Your statement is TOOOO broad.

Have you tested in a VM? Whats the result? Port forwarding alright? DNS is still alive? Crypting? Maybe one of the configurations messed up the stub, we need more details.

check if your port is open on canyouseeme.org if not disable your firewall and windows defender (every av) then check your dns ?

First thing to do is check your port at <http://canyouseeme.org>. Next, make sure your NO-IP matches the one set in your RAT.

Yeah, been out o the game since the BlackShades drama. A little out of the loop lol.

xRaiders - January 30, 2016, 1:45 pm

nah don't use noip i'd recommend using fagdns.com

PurpleIsAColor - January 30, 2016, 1:46 pm

Test if your ports is open, like the others suggest.

Another Possible Reason : Your Server Got Caught by the antivirus on your Slave's machine (If all the conditions suggested by the other users were satisfied) :Blackhat:
