

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Looking for a Java Guru to help me fix a small issue

RedBlood - February 9, 2016, 6:45 pm

Hello Guys,

I am in need for a Java developer to help me fix about 5 lines of code on my app.

Please pm me with you skype so we can talk there.

Thanks in advance!!!!!!

??Austin?? - February 9, 2016, 8:39 pm

I don't know why I bother to type this over and over again but this is the Java section it is full of excellent coders that will happily help you if you post your code. But, most people don't have to wait around for a pm to help people. If you need someone to have a more thorough understanding of the code then pls specify otherwise.

csrk - February 10, 2016, 6:05 am

As Austin said, post your code and explain what the problem is and someone will help you. No one is eager enough to help you that they will take the time to PM you.

Noah_ - February 10, 2016, 6:29 am

I could of probably helped you if you would just put the code in the thread.

RedBlood - February 10, 2016, 9:49 am

Hi thank you for all the reply's, It would be much easier to explain over the skype then posting the code here that's why i did not post, but i will send you guys pm so we can talk there thanks again.

+Haze - February 10, 2016, 9:50 am

Just post the section you're having problems with. I'm sure we will understand your issue, we're not dumb.

RedBlood - February 10, 2016, 9:53 am

here is the error

Quote:<http://pastebin.com/FnRtNqZi>

+Haze - February 10, 2016, 9:55 am

(Feb 10, 2016 10:53 AM)RedBlood Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) here is the error

See, the answer is simple. The Json you're reading is not a valid Json string. Now post the Json you're reading and I'll show you where it's wrong.

RedBlood - February 10, 2016, 10:00 am

(Feb 10, 2016 10:55 AM)+Haze Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) See, the answer is simple. The Json you're reading is not a valid Json string. Now post the Json you're reading and I'll show you where it's wrong.

Please check your email i have sent you source code.

Thank you.

+Haze - February 10, 2016, 10:02 am

dude -_-_- faceplam just forget it

RedBlood - February 10, 2016, 10:13 am

(Feb 10, 2016 11:02 AM)+Haze Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) dude -_-_- faceplam just forget it thats why i said it would been so much easier i just show what i am working on vs asking for codes and then giving up lol, thanks anyway

Jire - February 10, 2016, 10:22 am

(Feb 10, 2016 11:13 AM)RedBlood Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) thats why i said it would been so much easier i just show what i am working on vs asking for codes and then giving up lol, thanks anyway
I can help you if you add me on Skype: Jire..

The reason people want you to post is to show both a question and answer so that it may be helpful to a future reader and to show credibility of the respondent through a public answer. Coming up with a well thought out question shows effort on your part, even if you made no effort at all in solving your problem.

To the potential answerers, you expect people to help you when you A) made no effort into your post, and B) are not willing to offer some compensation for the time spent by the answerer.

It's a rare case that somebody will help you just in the interest of your problem.

RedBlood - February 10, 2016, 11:45 am

(Feb 10, 2016 11:22 AM)J i r e Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I can help you if you add me on Skype: Jire..

The reason people want you to post is to show both a question and answer so that it may be helpful to a future reader and to show credibility of the respondent through a public answer. Coming up with a well thought out question shows effort on your part, even if you made no effort at all in solving your problem.

To the potential answerers, you expect people to help you when you A) made no effort into your post, and B) are not willing to offer some compensation for the time spent by the answerer.

It's a rare case that somebody will help you just in the interest of your problem.

Thanks for your help!!