A little quick update here:

1-FOTD Will no more have photos [they require time to get+even more effort spending+i don't think that this series need photos to become good.]

2-FOTM January is going to end soon its like 30 hours remaining with time i am making this thread. so stay tuned for the new facts of the month [january edition]

3-There will be a new upcoming series that will also increase the knowledge,i will announce it after i finish writing this thread.

Without further a do,lets start.

Welcome to FOTD

?Fact Of The Day?

The Statue of Liberty was intended for Egypt.

?E?TR AS?

The Statue of Liberty was originally meant to look like an Arab peasant and to be at the entrance of the Suez Canal in Egypt and her flame was to symbolize the light she was bringing to Asia.

Imagine if something like this was for the new suez canal ? it could have attracted many tourists to come to see the new suez canal.

The statue of liberty is a giant statue of a woman that would double as a lighthouse at the entrance of the Suez Canal.

Why it is not in egypt then?

Bartholdi realized that he could never put his statue in Egypt, because they didn't have the financial means.

And now as you can see,a study have shown that 3.2 million people visit the Statue of Liberty every year.

The cost of building the Statue of Liberty and pedestal amounted to over US$500,000, over US$10m in today's money.
