Thread: fing Netflix on rampage

EL BB - January 25, 2016, 11:28 am

So I live in Europe and want to view USA Netflix. Thats why we have unblockers, proxys etc. However.....

Today on logging into my Netflix and trying to access american catalogue I get a message that says I'm using a proxy/unblocker and to turn off to continue using netflix. I mean.. come on!

The url explains it better..

Any thoughts on getting around these clean up measures?

It's like they want you to pirate your movies and series.

Try using one of the free VPN's on here. I know a couple of members giving out VPN's that have American locations.

I dont think it will work as netflix will see the hostname comes from a VPN and not a home connection or a SOCKS5. I don't see this working (and if it does, then people at Netflix are dumb.)}

Users like you crack me up getting butthurt over this.

Region restrictions are there for a reason. If you want to view US Netflix...move to the US.

Otherwise, quit bitching.

Move to the USA to watch netflix?? Yeah ok, tomorrow I'll pack my bags. haha.

On a lighter note, Hulu looks good might transfer if VPn services cant get their act together.

My point is...quit being a baby about them enforcing their policies. VPN services have their act together...it's Netflix blocking it, rightfully.

Anyway I don't like it, and I'll cry about it if I want. hahaha. And find a way to unblock it.

Thanks everyone else for constructive suggestions, you all wonderful.
