still owes me my $250 (in my opinion). I'll tell you why I think he still owes me my $250, when writing the deal up to purchase the group Nex subtracted -$250 from it and said I don't owe him it if I pay him $1,150. I said yeah sure, well I only paid $500 and the contract was broken and the deal was off. So to me he still owes me my $250, you guys can decide.

I'll be updating this with how much money I lost and any new information that I remember. For now it is quite a long piece for you guys to read. Only thing Nex has on me is that I had two accounts, One from 2012 that I lost and one from 2015. I had the accounts merged early 2015 and it was worked out with staff. So if nex comments that I was a multi accounteer then thats why.

I really did like Prism as a group, the members were really smart, and I loved the topics which it was set around.

Sad to see it go :-(

Wow, Nex has cheated people for awhile. I don't know what that coder bit really meant but I've seen some of the products with his group name stamped on the face of their sales threads and they weren't good, to say the least.

Dividing your block of texts into readable paragraphs would help, if you'd like I can do that for you lol

Haven't got much to say on the matter besides that people shouldn't be able to rent out groups like that. It encourages people to just buy a group and rent it to random people for "low prices" and when they don't pay find another one. It's an endless cycle of bullshit.

Sho?kwave - January 25, 2016, 11:06 am

Thanks for posting this Watson, I despise Nex. But I doubt it'll do anything.

Countless community alerts have been made on Nex which are all mostly valid and it does absolutely nothing, he lies, scams and he will continue to bring his groups quality down until nobody will want to join a group associated with him, I know I don't.

(Jan 25, 2016 12:05 PM)- Sam - Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is one of the many reasons official groups are no longer reputable and valuable like they used to be. Members have abused them to where the fuck out of the for money.

Don't get me wrong owners are entitled to attempt to make their money back from purchasing the group such as selling invites, but the path some owners have taken is just pathetic.

I have mad respect for the current groups who have not mass sold leadership positions and sold buy-ins.

+1, I had a conversation with Nex exactly about this subject, he doesn't agree (obviously)

BooGod - January 25, 2016, 11:10 am

Man, I am surprised with this. As I stated in one thread of mine, I think groups should have only one Leader (Owner) no matter how many reasons exists there. It wouldn't be causing so many issues. That film rolling back of the scenes for us "members" of the community its very surprising how it is rolling...Omniscient, should change few things regarding the groups, in the past few months have been having issues regarding leaderships...Even if no one agree with me, I think it's the right thing to happen.

I hope you solve this OP.

2: The deal was price of payment -$250 than the deal was cancelled.

3: The code was leaked. Everyone knew how shitty it was. Did you ever have someone buy athena that could get it working? Most people that bought it could not get it working.

4: I'll message casp3r for the logs.

5: You wanted to take the group back at any time. That's why the deal to give MeshCollider was off.

6: I would say couldn't/didn't pay it. That is what I was told by MeshCollider.

7: You owe Casp3r for work on applications and DamienVC sent you money bud. Don't try to say he didn't you still owe him.

8: Contract was broken.

9: The group is no longer prism? Pretty sure it still is.

Anyone can write up a few contracts and act like a businessman.

Doesn't mean you are one.

Ok firstly, like a majority of HF users I have a lot of lounge posts shocker. That doesn't categorize anyone. Also, you have never spoken to me and no nothing about what I do here or anyone else. Why would I take a spot in a coding group if I can't code? Obviously I have some interest or the buyins I'm selling would be for a profit (you can see they're not because they're $50 a piece and I can sell three and pay $150 for my spot). And I know you know this because you've replied to mine and Nex's threads to see all the information.

And people will still tend to deal with him, because he isn't breaking any rules.

Quite smart I believe what his doing with the group, which advantages his behalf only.

It is amazing, how Nex keeps scamming people over and over again and no one does anything to stop them, and still trust him with his "contracts".

Tell me how that is not making money?The spot I bought was $150 per month, I'm allowed to sell three buyins per month at my price of $50. Do the math, there's no profit being made. I have no interest in making a profit off HF members for groups as the small amount I would make means very little to me.

So why did you try to sell them for $60

J. McCarthy - January 29, 2016, 5:37 am

I had a very similar situation when buying Eminence years back. I paid part my friend scammed me about a grand and I couldn't pay the next payment so a fight broke out and I lost the leadership in the group I had already paid for as a result. It was my fault for being foolish, not saying you're a fool so please don't take this that way.

Moral of the story is have the funds ready to go or don't buy it at all.

Sorry this happened to you.
