

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Need help reinstalling windows

Absolute Greatest - February 18, 2016, 2:43 pm

So I want to uninstall and reinstall windows on my laptop, currently running windows 10.

I recently bought a windows 10 usb that came with a key that I used on a seperate computer.

Would I be able to use this same usb to reinstall windows on my laptop, or how would I go about doing this

SIM-2502833 - February 18, 2016, 2:44 pm

I can help you reinstall. I don't know about the key part, I would just install ultimate then crack it, and then use the free upgrade thing.

Charlemagne - February 18, 2016, 2:46 pm

Yes you would be able to I believe. I recently had to do the same since I lost my previous Windows USB.

Freebooter - February 18, 2016, 3:44 pm

(Feb 18, 2016 03:43 PM)Vex. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So I want to uninstall and reinstall windows on my laptop, currently running windows 10.

I recently bought a windows 10 usb that came with a key that I used on a seperate computer.

Would I be able to use this same usb to reinstall windows on my laptop, or how would I go about doing thisPlease next time ask Windows OS related questions at Windows 10 forum. You cannot use retail product key more then one computer so answer to your question is no for the product key and yes to using Windows 10 USB on more then one computer to install Windows 10.

kenjoe1230 - February 18, 2016, 5:19 pm

If you took the free upgrade on the computer you want to reinstall on it should automatically authenticate when you reinstall.