Thread: Rolex Watches

pr0sper - February 8, 2016, 6:18 pm

I'm looking to purchase a Rolex, and I know you can't really find "deals" on them but I was wondering if anyone knew anywhere good to find legit preowned Rolex watches.

I don't want to get fucked and buy a fake one but I know that I could save a bit if I got one preowned.

All help is appreciated!

if you can't afford a rolex then you don't need a rolex

Somebowdy - February 8, 2016, 6:24 pm

Have you allready tried to google it? Because I did for like 2 minutes and found this: bobs watches pre owned rolex watches (sorry for not posting a link, I can't send links yet...)

I can afford one. If I can save a few hundred/thousand with one that isn't brand new why not?

Yeah but I just assumed majority were fake. I'll check it out though, thanks!

Why do you shop at normal clothing stores when you can go to the thrift store

iDuL - February 10, 2016, 1:08 pm

Visit your local pawn shop is what advice I have for you.

Thin - February 10, 2016, 1:10 pm

Preowned watches don't lose value simply because they have been preowned. If the watch has been worn, by 1 person or 20 people, and still looks new and shiny, they're gonna ask for the same price, you would never know the difference once it is all cleaned up nice and buffed out.

So you guys do sell at market value and nothing less?

I can't attest to how great these prices are, but Tourneau sells pre-owned watches:

Doing a bit of research, they are on the expensive side and don't provide a box and papers.

I believe the point of a Rolex, is to show your wealth. If you are trying to save money on a Rolex, you are showing wealth that you don't have. This also pertains to fake Rolex.

Eagerkid - February 11, 2016, 1:50 pm

Go on ebay and look at them, they will be real and cheaper than most. That is where I got my first watch

They are certified though. So if you get it certified and appraised by Rolex it shouldn't be too hard to resell.

socialimprovements - February 13, 2016, 6:36 am

Best to go through your local Rolex AD. Buy pre-owned, you will better keep the value.

Terry_Tibbs - April 16, 2016, 5:37 am

Theres a few big guys selling on IG.

Reputable companies who also have shops you can visit

?asp3r - April 16, 2016, 10:01 am

Unless youre fine with counterfeit watches, in that case check out aliexpress or dhgate.

root.localhost - April 18, 2016, 4:56 am

Buy a decent rolex all over the US at local pawn shops however your looking at anywhere from $200-$20,000+ on one and pawn shops normally have shit checked out and don't buy fake stuff so chances are you can get a legit one im not a fan of having a watch because the only time I believe in is NOW and NOW and NOW.

jcd1827 - April 18, 2016, 9:01 am

I go to a local high end pawn shop for my watches. I currently own 3 movato's and a rolex. I've spent under 3 grand for all 3 of them. Keep in mind the movato's were pretty cheap... (~300-400each). Start there and see what you can find :)

e?erg1zer - April 18, 2016, 9:55 am

Go to a jeweler, see if they have anything pre-owned.

uR x S0NiiC - April 18, 2016, 4:14 pm

You will get one here

pr0sper - April 19, 2016, 6:04 pm

I have one now, but thanks anyways guys lol

uR x S0NiiC - April 19, 2016, 7:27 pm

How much did you spend on one?

Nirmal Pattara - April 19, 2016, 7:28 pm

If you cant afford to buy a brand new rolex from website then dont bother imo, dont get second hand 1

You gonna show us it?

Demoralise - April 24, 2016, 5:57 am

Why exactly do you care about buying a replica Rolex? You would ultimately save money and many replicas are higher quality than real Rolex watches. People couldn't tell the difference either.

People can tell the difference no fake is 1:1. But most of the population do not study high end watches and are not able to tell the difference.

D3RP - April 24, 2016, 1:11 pm

Fuck i hate watches.. prefer just to look at phone for time

Not necessarily true, its easier for these small companies to piggyback off of popular companies fame. To start your own watch brand they would need a much larger budget, than just selling fakes.

Hendersott - April 28, 2016, 1:26 am

Then you just go outlet buy it. if you can't afford a rolex then you don't need a rolex!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
