Thread: Access to moodle Quiz answers from HTML code

hahaha.lol - February 22, 2016, 7:32 am

Hi HF!

I Need some advice/help regarding the Moodle quiz solving..... Our university uses Moodle platform for examination. During the exam I can use only the window of the quiz(It has Multiple choice questions). I tried to search the code by using Ctrl+U (view source) but didn't find any valuable information.

I want some method to know which is the correct answer among'st the options. My university used a older version of moodle before so I could find it; but now it is moodle 3.0

I need some valuable help regarding this issue it is very necessary... ?

Is this even possible?? I don't know if it is...Any insights from the big hackers?

Hi, I Have the same issue with moodle exams. Did you find the way of searching the answers? If yes, can you help?

peterAkoh - April 12, 2020, 8:36 pm

It depends on whether they are using JavaScript-based validation checks against answers or there is an actual server-side call being made which verifies the answer against the value stored in the database. If it is a JS validation you can simply attach a proxy to your browser and view all the answers in one go which i am guessing should be in a file called "config.json" or "questions.json" when you start the assessment.

Guys how to know the answer of the multiple choice quiz on the moodle?

Ampere - May 10, 2020, 3:11 am

Moodle questions are stored server side. You will not be able to view answers by viewing the source.

soumajitdas - July 21, 2020, 10:49 am i think you can hack your answers before submitting your results and copy the site and open a new tab and make a few changes there

"exam.moodle.org/mod/quiz/attempt.php?attempt=-----"

TO

"exam.moodle.org/mod/quiz/review.php?attempt=-----"

and you have to keep an eye quietly or you can use ctrl+f to find the answers by copying the questions text and search and you will find answers right there

BOOM!!!!!!

When i try to do that it automatically takes me to "exam.moodle.org/mod/quiz/attempt.php?attempt=-----" back again. Seems that the Moodle guys are one step ahead haha!

Yeah, I have one, but ignorant fucks here won't tell on what platform to browse my social engineering site.

Try to make your dumb teachers with n00b knowledge of internetz to click on your jailbait site and send you their pw,ip,username they're using, then, access the test to see which are the answers to the questions. The best take. Otherwise I couldn't see any other logic practicable solution to this.

I could do this myself but I don't want to pay for shitty offshore sites to host my beautiful copy on.
Fukc modern internet for closing all the good hosting sites.
