Thread: Do you want to learn Unity?

MrJamieMcC - March 3, 2016, 7:33 am

I am currently making a game in Unity and have considered providing tutorials on making games. This will include scripting, level design, asset creation, game theory, input devices and audio.

If you are at all interested please speak up. This will be a free "class" in which you watch me create my game and ask any questions/learn while watching

Thank you

Sounds interesting, I'd definitely like to watch some day

Why not record and upload as well?

^ This would be amazing, as I don't really have that much time in the everyday.

Else it sounds really amazing brother :)

Honestly. I live at student accommodation and my upload rate is 0.1 on a good day. Uploading videos is not an easy task for myself

I'd be interested. Depending on the timeframe, I'm sure someone would be willing to record.

I feel that most people on this forum would be interested, but would have very little experience in development. It would be difficult to teach if that were the situation. I may be wrong though.
