Thread: [\[COMMUNITY ALERT\] Selling illegally obtained gift cards. uid=3031087 NGMA](#)

Queen Cin - February 7, 2016, 11:55 am

So how do we know that it's carded? Call again, and record it.

Also, if it was carded, why weren't the order cancelled instantly? (Takes a few minutes max). Apparently it took longer than an hour.

NOTE : I DID NOT MAKE THIS THREAD. IT'S A GLITCH.

I didn't say it was carded. I don't need to record a phone call if he has his receipts right? Face the fucking fact that they were illegal. Actually, don't. Deal with him if you want. ?

to verify things before just going and canceling an order that's already processing.

People are jumping on the spelling of cancelled, but walmart appears to have that same spelling here:

Cupp - February 7, 2016, 4:07 pm

So, you purchased a gift card, made him wait a hour, then the orders got cancelled, and then you say he's trying to scam you?

- You didn't pay him, and made him wait a hour. It looks like you tried to scam him.
- As far as I am aware, the seller contacted Walmart himself and told them he got scammed, hence the cancellation.
- I have purchased many giftcards in the past. If they are fraudulent, they get cancelled instantly.
- They only get cancelled an hour later if its been requested to get cancelled. (E.G the seller contacted Walmart)

I needed the BTC, I was impatient. Clearly stated that in my dispute against you. I make enough to take a $350 loss to gain $650 BTC. Learn to read, quit justifying it. Walmart cancels any fraudulent order almost instantaneously, it wasn't until I got on the phone with them you claimed they got canceled (however you choose to spell the word), please check my threads timestamps.

Hands down, the sketchiest part of this whole dispute.

I would have to side with NGMA by the way OP is handling the situation. Not directly answering questions and getting pissed off for no reason.

I'm glad I'm not the only one who notices that

Waziti - February 7, 2016, 5:06 pm

Well you tried, but most of the people on here probably don't believe you didn't scam the guy.

Doesn't prove much tho, other than I called and canceled the transactions after going through 3 representatives around the same time he said the transaction was canceled due to fraud.

Fraudulent transactions are caught almost immediately, that transaction sat for over an hour before getting canceled.

I would call again then, he probably cancelled the orders himself the and the balance was returned. Maybe walmart can act on it now. worth a shot

Damn op after looking at this from both sides it's safe to say you're a fucking retard. No proof whatsoever.

Sad you tried to take advantage of a new member

Card has been out on red alert, if he uses it again he's a dipshit

That's why I'm confused why he keeps stating I posted zero proof against his. That 1 bum ass picture vs my phone calls and screen shots?

I need 2 Oz's of whatever he's on because he's tripping.

None of you know how to think for yourselves just adding to the majority vote. If I hadn't called about the card to make sure I would have sent him $650 BTC just for the orders to get canceled then I'd lose out on money I earned, but this way he loses the money he stole. I'm fine with having the scammer reputation, I don't plan on using the Marketplace again anyway. I'll just wait for NGMA to sell another gift card and watch the same situation come up again.

I am really confused regarding this thread....

Microsoft Agent #3180 - February 7, 2016, 9:35 pm

I'm willing to bet you don't even have 650 btc in your wallet right now ?

Not only do you post bogus community alerts but you trash my name? LOL, you're a funny kid. I can bounce back from my losses but can you?

Also that's another funng thing about your posts, you claim you called the card and this and that but the fact of the matter is you didn't call the card, my proof validates that. ?

Also still avoiding my comments, questions and accusations. still no proof on any claim.

He should've done store pick up, but he's probably too young and doesn't have anything other than his school ID

That's true, or he could have been 13 and his mommy didn't wanna take him. Inb4 he says "my mom is dead"

Red Sand - Sasori - February 8, 2016, 10:23 pm

It's official, you guys are retarded and would never have the mental capabilities to become a lawyer nor detective.
