I'd assume prices aren't like here in the u.s. I'd have to say things out here are pretty cheap as they are.

Griev?us - January 25, 2016, 1:28 pm

Wonder if Op realizes that this means NZD is worth less than USD than.

Our Prime Minister, John Key is dick... He's spending $28m on changing our flag plus other useless things.

?Synapse - January 25, 2016, 2:30 pm

Dude why is this a good thing? As everyone else is saying, this just means you're currency is worth less than USD. If an American brought 1 USD to New Zealand he would then have 1.55 NZD

If $1 USD equals $1.55 NZD then that means our money is more valuable.

Varane - January 25, 2016, 3:18 pm

In Mexico 1usd is 17pesos.
Are you jealous?

Rey? - January 25, 2016, 3:23 pm

I don't quite understand the purpose of you bragging about your currency being more heavily inflated then the US dollar?

Alison Wonderland - January 25, 2016, 3:25 pm

OP you are an idiot.

In relative terms NZ's stuff is more expensive than US stuff.

Source: Im from new zealand and have been to america and can say shits way cheaper there

Lrrr - January 25, 2016, 3:27 pm

Since the world economy runs off the US dollar and inflation is based on the US economy....I'm not sure why you are bragging? It's all relative to current US inflation.

I've never been to NZ but I assume shit would be MORE expensive for you.

In Mexico where 19 pesos is equal to $1 USD the prices would be cheaper.

Again, RELATIVE

Mt Eden - January 25, 2016, 3:27 pm

Dollar is a poor currency, NZD is also a poor currency.
